NB: Many of the award winners listed above have dual nationalities. The nationality given is therefore not necessarily the country of birth.

General Information

Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences awards the Physics, Chemistry and Economics Prizes.
Swedish Karolinska Institute awards the Medicine Prize.
Swedish Academy of Arts awards the Literature Prize.
The Peace Prize is awarded by a committee of 5 members of the Norwegian Storting.
Nils Dalen, the 1912 Nobel Prizewinner for Physics, was blinded in 1913 by an explosion whilst conducting an experiment.
Eight fathers and sons have won Nobels although William and Lawrence Bragg were the only father and son to win a prize in the same year.
A woman had never won the Economics Prize until 2009.
Jan and Niko Tinbergen are the only siblings to win Nobels.
Husband and wife Pierre and Marie Curie, and their daughter Irene and her husband Frédéric Joliot-Curie, all won Nobels.

Organisations, Movements and Bodies

- ACP the 68 African, Caribbean and Pacific countries which have special trade relations with the European Union.
- Action Directe left wing French revolutionary group formed in 1979 and responsible for numerous bombings.
- Agenda 21 blueprint for action adopted at the 1992 Earth Summit in Rio setting out requirements for sustainable development.
- Aipac American Israel Public Affairs Committee, Israel's official lobbying arm in the USA and as such part of the influential US Jewish lobby. Based in Washington, DC.
- Akali Dal supreme political organisation of the Indian Sikh community. Founded in December 1920 and based in the Punjab.
- Alawi Islamic sub-sect signifying followers of the Caliph Ali, revered by Shias. Prominent in Syria, Lebanon and Turkey.
- Alfaro Vive Carajo! translates as 'Alfaro Lives, Dammit!' Ecuadorean left-wing nationalist guerrilla group named in memory of the President 1895–1901, 1906–11.
- Al-Fatah (Arabic: victory) Movement for the National Liberation of Palestine. Mainstream component of the PLO founded by Yasser Arafat in 1958.

PERFUME

Animal Sources

ambergris found floating on the sea in oily grey lumps; excreted by the sperm whale after feeding on cuttlefish. Used as a base.
castoreum comes from the follicles in the genital areas of both male and female beavers. Used as a fixative.
civet comes from a pouch beneath the tails of both male and female civet cats. Used as a fixative.
hyraceum excreted by the hyrax, a rabbit-like animal of the Middle East. Used in ancient Arabic perfumes but rarely used nowadays.

musk comes from the preputial follicle of the male musk deer. It is used as a fixative and is also thought to be an aphrodisiac. Chinese courtesans were fed bland foods perfumed with musk, so that when aroused the warmth of their bodies released the scent.
propolis a sticky brown fixative which bees collect from trees to use as a cement in their hives.
sweet hoof or onycha an ingredient of incense that comes from the shells of marine snails found around India and the Red Sea.

Plant, Mineral and Synthetic Sources angelica root of the holy ghost (Angelica archangelica). It has a strong musky aroma.

bdellium myrrh (see also opoponax), an aromatic gum.
ben oil an essential oil from the winged seeds of the horseradish tree, used as a base oil for perfumes.
burning bush white dittany. The oil from the plant can vaporise in hot weather and catch fire without harming the plant itself. The fragrant essential oil is used in pot-pourri.
cherry pie heliotrope, used in pot-pourri and in modern perfumes such as 'Lou Lou' (Cacharel).
coumarin a white crystalline substance with a scent of new-mown hay, found in withered herbs and fruits. It is also manufactured synthetically from coal tar.
devil's dung asafoetida, a tall evil-smelling plant used as a fixative.
farnesol manufactured synthetically, but also found in musk. It gives a scent of lily of the valley.
frangipani the first plant to be named after a perfume. In 15th-century Rome, one of the Frangipani family made the perfume from orris, spices, civet and musk digested in wine alcohol. Later, French colonists in the West Indies found a bush (Plumeria alba) which had the same smell and named it frangipani.
galbanum small drops of it ooze from the stems of the giant fennel. It is mentioned in the Old Testament. It has a spicy-green scent with a hint of musk and is used in the 'top notes' of quality perfumes like Chanel No. 19.
handflower wallflower. The name 'handflower' comes from the practice, stemming from ancient Greece, of carrying the flowers in the hand as a nosegay during festivals.
indole the synthetic material derived from coal tar used to produce the scent of jasmine and neroli.
ionone the synthetic material used to make the scent of violets.

Labdanum comes from rock-rose shrubs found around the Mediterranean; often gathered by combing the beards of goats which have browsed on the bushes. It was thought to have aphrodisiac qualities. Assyrian kings liked young women who had spent time soaking during a six-month period in baths of labdanum or bdellium, after six months soaking in myrrh.
linalol the synthetic material used to make the scents of lilac, lily and honeysuckle.
love-in-the-mist nigella, a hardy annual which grows to a height of about 1.5 m and has a fragrance of ambrette seeds.
malabathrum a dried aromatic leaf from a species of cinnamon, used by the Romans in the making of unguents.
muguet lily of the valley. It is used in many 'quality' perfumes such as 'Opium' (Yves St Laurent), and 'Florissa' (Floris). Its fragrance is manufactured synthetically as farnesol.
olibanum frankincense, a fragrant gum resin often used as an incense and, in perfumes, as a fixative.
opoponax myrrh (probably the Biblical myrrh collected from the land of Punt). Its oil, with a scent of fenugreek, is distilled from the yellowish lumps which occur on the plant. It is used mainly for incense and pot-pourri.
orris comes from iris roots; has a violet-like scent.
storax originally from the bark of the liquidamber tree which grows in Turkey, Asia Minor and Rhodes, but now manufactured synthetically. It has a smell of cinnamon, and is used as a fixative.
syringa lilac. The flowers are used mainly in pot-pourri, and its oil is used in 'quality' perfumes such as 'Chamade' (Guerlain), 'Florissa' (Floris) and 'Soir de Paris' (Bourjois).
verbena holy wort. The leaves have a lemon scent. It is used mainly in cosmetics and soaps and the leaves are sometimes dried for use in sachets.

- Henri Cartier-Bresson (1908–2004) French photographer who initially studied painting with André Lhote before working as an assistant to film director Jean Renoir. His publications include The Decisive Moment (1952) and The Europeans (1955). See also Leonor Fini in Art section.
- Julia Margaret Cameron (1815–79) British pioneer of portrait photography.
- Louis Jacques Mandé Daguerre (1787–1851) French painter and physicist who invented the daguerreotype, requiring exposure of 20 minutes as opposed to Niépce's method requiring 8 hours.
- Terence Donovan (1936–96) London-born photographer and film director whose work covered a wide spectrum of contemporary life. He worked for Vogue, Harpers & Queen, Elle, and Marie Claire.
- George Eastman (1854–1932) US manufacturer who introduced the Kodak camera (1888) and Brownie camera (1900).
- Walker Evans (1903–75) US photographer who produced a powerful record of the faces, homes and lives of America's 1930s rural poor.
- Roger Fenton (1819–69) English photographer who was famous for his Crimean War pictures.
- William Henry Fox Talbot (1800–77) English chemist, linguist and photographer who in 1839 invented the photographic negative and whose The Pencil of Nature (1844) was the first photographic book.
- William Friese-Greene (1855–1921) British photographer often credited with the invention of cinematography, although Thomas Edison would appear to have a stronger claim. The film, The Magic Box (1951) was based on his life.
- John Heartfield (1891–1968) Aka Helmut Herzfelde, German pioneer of the photomontage, e.g. Hurrah, the Butter is Finished (1935).
- Lewis Wickes Hine (1874–1940) US photographer who studied sociology before making a photographic study of Ellis Island immigrants and child labourers. He recorded the construction of the Empire State Building in his survey Men at Work (1932).
- James Wong Howe (1899–1976) Chinese-born US cinematographer who started work in 1917 as assistant cameraman to Cecil B De Mille. Howe pioneered the use of the wide-angle lens, deep focus, and ceilinged sets to replicate shipboard claustrophobia. He won Oscars for his work on The Rose Tattoo (1955) and Hud (1963).
- Yousuf Karsh (1908–2002) Armenian-born Canadian photographer who was appointed official portrait photographer to the Canadian government in 1935. A 1941 portrait of Sir Winston Churchill led to his reputation of photographing all the world's leading statesmen.
- André Kertész (1894–1985) Hungarian-born US photographer famous for his pioneering use of the small hand-held camera
- Herbert Land (1909–91) US inventor and physicist whose invention of the Polaroid (one-step) process for developing and printing photographs culminated in a revolution in photography.
- Dorothea Lange (1895–1965) US photographer who became famous for her social records of migrant workers during the 1930s.

- Eadweard Muybridge (1830–1904) Original name Edward James Muggeridge. English photographer famous for his landscapes of the American West. Muybridge was employed by the railroad magnate Leland Stanford in 1872 to prove that during a particular moment in trotting, all four legs of a horse are off the ground simultaneously. His studies were interrupted while he was tried for the murder of his wife's lover, but after his acquittal he developed a special shutter giving an exposure of 2/1,000 of a second which proved the theory.
- Nadar (1820–1910) Working name of Gaspard-Félix Tournachon, French artist and photographer whose Paris studio became a favourite haunt of the intelligentsia. In 1886 he produced the first photo interview, a series of 21 photographs of the centenarian scientist Eugène Chevreul, each captioned with the sitter's replies to Nadar's questions. He pioneered the use of aerial photographs for map-making and in 1858 took the first pictures from a balloon.
- Joseph-Nicéphore Niépce (1765–1833) French inventor who was the first to make a permanent photographic image (1826).
- Man Ray (1890–1976) US photographer, painter & film-maker, born Emanuel Rabinovich. He founded the New York Dadaist movement with Marcel Duchamp and Francis Picabia before moving to Paris and working with René Clair. Man Ray pioneered the use of photographic images made without a camera - 'Rayographs'.
- Henry Peach Robinson (1830–1901) English photographer who specialised in images of costumed models. He was a founder member of the Linked Ring (1892), a group of photographers seeking to excel in artistic creation.

- Aaron Siskind (1903–91) US photographer and teacher; his Dead End: The Bowery and Harlem Document depicted the depression but in a stylised form. He later photographed the mundane.
- W Eugene Smith (1918–78) US photojournalist for Life magazine in the 1940s and 50s noted for his impassioned work of the times.
- Edward Steichen (1879–1973) Luxembourg-born US photographer who became a member of the Linked Ring in England and made his reputation with his studies of the nude. In 1902 he co-founded the American Photo-Secession Group with Alfred Stieglitz. In WW1 he served as commander of the photographic division of the US army. In the 1920s Steichen became involved in fashion photography. He was head of US Naval Film Services during WW2, and director of photography at the New York Museum of Modern Art 1945-62
- Alfred Stieglitz (1864–1946) US photographer who was a major figure in establishing photography as an art form and his gallery of modern art at 291 Fifth Avenue, NY, was the linchpin of his work.
- Paul Strand (1890–1976) US photographer and documentary film-maker who studied under Lewis Hine. In 1933 he was appointed chief of photography and cinematography in the government Secretariat of Education in Mexico. Known for his architectural studies and photographic books on regions of the world.
- Weegee (1899–1968) Pseudonym of Polish photographer Arthur Fellig, known for his stark black and white street photography. His first collection Naked City (1945) became the inspiration for a later movie. His nickname was a corruption of 'ouija' due to his almost supernatural attendance at crime scenes.
- Edward Weston (1886–1958) US photographer who produced notable landscapes of the Mojave Desert, and in 1937, with the first-ever award of a Guggenheim Fellowship to a photographer, travelled the American West before touring the Eastern States to illustrate an edition of Walt Whitman's Leaves of Grass.
- Minor White (1908–76) US photographer and editor who founded the periodicals Aperture and Image.
- Garry Winogrand (1928–84) US photographer who created a highly influential brand of urban street photography, fusing the 'snapshot' approach with a sense of energy and crowded events in his images.

POLITICS

Country -- Name of Governmental Chambers -- Type of Government

NB The upper chambers of bicameral parliaments are listed first in this table, and the name of parliaments are the most commonly accepted, e.g. the parliament of Afghanistan is bicameral, the upper house being the Meshrano Jirga and the lower house the Wolesi Jirga. The combined assemblies are generally referred to as the National Assembly. Parliaments are generally elected for a term of years but in some bicameral assemblies the two chambers may have differing lengths of term. In our example of Afghanistan, the lower house is elected for a five-year term but the upper house has a third (34) of its members elected by district councils (one per province) for three-year terms, one-third (34) by provincial councils (one per province) for four-year terms, and one-third (34) are nominated by the president for five-year terms. The membership is the statutory capacity as at October 2013.

Notes

- 1 Prime Minister Although the office of prime minister is traditionally stated as commencing in 1721, in fact there were chief ministers given this label long before this date, and conversely there have been chief ministers subsequent to this date who did not bear the title of prime minister, e.g. William Pitt the Elder and Charles James Fox, in the mid- and late 18th century. To confuse matters further, Walpole was designated First Lord of the Treasury until 1730, as were some other future prime ministers of the 18th and 19th centuries. It was not until 1905 that the title of prime minister became official.
- 2 Party A second point of conjecture concerns the designation of the ruling party of the day. Until the first Electoral Reform Act of 1832 and the subsequent rise of the Conservative and Liberal parties, the government of the day was often a coalition of sorts, and the ruling party is given as the party of the prime minister in power, unless unaffiliated.
- 3 Chief ministers not listed above Sir William Pulteney, earl of Bath, actually kissed the hand of George II on 10 Feb. 1746, but within three days was unable to form a government. James Waldegrave kissed the hand of George II on 8 June 1757 but returned seals on 12 June, unable to form a ministry. Charles James Fox and his erstwhile enemy Lord North were the de facto heads of government in 1783, while the duke of Portland was merely the nominal prime minister. William Pitt the Elder, earl of Chatham, although not included in the table above, was in effect the prime minister from 1756 to 1761 during most of the Seven Years' War, although never taking up official office. From 1766 to 1768 Pitt was also Head of the Government but chose the secondary post of Lord Privy Seal; gout prevented him serving in anything but name for this second term.
- 4 Constituencies: See numbers in table above
- (22) George Canning's: Newport IOW (1793–6 & 1806–7), Wendover (1796–1802), Tralee (1802–6), Hastings (1807–12), Liverpool (1812–23), Harwich (1823–6), Newport IOW (1826–7) & Seaford (1827).
- (26) Viscount Melbourne's: Leominster (1806), Haddington Borough (1806–7), Portarlington (1807–12), Peterborough (1816–19), Hertfordshire (1819–26) Newport IOW (1827), Bletchingley (1827–8).
- (27) Robert Peel's: Cashel (Tipperary) (1809–12), Chippenham (1812–17), Oxford University (1817–29), Westbury (1829–30), Tamworth (1830–50).
- (30) Earl Russell's: Tavistock (1813–17, 1818–20, 1830–1), Huntingdonshire (1820–6), Bandon (1826–30), Devon (1831–2), South Devon (1832–5), Stroud (1835–41), London (1841–61).

- (39) William Gladstone's: Newark (1832–45 Tory), Oxford University (1847–65 as Peelite until 1859 then Liberal), South Lancs (1865–8), Greenwich (1868–80), Midlothian (1880–95).
- (52) Andrew Bonar Law's: Blackfriars, Glasgow (1900–6), Dulwich (1906–10), Bootle (1911–18), Central Glasgow (1918–23).
- (54) Ramsay MacDonald's: Leicester (1906–18), Aberavon (1922–9), Seaham, Co. Durham (1929–35), Scottish Universities (1936–7).
- (59) Winston Churchill's: Oldham (1900–6, Conservative until 1904 then Liberal), NW Manchester (1906–8), Dundee (1908–22), Epping (1924–45), Woodford, Essex (1945–64 as Conservative).
- 5 Miscellaneous information
- (2) Sir Spencer Compton was a Tory until 1704.
- (8) George Grenville was nicknamed the Gentle Shepherd.
- (9) Charles Watson Wentworth repealed the Stamp Act.
- (10) Augustus Henry Fitzroy, the duke of Grafton, was a victim of the pseudonymous Junius letters which attacked various government ministers in the London Public Advertiser (1769–72), although the identity of Junius remains unknown. Sir Philip Francis is a possible candidate. He was also a direct descendant of the illegitimate son of Charles II.
- (11) Lord Frederick North became a Whig in 1783.
- (13) William Petty, the earl of Shelburne, was nicknamed Malagrida, after a notorious scheming Jesuit. He sat in the English House of Lords in his father's English title of Baron Wycombe.
- (18) William Wyndham Grenville's administration of February 1806–March 1807 was known as 'The Ministry of All the Talents' and comprised followers of Charles James Fox. Its greatest achievement was the abolition of slavery in March 1807. He was the son of George Grenville (PM 1763–65).
- (20) Spencer Perceval was assassinated by John Bellingham in the lobby of the Commons.
- (21) Robert Banks Jenkinson was created Lord Hawkesbury in 1803 and earl of Liverpool in 1808.
- (22) George Canning fought a duel with Viscount Castlereagh on Putney Heath in September 1809 but was only slightly wounded.
- (24) Arthur Wellesley, duke of Wellington, was known as Arthur Wesley until 1804.
- (27) Robert Peel created the Metropolitan Police Force in 1829 and drafted the 'Tamworth Manifesto' which laid down the ideology and objectives of the party which became the Conservatives. He died after a fall from a horse.
- (30) Abigail Lister, the wife of Lord John Russell, became Baroness Ribblesdale.
- (31) Edward George Stanley, the earl of Derby, became a Tory in 1835 (previously a Whig).
- (33) Henry John Temple, Viscount Palmerston, was a Tory until 1829, then a Whig, and finally a Liberal. He was the last Prime Minister to die in office.
- (42) Robert Arthur Talbot Gascoyne-Cecil was also known as Viscount Cranborne.
- (48) Arthur James Balfour was the son of James Balfour MP and his wife, the sister of the third marquess of Salisbury, later the Conservative Prime Minister.
- (49) Henry Campbell-Bannerman died at 10 Downing Street, three weeks after resigning.
- (50) Herbert Henry Asquith's administration was a coalition from 1915.
- (52) Andrew Bonar Law was born in New Brunswick, Canada. His term of office was 209 days.
- (53) Stanley Baldwin was related to Rudyard Kipling and Sir Edward Burne-Jones.
- (56) Ramsay MacDonald's second administration became a National Government, including Conservatives and Liberals, on 24 August 1931.
- (59) Winston Churchill's first administration became Conservative from 23 May 1945.
- (62) Anthony Eden's second wife was the niece of the former Prime Minister Winston Churchill.
- 6 William Pitt (the Elder) (1708–1778) Educated at Eton and Trinity College, Oxford. In 1735 he entered the House of Commons as member for the family borough of Old Sarum. In 1756 Pitt became nominally Secretary of State but was de facto Prime Minister from 1756 until October 1761. The King invited him to form a further government between 1766 and 1768 but he chose the secondary title of Lord Privy Seal while performing Prime Ministerial duties. Chronic gout caused a severe decline in his mental health and he died after making a speech in the House of Lords on 2 April 1778. His second son was William Pitt the Younger.

high-profile winners	*Romantic novelist Louise Bagshawe in Corby; millionaire Zac Goldsmith (son of financier Sir James Goldsmith) in Richmond Park; Pamela Nash in Airdrie (at 25 she is the ‘Baby of the House’); Caroline Lucas (the Green Party’s first-ever MP in the House of Commons of the United Kingdom) in Brighton; Priti Patel (the first Asian female Conservative MP) in Witham; Michelle Gildernew (smallest majority – 4) in Fermanagh and South Tyrone; Helen Grant (first black female Conservative MP) in Maidstone & The Weald; Peter Tapsell (Father of the House – longest serving MP) in Louth & Horncastle.

* Louise Daphne Bagshawe (b. 28 June 1971) married Peter Mensch in 2011, retired and relocated to the United States, where her husband took up work. Technically, MPs cannot resign. However, they can effectively do so by requesting to be appointed as Steward of the Chiltern Hundreds or Steward of the Manor of Northstead, which automatically vacates their seat.

NB Several serving MPs have ceased to be a member of their party, but continue to sit in the House of Commons as independents either through choice or because they have had the party whip withdrawn. As at October 2013 these include: Eric Joyce (Lab, Falkirk) who was suspended on 23 February 2012 following his arrest on suspicion of assault the night before; Patrick Mercer (Con, Newark) who resigned on 31 May 2013 after he was the subject of a journalistic sting exploring his conduct regarding lobbying companies; Mike Hancock (LD, Portsmouth South) who resigned on 3 June 2013 until a forthcoming court case, involving allegations of sexual offences made against him, has ended; David Ward (LD, Bradford East), who was suspended on 18 July 2013 after questioning the continuing existence of the state of Israel and refusing to apologise for his remarks; Nigel Evans (Con, Ribble Valley) who resigned as First Deputy Chairman of Ways and Means and chose to sit as an independent in September 2013 after being charged with offences including sexual assault and rape.

Cabinet Positions (past and present)

The Cabinet is the traditional inner circle of the most senior ministers of Her Majesty’s Government in the United Kingdom, composed of the Prime Minister and 22 Cabinet ministers, although recently there has been a trend towards non-Cabinet ministers and even non-members of the Houses of Parliament attending meetings as guests.

The incumbents, frequently entitled Secretaries of State of their various departments, are empowered to form policy and are the public face of their ministries, although the permanent secretaries, who are non-party civil servants, necessarily tend to perform much of the day to day running of the offices.

It is a peculiarity of the UK system that the government of the day heads the departments while the civil servants carrying out its policy might be of a totally opposite political persuasion. This has sometimes been known to cause a certain inertia within departments.

Cabinet members from the Commons are created Privy Councillors on appointment and are addressed as ‘The Right Honourable’. Cabinet members from the Lords (a rarity these days) are already Privy Councillors.

The following is a list of the incumbents of the various Cabinet positions in all their guises.

Agriculture, Fisheries and Food

The Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food was a government department created by the Board of Agriculture Act 1889 and at that time called the Board of Agriculture. In 1903 the department was renamed the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries and by 1919 it became a ministry. It was renamed the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (MAFF) in 1954 after merging with the Ministry of Food which was set up to deal with food rationing in both world wars. Its functions were transferred to a new government department, the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra), in 2001 although MAFF was not formally disbanded until the following year.

Board of Trade

The Board of Trade came into existence in 1672 as an amalgamation of the Council of Trade and Council of Foreign Plantations, both formed in 1660. Initially the incumbent was known as First Lord of Trade, but in 1784 Baron Sydney (he who gave his name to cities in Canada and Australia) took office as President of the Committee on Trade and Foreign Plantations. Thereafter the holder was known as President of the Board of Trade until Edward Heath’s tenure in 1963, when the job description was widened and he became Secretary of State for Industry, Trade and Regional Development, and President of the Board of Trade. Although the office reverted back to the Board of Trade between 1964 and 1970, both John Davies and Peter Walker were known as Secretary of State for Trade and Industry, and President of the Board of Trade. Between 1974 and 1983 the duties were split and Tony Benn, Eric Varley, Sir Keith Joseph and Patrick Jenkin were Secretaries of State for Industry while the President of the Board of Trade became a secondary title of the Secretary of State for Trade. Between 1983 and 2007 the status quo ante resumed and the offices were again united. From 28 June 2007, the incumbent was known as the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, and President of the Board of Trade. Finally, on 5 June 2009, the holder of office became Secretary of State for Business, Innovation and Skills, and President of the Board of Trade.

Cabinet Office

The Minister for the Cabinet Office tends to have multi-purpose Cabinet duties in support of the Prime Minister. Hilary Armstrong for instance was Minister for the Cabinet Office, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster and Minister for Social Exclusion during her term of office, and the present incumbent is Minister for the Olympics, Minister for the Cabinet Office and Paymaster General.

Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster

Historically, the incumbent was the chief officer in the management of the considerable lands inherited by John of Gaunt after marriage. The so-called Duchy of Lancaster is still in existence today but is run on behalf of the Crown by a deputy, and the office of Chancellor has become a sinecure for a Cabinet minister without portfolio or an honorary secondary position within the Cabinet.

Chancellor of the Exchequer

The incumbent controls HM Treasury and the position is considered one of the four Great Offices of State (the other three being Prime Minister, Foreign Secretary and Home Secretary); in recent times it has come to be the most powerful office in British politics after the Prime Minister. The Exchequer dates from the reign of Henry I (1100–35) and the first person outside the monarchy to be entrusted with its charge was Eustace de Fauconbridge, Bishop of London, in about 1221, although he was known as Lord High Treasurer. The position was only sporadically filled until 1559 and although Hervey de Stanton is often considered the first holder of office between 1316 and 1327, this title was merely a clerical position and had no political weight. Sir Walter Mildmay was the first incumbent of any significance, although only in the mid-19th century under William Gladstone did the holder become politically powerful – as the Second Lord of the Treasury.

Chief Whip

Chief Whip is not a Cabinet position per se, as all major parties will have such a position. The Government Chief Whip is usually appointed as Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury so that the holder of office is able to take a seat in the Cabinet. Although the incumbent's official residence is at 12 Downing Street, presently the Chief Whip's office is located at 9 Downing Street. The following is a list of Chief Whips since the turn of the 20th century.

Defence

On his appointment as Prime Minister in 1940, Winston Churchill created the new post of Minister of Defence in response to criticism that there was no single minister in charge of the prosecution of the war. Although Churchill carried out his defence duties parallel to the premiership (as he did for four months in his second tenure), by the end of 1946 Clement Attlee had deferred the post to Albert Alexander as a distinct Cabinet position; it thus became the only Cabinet-level post representing the military, with the three service ministers – Secretary of State for War, First Lord of the Admiralty, and Secretary of State for Air – now formally subordinated to the Minister of Defence. The post of Minister of Defence was abolished on 1 April 1964 and replaced by the new post of Secretary of State for Defence.

Deputy Prime Minister

Honorific title conferred, from time to time, by the Prime Minister on a senior member of his Cabinet. Although the honour itself comes with no benefits, and the holder of office does not stand in for the Prime Minister on any official duties, the incumbent’s profile and stature is elevated within and without Parliament. The present incumbent is also the leader of the Liberal Democrats within a coalition government with the Conservatives. See also First Secretary of State.

Education

The position of President of the Board of Education was created at the turn of the 20th century. In July 1941, R A ‘Rab’ Butler became the last minister to hold this title. Butler was responsible for secondary education for all and the Education Act 1944, commonly named after the Conservative politician, prompted the transformation of the Board of Education into the Ministry of Education (3 August 1944) with Butler as its first minister, an office now subordinate to the Secretary of State. The Department of Education and Science was created in 1964 with the merger of the Ministry of Education and the Ministry of Science, Quintin Hogg (formerly Viscount Hailsham) becoming Secretary of State. In 1992 responsibility for science was transferred to the Office of Public Service, and the department was renamed the Department of Education with John Patten as the first Secretary of State. In 1995 the department merged with the Department of Employment to become the Department for Education and Employment (DfEE) and in June 2001 the employment functions were transferred to a newly created Department for Work and Pensions, the DfEE becoming the Department for Education and Skills (DfES). In June 2007 the DfES was split into two new departments: the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF), and the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS), under two new Secretaries of State. In June 2009 the Department for Business, Innovation and Skills (BIS) was created by the merger of the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform. The office was again re-established in May 2010 and the incumbent became Secretary of State for Education. The following is a list of Ministers and Secretaries of State since the inception of the office.

Employment

The department began life as the Ministry of Labour in 1916 but became the Ministry of Labour and National Service between 13 May 1940 and 12 November 1959, resuming under its original name until 6 April 1968. During Barbara Castle's incumbency the office holder was known as Secretary of State for Employment and Productivity; 25 years later in 1995 the post of Secretary of State for Employment was merged with that of Secretary of State for Education to create the position of Secretary of State for Education and Employment.

Energy and Climate Change

The Department of Energy was created in 1974 following the oil crisis of the year before. Previously, responsibility for energy production came under the auspices of the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI). The department was abolished in 1992, with some of its functions transferred to government watchdog departments and others transferred back to the DTI. The Department of Energy and Climate Change (DECC) was created on 3 October 2008 and took over some of the functions of the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

Environment, Food and Rural Affairs

The Secretary of State for the Environment was a Cabinet position created in 1970 by Edward Heath as a combination of the Ministry of Housing and Local Government and the Ministry of Public Building and Works. On 2 May 1997, the Department of the Environment was merged with the Department of Transport to form the Department of the Environment, Transport and the Regions (DETR). On 8 June 2001, the environmental protection elements of the DETR were merged with the Ministry of Agriculture, Fisheries and Food (MAFF) to form the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (Defra). Meanwhile, the transport, housing and planning, and local and regional government aspects went to a new Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (DTLR).

First Secretary of State

Honorific title conferred on a senior member of the Cabinet and sometimes preferred to that of Deputy Prime Minister, as it implies seniority over all other Secretaries of State but is more constitutionally sound. In fact both honours amount to the same thing. See also Deputy Prime Minister.

Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs

The post of Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs was created on 17 October 1968 with the merger of the Commonwealth Office (dating only from 1966) and the Foreign Office. The Foreign Office itself was created in 1782 by combining the existing Northern and Southern Departments, their domestic responsibilities being assigned at the same time to the Home Office. The headquarters are at King Charles Street, London SW1.

Health

Sir Benjamin Hall (who in 1859 gave his name 'Big Ben' to the great bell of the clock at the north end of the Palace of Westminster in London) became the first President of the Board of Health in 1854, but the department was discontinued in 1858 and its powers were eventually merged into the newly formed Local Government Board in 1871. The board was restructured in 1919 and the local government functions were transferred to the Minister of Housing and Local Government, while the Ministry of Health was created with Christopher Addison as First Minister. In 1968 the department was amalgamated with the Ministry of Social Security under Richard Crossman as Secretary of State for Social Services. In July 1988, following the demerger of the Department of Health and Social Security (DHSS), the office was split; John Moore became Secretary of State for Social Security while Kenneth Clarke became Secretary of State for Health.

Home Office

The Home Secretary is responsible for immigration control, security and order within the United Kingdom. He was formerly responsible for the Prison Service and Probation Service, but, since 2007 these are under a newly created Minister of Justice. The Home Office itself was created in 1782 by reallocating the domestic responsibilities of the existing Southern and Northern Departments, their overseas duties being assigned at the same time to the Foreign Office. The headquarters are at Marsham Street, London SW1.

International Development

The office responsible for promoting development overseas was created in 1997 when the Department for International Development was made independent of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office; Clare Short being the first Secretary of State. The Ministry of Overseas Development was established in 1964 but was conjoined with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office on 15 October 1970. Between 10 June 1975 and 8 October 1979 the Foreign Secretary served as Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs and Minister for Overseas Development in the Cabinet, while the Minister for Overseas Development held the rank of Minister of State within the Foreign and Commonwealth Office.

Leader of the House of Commons

The office was more often than not held by the Prime Minister until Churchill's wartime Cabinet, but in recent years the post has usually been combined with that of Lord President of the Council. From 2003 it has been combined instead with the office of Lord Privy Seal. The incumbent is responsible for arranging government business in the House of Commons.

Leader of the House of Lords

The incumbent takes charge of the government’s business in the House of Lords but is always the holder of a formal Cabinet position, most often Lord President of the Council, Lord Privy Seal or Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. Charles ‘Turnip’ Townshend, 2nd Viscount Townshend, is sometimes considered the first incumbent in 1721 although his actual title was Secretary of State.

Lord Chancellor

The position of Lord Chancellor dates back to at least the Norman Conquest and until the reign of Elizabeth I was invariably held by a high-ranking church officer. The duties of the Lord Chancellor are varied, including responsibility for constitutional affairs and the effective administration of the court system as well as custodianship of the Great Seal. Reform during the past decade has changed the areas of responsibility of the incumbent and the present holder of the office, Kenneth Clarke, is also Secretary of State for Justice (a position created in May 2007 to replace the Secretary of State for Constitutional Affairs, itself created in 2003 – Lord Falconer being the sole incumbent). Formerly, there were separate Chancellors of England, Scotland and Ireland and although I have listed the English Lord High Chancellors for interest only, the first Lord Chancellor/Lord Keeper of Great Britain was William Cowper in May 1707. Any gaps in the periods of incumbency were when a commission of several men fulfilled the ministerial function.

Lord President of the Council

Historically, the fourth of the Great Officers of State, the holder being responsible for presiding over meetings of the Privy Council. In recent years it has been usual for the Lord President also to serve as Leader of the House of Commons. Between 2003 and 2008 the office was combined with that of Leader of the House of Lords. Although Charles Brandon, 1st Duke of Suffolk, is often cited as the first holder of the office in 1530, the honour was conferred sporadically and it was not until 1679 that it became a regular Cabinet position.

Minister without Portfolio

A facility whereby the government of the day can second a prominent politician into the Cabinet despite not heading a particular ministry. In this respect the position is similar to the sinecure positions of Lord Privy Seal and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster.

Northern Ireland

The Secretary of State for Northern Ireland is the chief minister in the government of the United Kingdom with responsibilities for Northern Ireland, although the Secretary is responsible only to the Westminster Parliament and not the Northern Ireland Assembly. The office was created following the suspension of the home rule Parliament of Northern Ireland in 1972.

Scotland

The Secretary of State for Scotland is the chief minister in the government of the United Kingdom with responsibilities for Scotland, although the Secretary is responsible only to the Westminster Parliament and not the Scottish Assembly. The office was originally created for the Scottish Parliament in the 14th century (possibly the most famous incumbent being William Maitland of Lethington, who served Mary Queen of Scots) and only those holders since the Union of the Crowns in 1705 are relevant to British politics. The position was abolished in 1746 following the Jacobite rebellion, Scottish affairs thereafter being managed by the Lord Advocate until 1827, when responsibility passed to the Home Office. In 1885 the post was re-created, with the incumbent usually (though not always) in the Cabinet. In 1926 this post was upgraded to a full Secretary of State appointment but, as with its Welsh and Northern Irish counterparts, its responsibilities have been severely diluted since the introduction of the national assemblies of the home countries.

Transport

Prior to 2002, the Department for Transport has been variously organised as the Ministry of Transport (1919–41, 1945–53, 1959–70, 1979–81), Ministry of War Transport (1941–45), Ministry of Transport and Civil Aviation (1953–59), Department for the Environment (1970–76), Department of Transport (1976–79, 1981–97, 2002–), Department for the Environment, Transport and the Regions (1997–2001) and Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions (2001–02). The minister in control of the department has been known under various titles and has not always been a member of the Cabinet. Similarly, after the Cabinet reshuffle of 8 June 2009, Sadiq Khan, serving as Minister of State for Transport (under Lord Adonis as Secretary of State), was given the right to attend Cabinet.

Women and Equality

Although not a Cabinet position per se, the holder of office has always been a Cabinet minister with an extra responsibility for ensuring gender equality. The incumbent was entitled the Minister for Women until a reorganisation on 12 October 2007, whereby the Women and Equality Unit, based within the Department for Communities and Local Government, was converted into an independent department supported by the Government Equalities Office (GEO).

Work and Pensions

The Ministry of Pensions was created in 1916 to facilitate the payment of war pensions. On 8 October 1944, a separate Ministry of Social Insurance, under Sir William Jowitt, was formed (renamed the Ministry of National Insurance on 17 November 1944) and the two merged on 3 September 1953 as the Ministry of Pensions and National Insurance. On 6 August 1966 it was renamed Ministry of Social Security, and on 1 November 1968 merged with the Ministry of Health to form the Department of Health and Social Security with the Secretary of State for Social Services as its helmsman. The Department was de-merged on 25 July 1988, creating the separate Department of Health, while the Department of Social Services was renamed the Department of Social Security. On 8 June 2001 it was renamed the Department for Work and Pensions after merging with the Employment element of the Department for Education and Employment.

PROVERBS

Biblical Proverbs (from the Book of Proverbs)

A wise man will hear, and will increase learning: and a man of understanding shall attain unto wise counsels (1.5).
Listen to the discipline of your father and do not forsake the law of your mother (1.8).
Happy is the man that has found wisdom, and the man that has discernment (3.13).
Do not hold back good from those to whom it is owing, when it happens to be in the power of your hand to do [it] (3.27).
Do not fabricate against your fellow man anything bad, when he is dwelling in a sense of security with you (3.29).
Do not quarrel with a man without cause, if he has rendered no bad to you (3.30).
Do not become envious of a man of violence, nor choose any of his ways (3.31).
Into the path of wicked ones do not enter, and do not walk straight on into the way of bad ones (4.14).
Remove from yourself the crookedness of speech, and the deviousness of lips put far away from yourself (4.24).
Smooth out the course of your foot, and may all your own ways be firmly established (4.26).
Go to the ant, see its ways and become wise (6.6).
Do not reprove a ridiculer, that he may not hate you. Give a reproof to a wise person and he will love you (9.8).
A wise son is one that makes a father rejoice, and a stupid son is the grief of his mother (10.1).
He that is walking in integrity will walk in security, but he that is making his ways crooked will make himself known (10.9).
Hatred is what stirs up contentions, but love covers over even all transgressions (10.12).
The tongue of the righteous person is choice silver, whilst the heart of the wicked one is worth little (10.20).
Deception is in the heart of those fabricating mischief, but those counselling peace have rejoicing (12.20).
A prudent man conceleth knowledge (12.23).
He that walketh with wise men shall be wise: but a companion of fools shall be destroyed (13.20).
He that spareth his rod hateth his son (13.24).
Pride goeth before destruction, and an haughty spirit before a fall (16.18).

General Proverbs

All roads lead to Rome.
An old poacher makes the best keeper.
Beauty is potent but money is omnipotent.
Better be stung by a nettle than pricked by a rose.
Between two stools one falls to the ground.

Talk of the devil, and he'll appear.
Tell that to the marines.
Thrift is good revenue.
Time and tide wait for no man.
Virtue is its own reward.
Virtue never grows old.
What can't be cured must be endured.
When the sun is highest he casts the least shadow.
When the wind is in the east it's good for neither man nor beast./When the wind is in the north the skilful fisher goes not forth./When the wind is in the south it blows the bait in the fish's mouth./When the wind is in the west the weather is at the best.
Who knows most says least.
Whom God wishes to destroy, he first makes mad (Quos Deus vult perdere, prius dementat).
A wild goose never laid a tame egg.
A wonder lasts but nine days.
You cannot make an omelette without breaking eggs.
You cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear.
You cannot teach an old dog new tricks.
Young men may die, old men must.
Zeal without knowledge is fire without light.
Zeal without prudence is frenzy.

NB Some of the proverbs above are corruptions of biblical proverbs. Others were coined by great thinkers and philosophers, and yet others have simply come into general usage through time.

Georgie Porgie pudding and pie, kissed the girls and made them cry; when the boys came out to play, Georgie Porgie ran away.
Goosey, goosey gander, where shall I wander? Upstairs and downstairs, in my lady's chamber. There I met an old man who would not say his prayers, I took him by the left leg and threw him down the stairs.
Hey diddle diddle, the cat and the fiddle, the cow jumped over the moon; the little dog laughed to see such sport, and the dish ran away with the spoon.
Hickory, dickory dock, the mouse ran up the clock. The clock struck one, the mouse ran down, hickory, dickory dock.
Humpty Dumpty sat on a wall, Humpty Dumpty had a great fall; all the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't put Humpty together again.
I had a little nut tree, nothing would it bear, but a silver nutmeg, and a golden pear.
If all the world were paper, and all the sea were ink, if all the trees were bread and cheese, what should we have to drink?
Jack be nimble, Jack be quick, Jack jump over the candle stick.
Jack Sprat could eat no fat, his wife could eat no lean, and so between them both, you see, they licked the platter clean.
Little Bo-Peep has lost her sheep, and doesn't know where to find them; leave them alone and they will come home, dragging their tails behind them.
Little Boy Blue, come blow your horn, the sheep's in the meadow, the cow's in the corn. Where is the boy who looks after the sheep? He's under a haystack fast asleep.
Little Jack Horner sat in the corner, eating a Christmas pie; he put in his thumb, and pulled out a plum, and said, What a good boy am I.
Little Miss Muffet sat on a tuffet, eating her curds and whey; along came a spider, who sat down beside her, and frightened Miss Muffet away.
Little Polly Flinders, sat among the cinders, warming her pretty little toes; her mother came and caught her, and whipped her little daughter, for spoiling her nice new clothes.
Little Tommy Tucker sings for his supper; what shall we give him? White bread and butter. How shall he cut it without a knife? How will he marry without a wife?
Lucy Locket lost her pocket, Kitty Fisher found it; not a penny was there in it, only ribbon round it.
Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as snow; and everywhere that Mary went the lamb was sure to go.
Mary, Mary, quite contrary, how does your garden grow? With silver bells and cockle shells, and pretty maids all in a row.
Old King Cole was a merry old soul, and a merry old soul was he; he called for his pipe, and he called for his bowl, and he called for his fiddlers three.
Old Mother Hubbard went to the cupboard, to fetch her poor dog a bone; but when she came there, the cupboard was bare, and so the poor dog had none.
On the twelfth day of Christmas my true love sent to me twelve drummers drumming, eleven pipers piping, ten lords a-leaping, nine ladies dancing, eight maids a-milking, seven swans a-swimming, six geese a-laying, five gold rings, four colly birds, three French hens, two turtle doves, and a partridge in a pear tree.
One, two, three, four, five, once I caught a fish alive; six, seven, eight, nine, ten, then I let it go again. Why did you let it go? Because it bit my finger so. Which finger did it bite? This little finger on the right.
Oranges and lemons, say the bells of St Clement's. You owe me five farthings, say the bells of St Martin's. When will you pay me? say the bells of Old Bailey. When I grow rich, say the bells of Shoreditch. When will that be? say the bells of Stepney. I'm sure I don't know, says the great bell at Bow. Here comes the candle to light you to bed, here comes a chopper to chop off your head.

Pat-a-cake, pat-a-cake baker's man, bake me a cake as fast as you can; pat it and prick it and mark it with B, put it in the oven for baby and me.
Pease porridge hot, pease porridge cold, pease porridge in the pot, nine days old.
Polly put the kettle on, Polly put the kettle on, Polly put the kettle on, we'll all have tea. Sukey take it off again, Sukey take it off again, Sukey take it off again, they've all gone away.
Pussy cat, pussy cat, where have you been? I've been to London to visit the Queen. Pussy cat, pussy cat, what did you there? I frightened a little mouse under her chair.
Ride a cock horse to Banbury Cross, to see a fine lady upon a white horse; rings on her fingers and bells on her toes, and she shall have music wherever she goes.
Ring-a-ring o' roses, a pocket full of posies, A-tishoo, A-tishoo, we all fall down.
Rub-a-dub-dub, three men in a tub, and how do you think they got there? The butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker, they all jumped out of a rotten potato, 'twas enough to make a man stare.
See-saw Margery Daw, Johnny shall have a new master; Johnny shall have but a penny a day, because he can't work any faster.
Simple Simon met a pieman, going to the fair; said Simple Simon to the pieman, let me taste your ware. Said the pieman to Simple Simon, show me first your penny; said Simple Simon to the pieman, indeed I have not any.
Sing a song of sixpence, a pocket full of rye; four and twenty blackbirds baked in a pie. When the pie was opened the birds began to sing; wasn't that a dainty dish to set before the king? The king was in his counting-house, counting out his money, the queen was in the parlour, eating bread and honey, the maid was in the garden, hanging out the clothes, along came a blackbird and pecked off her nose.
Solomon Grundy, born on Monday, christened on Tuesday, married on Wednesday, took ill on Thursday, worse on Friday, died on Saturday, buried on Sunday, this is the end of Solomon Grundy.
Taffy was a Welshman, Taffy was a thief, Taffy came to my house and stole a leg of beef. I went to Taffy's house, Taffy wasn't in, I jumped upon his Sunday hat, and poked it with a pin.
The Grand Old Duke of York, he had ten thousand men, he marched them up to the top of the hill, and he marched them down again; and when they were up they were up, and when they were down they were down, and when they were only halfway up, they were neither up nor down.
The man in the moon came down too soon, and asked the way to Norwich; he went by the south, and burnt his mouth, with supping cold plum porridge.
The north wind doth blow, and we shall have snow, and what will poor Robin do then, poor thing? He'll sit in a barn, and keep himself warm, and hide his head under his wing, poor thing.
The Queen of Hearts she made some tarts, all on a summer's day. The Knave of Hearts he stole the tarts, and took them clean away.
There was a crooked man, who walked a crooked mile, he found a crooked sixpence against a crooked stile, he bought a crooked cat, which caught a crooked mouse, and they all lived together in a little crooked house.
There was a man lived in the moon, lived in the moon, lived in the moon, and his name was Aiken Drum, and he played upon a ladle, a ladle, a ladle.
There was an old woman who lived in a shoe, she had so many children she didn't know what to do; she gave them some broth without any bread, she whipped them all soundly and sent them to bed.
This little piggy went to market, this little piggy stayed at home, this little piggy had roast beef, this little piggy had none, and this little piggy went wee-wee-wee, all the way home.
Tom, Tom, the piper's son, stole a pig and away he run; the pig was eat, and Tom was beat, and Tom went howling down the street.
Twinkle, twinkle, little star, how I wonder what you are! Up above the world so high, like a diamond in the sky.
Wee Willie Winkie runs through the town, upstairs and downstairs in his night-gown, rapping at the window, crying through the lock, are the children all in bed, it's past eight o' clock.
What are little boys made of? Snips and snails and puppy-dog tails. What are little girls made of? Sugar and spice and all things nice.
Who killed Cock Robin? I, said the sparrow, with my bow and arrow, I killed Cock Robin. Who saw him die? I, said the fly, with my little eye, I saw him die.
Yankee Doodle came to town, riding on a pony; stuck a feather in his cap, and called it macaroni.

Black Friars Dominicans (Friar Preachers are a mendicant order founded in 1215).

Black Monks Benedictines (established c. AD 535–540).

Buddhism founded by Siddhartha Gautama in the sixth century BC. Buddha means ‘Enlightened One’. Two main divisions are Theravada Buddhism and Mahayana Buddhism. The third minor division is Vajrayana or Tantric Buddhism. The Buddha’s teachings are described as the Four Noble Truths. The Middle or Noble Eightfold Path is the finding of truth and leads to Nirvana. The ten precepts include five for laymen, i.e. prohibiting killing, stealing, lying, sexual misconduct and drinking intoxicating liquor, and five for monastic novices, i.e. not to eat at certain hours, not to take part in festivals, not to use garlands or perfumes, not to use a luxurious bed and not to accept money for oneself. The birth of the Buddha is celebrated in the festival of Vesak/Wesak. The Buddha’s first sermon is celebrated in the festival of Dhamma-cakka.

Cathari Manichean order that flourished in western Europe during the 12th and 13th centuries. The name derives from the Greek ‘Katharos’ meaning pure.

Hinduism originated about 4,000 years ago in the land of the Indus River. The Veda is the most ancient body of religious literature. The power of the Brahmans (priest class) is central to the belief. Ahimsa is the doctrine of non-injury or the absence of the desire to harm. Brahma (creator), Vishnu (protector) and Siva (destroyer and restorer) constitute the Trimurti.

Islam founded by Mohammed in AD 622 when he fled from Mecca to Medina (flight known as the Hegira). Koran (Qur’ān) is regarded as the word of God given to Mohammed by the angel Gabriel. Five pillars of Islamic faith are: the Shahādah – there is no god but God and Mohammed is the prophet of God; the salat – the five daily prayer sessions; the zakat – the tax that constitutes the giving of alms; the saum – fasting during daylight hours of Ramadan; hajj – the pilgrimage to Mecca that every Muslim should take at least once in their lifetime. The two major branches of Islam are the Sunnites (largest) and the Shi’ites.

Jainism founded in India in the sixth century BC by Mahavira. Jains practise Ahimsa.

Jesse son of Obed, and father of David.

Judaism the body of Jewish civil and ceremonial law is contained in the Talmud, which comprises the Mishnah and the Gemara. The Hebrew Bible comprises 24 books. The civil calendar begins with the month of Tishri, the first day of which is the holiday of Rosh Hashana (New Year). Other Jewish holidays include Shavuot or Pentecost, which commemorates the revelation of the Torah (Law) at Sinai; Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement), which ends the ten days of penitence from Rosh Hashana; and Sukkot (Tabernacles), in remembrance of the Israelites’ wanderings after the Exodus. Yom Kippur, Rosh Hashana, and Sukkot are celebrated in the Jewish month of Tishri. Purim celebrates the story of Esther and is celebrated in the month of Adar. Israeli Jews are divided equally among Ashkenazi (Germanic) and Sephardic (strictly speaking, descendants of Spanish Jews pre-1492; more loosely, non-Ashkenazi), although the Ashkenazim constitute more than 80% of all Jews in the world.

Koran (Qur’an) Sacred book of Islam, regarded by Muslims as the final revelation of God to humankind, passed by the archangel Gabriel in Arabic to Muhammad, the last of the prophets. It consists of 114 chapters (sūras) containing Christian and Arabic legend as well as Old and New Testament stories. The first translation into English was by George Sale in 1734, although Alexander Ross translated the Koran into English in 1649, but this was from a French translation.

Manich(a)eism religious order founded by the Persian prophet Mani (c. 216–274) based on the conflict between goodness and evil. Manicheism also describes any heretical philosophy involving dualistic doctrines.

NB Almost everyone, everything and everywhere can be included under the auspices of a patron saint. Sometimes the affiliation lies in historical events and sometimes in ancient folklore and, more frequently still, homage is often paid to a particular saint for convenience, for example, cab-drivers call on St Fiacre as their protector because the Hotel St Fiacre in Paris was the first establishment to offer coaches for hire. Confusion often arises in this field as to why a particular saint has been adopted by a particular group. For example, St Martin of Tours is identified with innkeepers and drunks but is often depicted as a young mounted soldier. It should also be noted that many occupations have more than one recognised patron saint, and extra care should therefore be taken when compiling questions on this subject. For example, do not ask who is the patron saint of soldiers unless you are prepared to accept any of the three possible answers.

The Bible

Genesis

God creates Adam from dust.
Garden of Eden planted.
Trees of Life and Knowledge.
Adam names all living beasts.
Eve is created from Adam's rib.
Serpent deceives Eve into eating forbidden fruit.
Birth of Cain and Abel.
Cain becomes tiller of the soil, and Abel a shepherd.
Cain kills Abel and when asked by the Lord as to his whereabouts replies, 'Am I my brother's keeper?'
Cain is 'marked' by God and flees to the land of Nod.
Cain's wife gives birth to a son, Enoch, and builds a city in his name.
Adam's third son Seth is fathered at the age of 130 and Adam dies at age 930.
Methuselah is sired by Enoch (descendant of Seth, not Cain) and lives for 969 years.
Methuselah sires Lamech who subsequently sires Noah.
Noah begets three sons: Shem, Ham, and Japheth. He was 500 years old.
God destroys man by bringing great flood but reprieves Noah.
Noah (aged 600) builds an ark of gopher wood (300 x 50 cubits, and 30 cubits high), three storeys in total.
God directs Noah to take aboard seven of each type of clean beast but just two of each unclean.
There were eight humans on the ark, i.e. Noah and his sons plus their wives.
Ark comes to rest on Mt Ararat.
Noah sends forth a raven and then a dove, which comes back with an olive leaf to show that the rains have ceased.
Noah becomes the first 'drunken man' after planting a vineyard.
Noah lives for 350 years after the flood and dies aged 950.
Noah's great grandson, Nimrod, begins to be a mighty one on the earth.
Nimrod's kingdom begins with Babel, Erech, Accad, Calneh and Shinar.
The whole earth is of one language, one speech.
After the tower of Babel is built, the Lord scatters the people abroad to confound their language.
The Lord calls unto Abram and blesses him.
Abram, with his wife Sarai and nephew Lot, journey into the land of Canaan.
Abram and Lot return from Egypt, after Sarai is taken by the Pharaoh.
Lot moves to live in Sodom, but the men of Sodom are wicked and sinners.
Then comes the 'Battle of the Kings'.
At the battle in the vale of Siddim, the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah are beaten and fall into slimepits.
Lot is taken prisoner by the victors.
Abram attacked at Hobah, and gains the release of Lot, all his goods, the women and the people.
Abram's wife Sarai cannot bear him children; she therefore gives Abram her maid Hagar, who bears him Ishmael.
Abram is 86 years old when he fathers Ishmael.
The Lord renames Abram – Abraham.
The Lord makes a covenant with Abraham which states that every male child is to be circumcised at eight days old.
The Lord renames Sarai – Sarah.
At the age of 90, Sarah bears Abraham a son, Isaac.
Two angels come to see Lot at the gates of Sodom.
The men of Sodom are struck blind.
Lot, his wife and two daughters leave Sodom.
They are told not to look behind them.
Sodom and Gomorrah are destroyed by the Lord.
Lot's wife looks behind her and is turned into a pillar of salt.
Lot's two daughters get him drunk so that they may 'lie' with him to preserve his seed.
Lot's elder daughter has a son, Moab.
Lot's younger daughter also has a son called Ben-ammi.
Abraham tells Abimelech, king of Gerar, that Sarah is his sister, and she is taken by Abimelech.
Abraham casts Hagar and his son Ishmael away.
Abimelech makes a covenant with Abraham and returns to the land of the Philistines.
Abraham has his faith tested by the Lord.
Sarah dies at the age of 127.
A wife is sought for Isaac.
Abraham's servant finds and meets Rebekah.
Rebekah consents to go to Isaac; she then becomes his wife.
Abraham takes a second wife, Keturah.
Keturah bears him Zimran, Jokshan, Medan, Midian, Ishbak and Shuah.
Abraham dies aged 175.
Ishmael dies aged 137.
Ishmael has 12 sons - Nebajoth, Kedar, Adbeel, Mibsam, Mishma, Dumah, Massa, Hadar, Tems, Jetur, Naphish, Kedemah.
Rebekah gives birth to twins – Esau (a hunter) and Jacob (a tent-maker).
Esau sells his birthright to Jacob for a mess of pottage (bread and lentil stew).
Jacob deceives his father, Isaac, into believing that he is his brother Esau.
When Esau finds out about the deceit he threatens Jacob.

While searching for a wife, Jacob dreams of the ladder reaching from earth to the heavens.
Jacob dreams of the Angels of God ascending and descending on the ladder.
Jacob meets Rachel.
Jacob works for seven years in order to win Rachel.
Jacob takes both Rachel and her younger sister Leah as his wives.
Rachel is barren, but Leah bears Jacob a son, Reuben.
Leah later bears Simeon, Levi and Judah.
Rachel gives Jacob her handmaiden, Bilhah, to take as a wife.
Bilhah bears Dan and Naphtali.
Leah gives her maid, Zilpah, to Jacob to take as a wife.
Zilpah bears Gad and Asher.
Leah bears Jacob a fifth son, Issachar, a sixth, Zebulun, and a daughter, Dinah.
Rachel herself then conceives and bears a son, Joseph.
Jacob becomes very rich, with many cattle, maidservants, menservants, camels and asses.
Jacob has a vision at Mahanaim.
Jacob sends messengers to Esau, requesting his return to Laban.
Esau comes to meet him with 400 men.
Jacob sends a present to Esau of various animals.
When Jacob meets Esau, Jacob bows seven times.
Esau runs to meet Jacob, and embraces him. They both weep.
Jacob builds an altar at Shalem, and calls it El-elohe-Israel.
Dinah is defiled by Shechem, son of Hamor, the Hivite.
Simeon and Levi slay all the males of the city, and take Dinah from Shechem's house.
Jacob is unhappy with his sons, because the Canaanites and Perizzites will now rise against him.
God tells Jacob to move to Beth-el.
Jacob and his household journey to Beth-el, build an altar and call it El-beth-el.
Jacob is renamed Israel.
Rachel dies while giving birth to Benjamin.
While away from his household, Reuben lies with Bilhah, his father's concubine.
Jacob's sons now number twelve.
Jacob goes to his father, Isaac, at Hebron, where Isaac dies, aged 180.
Jacob favours Joseph over his brothers.
Joseph has dreams which cause his brothers to hate him.
At first Joseph's brothers plot to kill him.
Joseph's brothers sell him into slavery with the Ishmaelites.
The brothers dip Joseph's long garment in goat's blood, and take it to Jacob.
Jacob mourns his son's death.
Judah meets and takes the daughter of a Canaanite, named Shuah.
Shuah bears three sons: Er, Onan and Shelah.
Judah takes a wife for Er, whose name is Tamar.
Er displeases the Lord and He slays him.
Judah tells Onan to marry Tamar, his brother's widow.
Onan spills his seed on the ground; this displeases the Lord also and He slays Onan.
Judah tells Tamar to live in his house and wait until Shelah is grown.
Tamar deceives Judah into thinking she is a harlot.
When Judah hears that Tamar is pregnant, he orders her to be burnt.
She is spared when Judah realises he is the father of her child.
Tamar has twins, Pharez and Zarah.
Joseph is sold in Egypt to Potiphar, an officer of the Pharaoh.
Joseph is promoted to overseer.
Joseph's master's wife asks him to lie with her, but Joseph refuses.
She later pulls his garment off him and Joseph flees.
She lies to Potiphar, saying that Joseph came to her to force her to lie with him.
Joseph is imprisoned in the King's prison.
He interprets the dreams of the Pharaoh's officers.
After being in prison for two years, the Pharaoh has a dream and is told of Joseph.
Joseph interprets the Pharaoh's dream.
Joseph foretells the famine.
Joseph is released from prison and lives in the Pharaoh's house.
The famine is worldwide, but Egypt has stockpiled corn.
All the countries of the world come to Egypt to buy corn.
Jacob sends Joseph's brothers to Egypt to buy corn.
Joseph is now governor of the land.
His brothers come and bow before him.
Joseph recognises his brothers but they not him.
Joseph accuses his brothers of being spies.
Joseph supplies them with food and returns all their money to them.
At an inn the brothers realise that Joseph has returned their money.
Joseph insists that his brothers bring Benjamin to him.
Israel sends all the brothers to Egypt.
All the brothers are taken to Joseph's house for a feast.
Again Joseph fills their sacks with food and also returns their money.
Joseph puts his silver cup in the sack of Benjamin, the youngest brother.
Joseph's stewards find the silver cup and accuse the brothers of theft.
Judah petitions Joseph, asking that Benjamin be allowed to return to his father.
Joseph weeps and makes himself known to his brothers.
Pharaoh commands the brothers to bring back to Egypt all their families.
They tell Israel that Joseph is alive, but Israel does not believe them.
When Israel sees the wagons that Pharaoh has given to them, he believes.
Israel and his entire family return to Egypt to see Joseph.
Joseph meets his father at Goshen.
Israel is given Goshen by Pharaoh.
When people run out of money to buy bread, Joseph sells bread in exchange for livestock.
Joseph buys all the land of Egypt, except the land of the priests.
Joseph gives the people seed to grow their own crops.
The people must give one-fifth of their crops to Pharaoh.
Joseph takes his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim, to Israel, where Israel blesses them.

Exodus

Israel prophesies to his twelve sons, then dies, aged 147.
Israel insists that he be buried with his ancestors.
Pharaoh allows Joseph to travel to Canaan for the burial.
Afterwards Joseph and his brothers return to Egypt.
The brothers think that now Israel is dead, Joseph may seek retribution.
Joseph reassures them.
Joseph dies aged 110 and is buried in Egypt.
Israel and his sons enter Egypt, each with his household.
Joseph is already in Egypt.
Their offspring multiply at an extraordinary rate until the land is filled with them.
A new king of Egypt becomes worried that the sons of Israel are growing so numerous.
The sons of Israel are oppressed.
The more they are oppressed, the more they multiply.
Eventually the Egyptians make the sons of Israel slaves.
The king of Egypt orders the Hebrew midwives, Shiphrah and Puah, to put to death any male child at birth.
Fearing God, the midwives disobey the Egyptian king.
Finally Pharaoh orders all his people to throw every newborn son into the River Nile.
A man from the house of Levi takes a daughter of Levi, and she becomes pregnant.
She conceals her son for three months.
She then places him in a basket, in the reeds, on the River Nile.
Pharaoh's daughter finds him, and realises he is a child of the Hebrews.
The child grows up and becomes a son to the daughter of Pharaoh.
She names him Moses.
Moses sees an Egyptian striking a Hebrew; he strikes the Egyptian down and kills him.
Pharaoh hears about it and tries to kill Moses.
Moses runs away to the land of Midian.
Moses meets the priest of Midian, who gives his daughter Zipporah to him.
Zipporah bears Moses a son, Gershom.
Moses becomes a shepherd.
While with the flock, Moses comes to Horeb. Here, an Angel appears to him in a flaming bush.
God speaks to Moses, instructing him to bring the sons of Israel out of Egypt.
Moses wants a sign that this is God.
God tells Moses to throw his rod on to the ground and it becomes a serpent.
God then tells Moses to grab the serpent by its tail, and it becomes a rod.
God gives Moses other signs, turning his hand into a leper's hand and restoring it and turning water from the Nile into blood.
Moses meets Aaron, his brother.
Moses returns to Egypt with his wife and family.
Moses and Aaron meet with the elders of the sons of Israel.
Moses and Aaron meet with Pharaoh and ask that the Hebrews may go into the wilderness for a festival.
Pharaoh refuses permission for the Hebrews to go into the wilderness.
Pharaoh makes the sons of Israel work harder.
The officers of the sons of Israel blame Moses and Aaron for this harsh treatment.
Moses promises to deliver the sons of Israel from this oppression.
Moses and Aaron again meet with Pharaoh; Moses is now 80 years old and Aaron 83.
Aaron throws down his rod in front of Pharaoh and it becomes a serpent.
The magic-practising priests of Egypt do the same thing.
Aaron's rod swallows their rods.
Moses meets Pharaoh on the bank of the Nile, strikes the water with his rod and turns the water into blood.
The magic-practising priests proceed to do the same thing.
Moses tells Pharaoh that unless the people are allowed to go into the wilderness, there will be a plague of frogs. Aaron waves his staff over the Nile and a plague of frogs come to land.
The magic-practising priests do the same thing.
Aaron strikes the dust of Egypt, and it all becomes a swarm of gnats.
The magic practising priests attempts to do the same but they fail.
Moses tells Pharaoh that if the people are not released into the wilderness, gadfly will infest every house.
Gadfly infest every house in Egypt.
Finally Pharaoh calls Moses and Aaron and tells them to take their people into the wilderness.
The gadfly disappear, so Pharaoh does not allow the people to go into the wilderness.
Moses tells Pharaoh that if the people are not released, a pestilence will strike every animal in Egypt.
Moses takes a handful of soot, throws it in the air, in sight of Pharaoh, and it becomes boils and blisters upon man and beast.
The magic-practising priests are unable to attempt to copy this because the boils are affecting them.
Moses again goes to Pharaoh and promises a hailstorm that will kill every man and beast in the field .
The next day, a storm of hail, thunder and lightning strikes Egypt.
Pharaoh now calls Moses and Aaron and release the people to go into the wilderness.
Once the storm stops, Pharaoh again refuses to release the people into the wilderness.
Moses and Aaron see Pharaoh and tell him that a plague of locusts will appear tomorrow unless the people are released.
Locusts covers all of the land of Egypt.
Moses stretches out his arm and darkness falls all over Egypt.
The firstborn of every family in Egypt is threatened with death.
Instructions for the feast of the Passover are given to Moses by the Lord.
At midnight, the firstborn of every man and every beast dies.
Finally Pharaoh tells the people to leave.
The exodus takes place.
The people of Israel reach the Red Sea.
A pillar of cloud by daytime and a pillar of fire by night lead them into the wilderness.
Pharaoh proceeds to give chase when he realises that the people are escaping.
When Pharaoh reaches the people they are camped by the sea.
Moses stretches his hand over the sea and it parts, allowing the sons of Israel to walk through the Red Sea.
The Egyptians follows them into the Red Sea.
Moses again stretches his hand over the sea and the water returns to its normal state, drowning the Egyptians.
Moses leads the people into the wilderness for three days; they reach Marrah, but cannot drink the water because it is bitter.
The Lord directs Moses to a tree, which he throws into the water and the water becomes sweet.
At the wilderness of Sin, the sons of Israel begin to murmur against Moses and Aaron.
Quails arrive in the evening, and in the morning the wilderness is covered in bread.
By collecting double bread on the sixth day, and resting on the seventh, the Sabbath law is observed.
The sons of Israel eat the manna for 40 years.
At Massah, Moses is instructed to strike a stone with his rod, and water comes out of the rock.

Leviticus

Numbers

The Amalekites attack the sons of Israel.
Moses instructs Joshua to choose men to go and fight the Amalekites.
Moses watches from the top of a hill.
When Moses lifts his rod, the Israelites are superior.
When Moses lowers his rod, the Amalekites are superior.
Moses' father-in-law, Jethro, along with his wife Zipporah, his two children, Gershom and Eliezer, and Moses' two sons, visits Moses in the wilderness.
Jethro advises Moses to appoint Judges.
Moses takes his advice.
The people go to meet their God on Mount Sinai.
The Lord calls Moses to the top of the mountain.
Moses then returns down the mountain to take Aaron back to the top with him.
Moses is given the Ten Commandments.
Rules on how slaves are treated, including 'eye for eye'.
Further rules covering theft, seduction, sorcery, bestiality, bribery and many more are given to Moses.
Three times a year the Israelites must celebrate a festival to the Lord.
Boundary of the 'promised land' is set, from the Red Sea to the Sea of the Philistines and from the wilderness to the river.
Moses goes up the mountain to receive the stone tablets.
Moses stays on the mountain for 40 days and 40 nights.
The people are instructed to build an ark of acacia wood, two and a half cubits in length, and one and a half cubits deep.
The ark must be overlaid with gold, both inside and outside.
The ark must have four gold rings, two either side.
The people must make two poles of acacia wood and overlay them with gold.
These poles go through the rings in order for the ark to be carried.
The poles must not be removed from the rings.
The commandments must be placed within the ark.
The people are instructed to build a tabernacle, with all its utensils.
The design of the garments to be worn by priests is given to Moses.
Instructions for the installation of priests are given.
Instructions for keeping the Sabbath are given.
When the Lord finishes speaking with Moses on Mount Sinai, he gives to Moses two tablets of stone.
The people are frustrated because Moses is on Mount Sinai for so long.
The people persuade Aaron to make a 'God' for them.
After melting down the people's jewellery, he makes a golden calf.
The making of the golden calf angers the Lord.
When Moses sees the golden calf, he is so angry he smashes the two tablets and destroys the golden calf.
Moses seeks out the loyal people and the sons of Levi gather themselves to him.
Moses sends the sons of Levi back into the camp to kill the sinners; they kill about 3,000.
Moses moves his tent outside the camp and calls it a tent of meeting.
Whenever Moses enters the tent, a pillar of cloud descends and stands at the entrance.
The Lord instructs Moses to carve out two tablets of stone and the Lord will rewrite the commandments.
The Lord will not allow Moses to see his face.
The Lord repeats the terms of the covenant between himself and the people of Israel.
Moses again comes down from Mount Sinai with the two tablets.
The people contribute gifts to the Lord.
Bezalel and Oholiab are selected for special teachings and wisdom.
The people begin to make the cloth and other finery for the tabernacle.
Once completed, the Lord's glory fills the tabernacle.
Instructions for offerings of animals and grain are given to the people of Israel.
All grain offerings must be seasoned with salt.
A young bull must be sacrificed for a sin of a priest.
A young goat must be sacrificed for a sin of a chieftain.
Other sins demand other offerings.
Even unintentional sins must be paid for with offerings.
The eating of fat or blood is forbidden.
Aaron and his sons are installed as priests.
Nadab and Abihu, sons of Aaron, make an offering to the Lord that was not prescribed.
Fire from heaven consumes both.
Instructions as to which animals and fish are clean or unclean are given.
Instructions for the purification of women are given.
Priests are to make leprosy tests; anybody with leprosy is declared unclean.
Garments worn by lepers are also unclean.
Instructions for offerings in the case of a cleansed leper are given.
Uncleanliness in the case of male and female discharges is explained.
Atonement Day procedures are given.
The laws regarding incest are given.
Similarly laws regarding sodomy and bestiality are given.
Laws regarding gleaning of crops are given.
Laws regarding slander, interbreeding, fruit trees and magic are given.
Similarly, laws regarding spiritism, respect of parents and adultery are given.
The law that priests are to be undefiled is explained.
Laws regarding Sabbath, Pentecost, Day of Atonement, festival of Booths and loaves of showbread explained.
The fiftieth year is to become a Jubilee.
The Jubilee year is also a year of restorations. For example, if a man sells his house, he must repurchase it in the fiftieth year.
Laws regarding the help to be given to the poor are explained.
Regarding the poor, money given must bear no usury or interest charges.
No idols or images of the Lord are to be worshipped.
The Lord explains the blessings that the people will enjoy if they keep his laws and commandments.
The Lord explains the chastisements that the people will suffer if they do not keep his laws and commandments.
Values are put on sanctifying your soul, animal, house, field, etc. to the Lord.
(Numbers is Bemidbar in Hebrew and means 'In the wilderness'.)
The Lord tells Moses to register every male over 20 years of age.
The Lord also names the assembly; all are chieftains of the tribes of Israel.
The tribes are registered for the army.
All are registered except the Levites.
Moses is told to appoint the Levites over the tabernacle and all the utensils.
When the people set up camp, each tribe must camp with its (three-tribe) division.

Each tribe is designated a place to camp, starting with the (three-tribe) division of Judah eastmost.
The other tribes are designated a place in camp working westwards.
The tribe of Levi must minister to Aaron, and must keep their obligation to him.
Moses registers all the male Levites from the age of one month upwards.
Each of the families of Levi are given a task to perform regarding the tabernacle and the utensils.
Following instructions from Moses, all lepers, persons with discharges and anyone unclean are sent out of the camp.
A water test is explained, to test for jealousy.
If a man or woman takes a special vow to live as a Nazirite, they must stay away from grapes, wine and intoxicating liquor.
Also during the time of living as a Nazirite, no razor should touch a hair.
The further rules of the special vows of living as a Nazirite are explained.
The wording of the Lord's blessing is given to Moses. It is: May the Lord bless you and keep you, May the Lord make his face shine toward you and may he favour you, May the Lord lift up his face toward you and assign peace to you.
Having had all the laws and commandments explained to him, Moses now anoints the tabernacle.
All the chieftains make offerings of grain and cattle, of silver bowls, of other animals, which Moses accepts.
These offerings continue for eleven days.
On the twelfth day an offering by Naphtali is made; this is the inaugural offering at the altar.
The Lord tells Moses to instruct Aaron to light the seven lamps.
Moses is instructed to take the Levites among the people and cleanse them.
Instructions for the cleansing are given.
The Lord explains to Moses the preparation for the Passover.
The Lord instructs Moses to make two trumpets of silver.
These are to be used for convening the assembly or breaking up the camp.
If one trumpet is blown, the chieftains meet with Moses.
If two trumpets are blown, the whole assembly must meet with Moses.
On the twentieth day of the second month, of the third year, the cloud lifts and the people begin to leave the wilderness.
Moses asks Hobab to join the people going to Israel, but Hobab says that he wants to return to his own people.
Moses pleads with Hobab, and he joins Moses and the people.
Some of the people begin to complain about being in the wilderness.
This angers the Lord, and He sends down fire.
The people begin to cry for meat and fish.
Moses asks the Lord for help, because he feels he cannot cope.
The Lord tells Moses to select 70 of the oldest men, take them to the meeting tent, and He will place some of the spirit on them.
The spirit also falls on Eldad and Medad, who were not in the meeting tent, and they begin acting as prophets.
A wind blows quails from the coast to the camp.
Those people who showed selfish craving are slaughtered by the Lord.
Miriam and Aaron begin opposing Moses.
The Lord tells Moses to take Miriam and Aaron to the meeting tent, where He will speak with them.
The Lord is so angry that Miriam is struck with leprosy.
Moses pleads for mercy, and after seven days in quarantine, she is allowed back into the camp.
Moses sends out a man from each tribe, each a chieftain, to spy out the land of Canaan.
After 40 days they return to Moses; ten spies give bad reports.
The people begin to rebel.
The Lord is very angry that the people do not respect Him; He tells Moses that He will strike them with pestilence.
Moses pleads on their behalf.
The punishment for rebellion is to remain in the wilderness for 40 years.
Some of the people decide to leave the camp without Moses and the ark.
These people are defeated by the Amalekites and Canaanites.
Moses is instructed to tell the people of Israel how they must render up burnt offerings on entering the promised land.
Moses is instructed to tell the people how they must atone for a sin by mistake.
Anyone who commits a deliberate sin must die.
A man collecting pieces of wood on the Sabbath is stoned to death.
Korah, Dathan and Abiram, together with 250 rebels, rise against Moses.
All the rebels are instructed to attend a meeting, each carrying a fire holder.
The earth swallows up Korah, Dathan and Abiram, their households and anything belonging to them.
A fire comes from the Lord and consumes the 250 rebels.
Some of the people still complain, so the Lord brings forth a scourge on them.
Moses tells Aaron to go among them and atone for their sins.
This Aaron does, and eventually stops the scourge.
This scourge kills 14,700 people.
A rod is taken from each of the twelve houses of Israel, placed in the meeting tent, and the Lord chooses one rod to bud.
Aaron's rod, for the house of Levi, has budded.
The Lord explains to Aaron the obligations of Levi.
Moses is instructed again regarding cleansing, especially regarding a man who dies in a tent.
The people move into the wilderness of Zin.
Here Miriam dies and is buried.
The people now have no water and reproach Moses and Aaron.
The Lord instructs Moses to strike a rock and water will come forth.
Moses strikes the rock twice and water enough for all the people and beasts comes forth.
These waters are called the Waters of Meribah.
Moses sends messengers to the king of Edom, to seek permission to pass through his land.
The king of Edom refuses.
The people turn away and travel to Mount Hor.
On Mount Hor, Moses strips Aaron of his clothes and places them on Eleazar (Aaron's son).
Aaron then dies.
The people weep for Aaron for 30 days.
The Canaanite king of Arad begins to attack the people and takes some captives.
The Lord intervenes and strikes down the Canaanites.
The people continue to trek around the land of Edom, but are not happy.
Some of the people rebel, so the Lord sends poisonous serpents among them and many die.
Moses is instructed to make a copper serpent and place it on a pole.
Anyone who was bitten by the serpents will look at the copper serpent and will live.
Moses sends messengers to Sihon, king of the Amorites, requesting permission to pass through his land.
Sihon refuses, and gathers his people and begins to fight the Israelites at Jahaz.
Sihon is defeated and the Israelites take possession of his land.
The Israelites now attack Og, the king of Bashan; they defeat him and take possession of his land.
Moab now grows very frightened of the Israelites.
Balak, the king of Moab, sends messengers to Balaam.

	Balaam refuses to help. Balak sends more messengers, more important messengers than at first. Balaam goes with them to Balak, but on the journey meets with the Lord's angel, which only Balaam's she-ass sees. Balaam beats his she-ass, and passes by the angel by walking in a field. The angel reappears at a narrow place; again only Balaam's she-ass sees the angel. Balaam beats his she-ass and he passes the angel by walking alongside the wall. The angel reappears at a place where he cannot pass by; the she-ass lies down in the road. Balaam beats his she-ass again. The Lord makes the she-ass speak. She asks Balaam, 'Why have you beaten me three times?' Balaam says that if he had a sword he would have killed her. The angel appears to Balaam and asks why he beats his she-ass. Balaam continues his journey to Moab. Balaam begins to speak the words that the Lord has put into his mouth. He orders Balak to build seven altars. He also orders him to provide seven bulls and seven rams. A bull and a ram are offered on each altar. Balaam refuses to help Balak. Balaam proceeds to utter four proverbial statements, all the word of the Lord. Balak is foiled. Israel abides in Shittim and the people begin to commit whoredom with the daughters of Moab. Israel joins himself unto Baal-peor and the anger of the Lord is blazed against him. The Lord tells Moses to take the heads of the people and hang them up before him. Zimri, a child of Israel, brings a Midianite woman into the sight of Moses. Phinehas, son of Eleazar, son of Aaron, pierces both the man and woman and the plague is scourged. The Lord tells Moses to vex the Midianites and smite them. After the plague the Lord tells Moses and Eleazar to take the children of Israel, from 20 years onwards, out of Egypt. Reuben and his descendants, numbering 250, are swallowed by the earth and become a sign. The sons of Korah do not die. Census is taken of eight more tribes and the land is divided. Joshua is appointed to succeed Moses. The procedures for various feast days and solemn days are established. Moses equips an army to slay the Midianites. The Lord speaks to Moses on the plains of Moab, by the Jordan at Jericho, and tells him to dwell in Canaan. The fifth book of the Old Testament is written in the form of a farewell address by Moses to the Israelites before they enter the Promised Land of Canaan. The speeches recall Israel's past, reiterate laws and emphasise that observance of these laws is essential for the well-being of the people. The title Deuteronomy derives from the Greek meaning 'copy', although the Hebrew translation means 'words'.
Deuteronomy
Joshua	The book of Joshua was written while the people of Israel were exiles in Babylonia. It can be divided into three sections, i.e. the conquest of Canaan, the distribution of the land and Joshua's farewell address and death. This book contains the destruction of the Wall of Jericho.
Judges	The book of Judges was written at about the same time as the book of Joshua and the Judges were the leaders of Israel. Noteworthy events are the death of Joshua and the birth and death of Samson.
Ruth	The central character is a Moabite woman who marries the son of a Judaeen couple living in Moab. Ruth moves to Judah with her mother-in-law, Naomi, and becomes the wife of Boaz. She bears Obed, the grandfather of David.
Samuel 1	Samuel anoints Saul as the first King of Israel and the book tells further of the exploits of his son Jonathan. The book continues with the story of David conquering Goliath and his great friendship with Jonathan. The book concludes with Abigail giving good counsel to David, Saul visiting the Witch of Endor, and the ultimate death of both Saul and Jonathan on Mount Gilboa.
Samuel 2	David is anointed king at age 30. He rules for a further 40 years. David commits adultery with Bathsheba, the wife of Uriah the Hittite, and plots his death so he can marry her himself. The Lord sends Nathan, the anointer of David, to reprove him for his deed by telling him a parable of a ewe lamb. The Lord takes the life of the first-born of David and Bathsheba as penance. David and Bathsheba soon have another child, Solomon, and he is loved by the Lord. David's son Absalom plots the death of his brother Amnon, for forcing his sister Tamar. Absalom is killed during the civil war and is mourned by David.
Kings 1	Zadok the Priest anoints Solomon as king. David eventually dies. The Lord appears to Solomon in a dream and grants a request and is pleased that he asks for wisdom. Solomon builds a great temple as a place of worship to the Lord and also a great house for himself. Queen of Sheba visits King Solomon and is impressed by his demeanour and they exchange gifts. Solomon's heart moves away from the Lord in his old age and he is told the kingship will be removed from his son. Solomon dies and is succeeded by his son, Rehoboam. The Lord's words come true as Jeroboam replaces Rehoboam as king of all Israel except Judah. The divided kingdom of Israel is eventually ruled by Ahab, son of Omri. Ahab takes Jezebel for a wife and sets up an altar to Baal in Samaria. Elijah the Tishbite informs Ahab there will be a drought and indeed no rain falls for 3½ years. Ahab tries to buy the vineyard of Naboth the Jezreelite but is refused. Ahab's wife Jezebel plots the death of Naboth to gain possession of his vineyard. Ahab is slain in battle with the Syrians.
Kings 2	Elijah is taken up into heaven by a whirlwind and is succeeded by his pupil, Elisha. Jezebel is thrown out of a window and killed. Elisha dies and is buried; a dead man laid on his bones comes to life. The Lord is incensed by the Israelites and removes them, leaving only the tribe of Judah. Nebuchadnezzar II, the king of Babylon, destroys Jerusalem.
Chronicles 1	The first book of Chronicles details genealogies from Adam up to and including the reign of David. The chronicler used the books of Samuel and Kings as his main source, although modifications were made.
Chronicles 2	The second book of Chronicles details the reign of Solomon to the end of the Babylonian exile. The chronicler has ignored the northern kingdom of Samaria.
Ezra	Ezra continues the history of Israel from the end of the Babylonian exile.
Nehemiah	The chronicler details the rising of the Persian Empire from its first king, Cyrus the Great. The chronicler continues the story of Israel in the time of another Jewish leader, Nehemiah, who was released from captivity in c. 444 BC, during the reign of Artaxerxes, king of Persia.
Esther	The rebuilding of Jerusalem is highlighted and the great wall is built. Esther is the Jewish wife of the Persian King Ahasuerus (Xerxes I). Esther persuades the king to retract an order for the general annihilation of Jews throughout the Empire. The book explains how the feast of Purim came to be celebrated by the Jews.

Job	The book of Job is written in the form of a series of speeches whereby Job disputes with three friends and the Lord. Job proclaims his innocence and injustice of his suffering while his friends (Job's comforters) blame his sin. Job personifies poverty and patience.
Psalms	The book of Psalms consists of 150 sacred poems, which are meant to be sung. Usually divided into five sections, i.e. psalms 1–41, 42–72, 73–89, 90–106, 107–150. The best-known psalm is no. 23, 'The Lord is my Shepherd'. Psalm 51 is often called the 'Neck' verse as its recitation would save the neck of those claiming Benefit of Clergy. Although the authors are of doubtful origin, 73 psalms are attributed to David.
Proverbs	Book of wisdom with moral and ethical relevance, in a similar vein to the book of Job but with more finite thoughts. At the start of the text the proverbs are attributed to Solomon but it is known that many of them were written after his time.
Ecclesiastes	Another book of wisdom, which takes a fatalistic view of life and asks man not to question God's love. Once again the book alludes to Solomon as being the author, but this is doubtful because of chronologies in the text.
Song of Solomon	Collection of love poems spoken alternately by a man and a woman. This book is the festival scroll for Passover, which celebrates the Exodus of the Israelites from Egypt. The authorship is unknown and Solomon's name was added at a later date.
Isaiah	The prophet Isaiah, son of Amos, reflects on the blasphemy of his people in the eyes of the Lord. Isaiah calls for a return to the worship of the Lord and talks of 'beating swords into ploughshares'. Isaiah talks further of peace and his vision of the wolf residing with the lamb. Isaiah's prophecy of the falling of Babylon comes true.
Jeremiah	The Judaeen prophet Jeremiah lived during the reign of King Josiah and his ministry lasted until the Babylonian conquest. Chapters 1–25 consist of prophecies against Judah and Jerusalem. Chapters 26–45 consist of narratives about Jeremiah and may have been composed by Baruch. Chapters 46–51 consist of prophecies against foreign nations and chapter 52 is a historical appendix.
Lamentations	The poems are laments over the destruction of Judah, Jerusalem and the Temple by the Babylonians in 586 BC. Lamentations is often called 'Lamentations of Jeremiah', although authorship is uncertain.
Ezekiel	The prophet Ezekiel was active during the first quarter of the sixth century BC.
Daniel	The book was written in exile and is valuable for understanding the lives of exiles in Babylon. Daniel interprets Nebuchadnezzar's dream. Nebuchadnezzar throws Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego into a fiery furnace but the Lord sends an angel to help them. Belshazzar holds a feast and Daniel interprets the writing on the wall, 'mene, mene, tekel, parsin'. The interpretation means that the Lord has numbered the days of the Babylonian kingdom and it is to be divided. King Darius reluctantly throws Daniel into the lions' den but the Lord sends an angel to help Daniel.
Hosea	The last twelve books of the Old Testament bear the name of the minor prophets and are sometimes known as 'the Twelve'. The first chapter is a biographical report of the prophet Hosea's marriage to Gomer, a harlot. A similar marriage is described in Chapter 3, which is thought to allude to the Lord's love for Israel.
Joel	Joel reiterates the concept that salvation will come to Judah and Jerusalem only when the people turn to the Lord.
Amos	Amos, a Judaeen prophet from Tekoa, was active during the reign of Jeroboam II. Most of the chapters form a collection of individual sayings and reports of visions. Much of the rest of the text is by way of a moral judgement on the rich and self-indulgent. The book ends with a promise of restoration for Israel.
Obadiah	Shortest book of the Bible, with one chapter of 21 verses.
Jonah	The book announces that the Day of Judgement is nigh for all nations and that Jews will be restored to their native land. The book of Jonah recounts the story of the prophet. The Lord calls for Jonah to go to the Assyrian city of Nineveh to prophesy. Jonah is concerned that the city will repent and be forgiven, and tries to escape his bidding. Jonah is caught in a storm at sea while escaping and is thrown overboard at his own request. The Lord appoints a great fish to swallow Jonah and he remains in the fish's maw for three days and nights. Jonah prays for deliverance and is vomited out of the fish and once again told to go to Nineveh. Jonah becomes angry as his fears of repentance are realised and he sits outside the city awaiting its destruction. A plant springs up overnight to give him shelter from the heat but it is destroyed by a great worm. Jonah is bitter about the destruction but the Lord chastises him for his care for a plant rather than people.
Micah	The Judaeen prophet Micah was active during the last half of the eighth century BC. Micah's threats and promises are a reiteration of many of the other minor prophets.
Nahum	The book is an oracle concerning Nineveh and is attributed to the vision of Nahum of Elkosh. The fall of the city of Nineveh is the theme of the prophetic oracle.
Habakkuk	Similar to the book of Nahum; it is written in a liturgical style and portrays a moral theme.
Zephaniah	The dominant theme of the book is the 'Day of the Lord', which the prophet sees as imminent due to the sins of Judah. The 'Humble' and 'Lowly' will be saved through purification by judgement.
Haggai	The book comprises four prophecies delivered over a four-month period in the second year of the reign of Darius I.
Zechariah	Chapters 1–8 contain the prophecies of Zechariah; the rest of the book is of unknown attribution. Zechariah was active from 520 to 518 BC and was a contemporary of Haggai. He shared the concern of Haggai that the Temple of Jerusalem must be rebuilt.
Malachi	Last of the twelve Old Testament books that bear the name of the minor prophets and, indeed, the last book of the OT. The book comprises four chapters, each in the form of a question-and-answer discussion. Malachi was probably written in the first half of the fifth century BC and its authorship is unknown.

NB The first five books of the Old Testament are usually called the Pentateuch, or Books of Moses. The contents of the first four of these books have been catalogued in the order that the events took place in the text of the Bible. The remaining books have important events highlighted but have no other great detail about them. The New Testament has been dealt with in a similar manner. The author does not wish to upset any religious denomination and it should be noted that texts can differ slightly from Bible to Bible. There are 39 books of the Old Testament and 27 of the New Testament, totalling 66 in all.

New Testament

Matthew	The first of the four New Testament Gospels recounting the life and death of Jesus Christ. Matthew, Mark and Luke are known as Synoptic Gospels, as they share a similar general view. The Gospel was composed in Greek c. AD 70 and is traditionally attributed to the Apostle Matthew the tax-collector. Chapters 5–7 describe Jesus's Sermon on the Mount, which includes the Beatitudes and the Lord's Prayer.
Mark	The Gospel is attributed to John Mark (Acts 12:12; 15:37), a disciple of Peter and associate of Paul. Mark is the shortest and earliest of the four Gospels and was probably used by Matthew and Luke to compose their accounts. More than 90 per cent of the content of Mark's Gospel appears in Matthew's and more than 50 per cent in the Gospel of Luke.
Luke	Luke was known as the beloved physician and was a close associate of the Apostle Paul. Luke gives details of Jesus' infancy and the Ascension as well as Caesar Augustus' census. Parables include the Good Samaritan and the Prodigal Son.
John	John was known as the beloved disciple of Jesus. John's Gospel covers a different time span than the others, concentrating on Jesus' ministry in Judea. John's account differs in that it does not record many of the symbolic acts of Jesus but rather portrays Jesus as God's son.

Acts of the Apostles	Acts was traditionally written by Luke, whose Gospel concludes where Acts begins, that is, with Christ's Ascension into heaven. The early chapters describe the descent of the Holy Spirit on the Apostles at Pentecost, which was the birth of the Church. Chapter 3 describes Peter's healing of a lame man and chapter 5 the death of Ananias for his false tongue. Chapter 7 describes the stoning of Stephen. Chapter 9 describes the healing of Aeneas by Peter and the conversion of Saul to Paul on the road to Damascus. Chapters 27 and 28 describe Paul's shipwreck in Malta and his successful teaching in Rome. The underlying theme is the spreading of Christianity to the Gentile world under the influence of the Holy Spirit.
Romans	The proper and full title of this book is 'The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the Romans'. The book was probably composed at Corinth in c. AD 57 and was addressed to the Christian Church at Rome. The letter is largely a morality and cautionary tale but is considered important in Lutheran teaching.
Corinthians 1	The proper and full title of this book is 'The First Letter of Paul the Apostle to the Corinthians'. Written c. AD 53 at Ephesus, Asia Minor, and addresses the problems of the early years of the Church. Paul begins his letter with a reminder that all are servants of Christ and stewards of the mysteries of God. Paul goes on to address questions of immorality, marriage and celibacy as well as the worthy reception of the Eucharist. In chapter 13 Paul explains that no gift of God has meaning unless accompanied by love.
Corinthians 2	The proper and full title of this book is 'The Second Letter of Paul the Apostle to the Corinthians'. Written c. AD 55 in Macedonia, possibly after an unsatisfactory visit by Paul to Corinth. Paul urges the Corinthians to assist the poor of Jerusalem and is gratified when Titus reveals their repentance.
Galatians	The proper and full title of this book is 'The Letter of Paul the Apostle to the Galatians'. In this book, Paul defends his credentials as a true Apostle of Jesus Christ.
Ephesians	The proper and full title of this book is 'The Letter of Paul the Apostle to the Ephesians'. Traditionally supposed to have been written while Paul was in prison, but this is doubtful. The text is in the form of an affirmation that there is one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and father of us all.
Philippians	The proper and full title of this book is 'The Letter of Paul the Apostle to the Philippians'. There is more evidence that this letter was written by Paul in prison (c. AD 62) than in the case of his letter to the Ephesians. His address to the Macedonian people was probably stirred by thoughts of his own mortality as he pondered execution.
Colossians	The proper and full title of this book is 'The Letter of Paul the Apostle to the Colossians'. Addressed to Christians at Colossae, Asia Minor, whose congregation was founded by Epaphras. The letter is in the form of a reminder of God's love and a call for repentance for their wayward ways.
Thessalonians 1	The proper and full title of this book is 'The First Letter of Paul the Apostle to the Thessalonians'. First letter was written after his co-worker, Timothy, returned from Thessalonica to report that the new converts were steadfast.
Thessalonians 2	The proper and full title of this book is 'The Second Letter of Paul the Apostle to the Thessalonians'. The second letter explains that the final day will not come until after the Antichrist appears and proclaims himself God. The book deals with Church administration and the growth of heresies.
Timothy 1	The proper and full title of this book is 'The First Letter of Paul the Apostle to Timothy'. The book deals with Church administration and the growth of heresies.
Timothy 2	The proper and full title of this book is 'The Second Letter of Paul the Apostle to Timothy'. The letter urges Timothy to 'guard the truth that has been entrusted to you by the Holy Spirit'. The letter urges Timothy to visit soon, although the writer believes he is 'on the point of being sacrificed'.
Ttus	The proper and full title of this book is 'The Letter of Paul the Apostle to Titus'. Titus was a close friend of Paul and was the organiser of the Church in Crete. The letter urges Titus to appoint worthy elders to positions of responsibility and to preach sound doctrine. The letter also warns against the disruptive influence of 'Jewish myths', especially those of the 'circumcision party'.
Philemon	The proper and full title of this book is 'The Letter of Paul the Apostle to Philemon'. The letter was written to Philemon, a wealthy Christian from Colossae, on behalf of Onesimus, Philemon's former slave.
Hebrews	The proper and full title of this book is 'The Letter of Paul the Apostle to the Hebrews'. The letter was addressed to a Christian community whose faith was faltering because of strong Jewish influences. The author concludes that Christianity is superior to Judaism.
James	The letter of James, a Christian Jew, is a moralistic reflection on early Jewish Christianity. The letter covers topics such as cursing, boasting, oaths, prayers, poverty and endurance under persecution.
Peter 1	The first letter urges persecuted Christians to emulate the suffering Christ in their distress. He reminded them that after his Passion and death, Jesus rose from the dead and is now in glory.
Peter 2	The second letter is principally concerned with the Second Coming of Christ. Peter also warns against false teachers, whose conduct is as immoral as their words are deceptive.
John 1	The John in question is the disciple John the Evangelist, son of Zebedee. His first letter urges the Christian community to repudiate heretical teachings.
John 2	The writer of both the second and the third letters calls himself 'presbyter', i.e. elder.
John 3	Addressed to a certain Gaius and complaining of Diotrefes, who lies to put himself first.
Jude	The letter of Jude, brother of James and a servant of Jesus Christ, warns against false gods.
Revelation	The proper and full title of this book is 'The Revelation of St John the Divine'. Attributed to John, the beloved disciple, and possibly written at Patmos in the Aegean Sea. The number 7 is used in a symbolic sense to represent totality or perfection. Chapter 6 describes the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse. Chapter 7 describes the 12 tribes of Israel, which were sealed 12,000 of each, totalling 144,000. Chapter 13 gives the number of the beast, i.e. 666. Chapter 14 describes the 144,000 virgins who will have their place in heaven.

Chemistry: General Information atom and molecule: difference atoms are the smallest part of an element that can take part in a chemical reaction; molecules are the smallest particle of either an element or compound that can exist independently and at the same time keep the properties of original substance, e.g. the smallest unit of water is the water molecule, which is made up of two atoms of hydrogen and one of oxygen.

atom: meaning indivisible.

chemical bonds there are two main types of chemical bonding, covalent and ionic, and two more specialised types, metallic and hydrogen bonding.

chemical groups there are various ways elements can be subdivided, the most common being metallic and non-metallic. Metallic elements, or their oxides, dissolve in acids to form positively charged ions called cations. Non-metallic elements can be further subdivided into the unreactive noble gases, the reactive halogens, and others.

chemical matter: three types compound, mixture or element.

chemistry: definition chemistry is the scientific study of substances.

isotopes atoms of a given element which have the same number of protons and electrons and the same chemical properties, but have a different number of neutrons in their nuclei, and consequently different atomic masses. Isotopes may be either stable or radioactive.

organic compounds all compounds that contain carbon. All other compounds are inorganic.

polymers polymers are long-chain molecules in which a group of atoms are repeated. They can be natural – e.g. cellulose, DNA, fats, proteins and starches – or artificial – e.g. nylon, polystyrene, polythene, PVC, and in fact all by-products of ‘plastics’.

states of matter solid, liquid or gas.

sub-atomic particles chemical properties of elements depend on the structure of their atoms, which are made up of three sub-atomic particles, protons (positive charge), neutrons and electrons (negative charge). Protons and neutrons are situated in the nucleus of the atom and the electrons orbit this nucleus. The number of protons in the nucleus of an element determines the atomic number used in the periodic table.

sublimation occurs when chemical matter changes directly from a solid to a gas without first melting into a liquid.

valency property of atoms or groups, equal to the number of atoms of hydrogen that the atom or group will combine with or displace in forming compounds.

Geochemical Abundances of the Elements

		%	Mohs scale of hardness
Lithosphere	oxygen	46.60	1 talc
	silicon	27.72	2 gypsum
	aluminium	8.13	3 calcite
	iron	5.00	4 fluorite
Hydrosphere			5 apatite
	oxygen	85.70	6 orthoclase hydrogen	10.80	7 quartz chlorine	1.935	8 topaz
	sodium	1.078	9 corundum
Halogens*			10 diamond
	fluorine	Noble gases†	helium
	astatine		argon
	bromine		radon
	iodine		krypton
	chlorine		xenon
			neon

* Mnemonic: Fab(r)ic all end ine.
† Also called inert or rare gases.

NB The table listing the chemical elements in alphabetical order contains the name of the person who discovered or first isolated the element. This may be different from the person who first prepared the chemical, e.g. chlorine was first prepared (from hydrochloric acid and manganese dioxide) by Carl Wilhelm Scheele in 1774 and was considered a compound until Sir Humphry Davy showed that it could not in fact be decomposed and that muriatic (hydrochloric) acid consists of hydrogen and another true element that he named chlorine.

Mathematics: General Information algebra method of solving mathematical problems by the use of symbols when figures are inadequate due to their size or unknown nature.

angles less than 90° = acute; more than 90° = obtuse; more than 180° = reflex.

Archimedes' principle states that any body submerged in a fluid at rest is acted upon by an upward force equal to the weight of the fluid displaced.

binary numbers Comparison of decimal and binary numbers (decimal first) 1 = 1, 2 = 10, 3 = 11, 4 = 100, 5 = 101, 6 = 110, 7 = 111, 8 = 1000, 9 = 1001, 10 = 1010.

books Euclid – Elements; Bertrand Russell (with A N Whitehead) - Principia Mathematica; Sir Isaac Newton – Principia.

calculus branch of mathematics that permits the manipulation of continuously varying quantities. Subdivided into integral and differential. Calculus (which is Latin for pebble) was independently invented by Gottfried Leibniz and Isaac Newton.

circle: parts of chord = a line that joins two points of a circle; diameter = the longest chord of a circle; radius = point from centre of circle to perimeter; sector = portion of circle between centre and two points on perimeter; segment = portion of a circle between a chord and the perimeter. Circumference of a circle = 2 x pi x the radius (or pi x the diameter); the area of a circle = pi x radius².

complex number number having a real and an imaginary part, e.g. 5 + 3i coordinates technical names for graph co-ordinates are abscissa (the horizontal x) and ordinate (the vertical y coordinate).

cylinder solid figure with straight sides and a circular section. Area of a cylinder = 2 x pi x radius x height + 2 x pi x radius squared. Volume = the area of the base x the height.

ellipse an ellipse is a closed conic section with the appearance of a flattened circle. It is formed by an inclined plane that does not intersect the base of the cone.

factorial the factorial of a number is the product of all the whole numbers inclusive between 1 and the number itself; the symbol is ! e.g. 6! = 1 x 2 x 3 x 4 x 5 x 6 = 720.

factors a factor is a number that divides exactly into another number, e.g. 6 divides exactly into 48 eight times; thus both 6 and 8 are factors of 48.

Fibonacci numbers sequence of numbers in which each number is the sum of its two predecessors, e.g. 1, 1, 2, 3, 5, 8, 13, etc.

game theory branch of mathematics used to analyse competitive situations whose outcomes depend not only on one's own choices, and perhaps chance, but also on the choices made by other parties, or 'players'. Modern game theory was created practically at one stroke by the publication in 1944 of Theory of Games and Economic Behaviour by the mathematician John von Neumann and the economist Oskar Morgenstern.

geometry branch of mathematics concerned with the properties and relations of points, lines, surfaces, and solids. Euclid's Elements, written about 330 bc, is the definitive origin of the subject.

hexadecimal system base 16, uses digits 0–9 plus letters A–F to denote numbers 10 to 15.

imaginary number the square root of –1 is denoted by the letter i, so i² = –1; real multiples of i, such as 3i, 2.3i, etc., are known as imaginary numbers.

line: definition a line is length without breadth.

logarithms system invented by John Napier whereby multiplication and division of large numbers are made simple by substituting the operations of addition and subtraction.

matrix set of numbers arranged in rows and columns so as to form a rectangular array. The numbers are called the elements, or entries, of the matrix. Term was introduced by C19 English mathematician Arthur Cayley, who developed the algebraic aspect of matrices.

mean in a series of values in a distribution the mean is the average value of all the values: e.g. in a series such as 1, 4, 4, 5, 7, 9, 12 the mean would be 6.

median in a series of values in a distribution the median is the middle value in order of size: e.g. in a series such as 1, 4, 4, 5, 7, 9, 12 the median would be 5. In an even numbered sample the median is the mean of the central two numbers.

mode in a series of values in a distribution the mode is the most frequently occurring value: e.g. in a series such as 1, 4, 4, 5, 7, 9, 12 the mode would be 4.

numbers chiliad – 1,000; myriad – 10,000; lakh – 100,000; crore – 10,000,000; billion – 1,000,000,000,000 (USA 1,000,000,000); googol – one followed by a hundred noughts; googolplex – one followed by a googol of noughts.

octal system base 8; uses digits 0–7: e.g. 31 in base 10 would be 37 in base 8.

parabola curve formed by cutting a right circular cone with a plane parallel to the sloping side of the cone.

parallelogram quadrilateral with opposite pairs of sides equal in length and parallel. When all sides are of the same length it is known as a rhombus. The area of a parallelogram is base · height.

perfect numbers perfect numbers are equal to the sum of all their factors excluding the number itself, e.g. 6, whose factors are 1, 2, and 3. The first five perfect numbers are 6, 28, 496, 8128, and 33,550,336.

pi (π) pi has been measured to many thousands of decimal places but to six places = 3.141592. It is a transcendental number.

polygons the sum of the interior angles = (2n – 4) x 90° where n = the number of sides. The sum of the exterior angles of any polygon = 360° regardless of the number of sides (an exterior angle of a polygon is the angle between one side extended and the adjacent side): e.g. triangle = 180°; quadrilateral = 360°; pentagon = 540°; hexagon = 720°; octagon = 1080°; nonagon = 1260°; decagon = 1440°; hendecagon = 1620°; dodecagon = 1800°; icosagon = 3240°.

polyhedron solid figure with 4 or more faces.

prime number a natural number (over 1) that has no proper factors, i.e. which cannot be divided by any natural numbers other than itself and 1 – e.g. 2, 3, 5, 7, 11, 13, 17 prism solid figure (polyhedron) with 2 equal polygonal faces in parallel planes, other faces being parallelograms. The volume of a prism = the area of either end · the perpendicular distance between the ends.

pyramid a solid figure whose base is a polygon and whose apex is joined to each vertex of the base. Therefore all its faces, apart from the base, are triangles. Any pyramid can be fitted inside a prism so that the base of the pyramid is one end of the prism, and the apex of the pyramid is on the other end of the prism. The volume of a pyramid on a rectangular base = ⅓ length x breadth x height.

Pythagoras' theorem in a right-angled triangle, the square of the hypotenuse is equal to the sum of the squares of the other two sides.

quadratic equation equation containing as its highest power the square of a single unknown variable. Formula is ax² + bx + c = 0, in which a, b, and c are constants and only the coefficient a cannot equal 0.

rational number number that can be written in the form $\frac{a}{b}$, where a and b are integers and b is not equal to zero.

Reciprocal (of a quantity) that quantity divided into 1; thus the reciprocal of 2 is ½.

rhombus diamond-shaped plane figure, a parallelogram with four equal sides and no right angles. The area of a rhombus = ⅓ the product of the diagonals.

simultaneous equations two or more algebraic equations that contain two or more unknown quantities and are simultaneously true, e.g. x + 3y = 6 and 3y – 2x = 4. The solution is to eliminate one of the variables by multiplying the first equation by 2 and adding the two equations to give 9y = 16.

sine in trigonometry, of an angle in a right-angled triangle, the ratio of the length of the side opposite the angle to the length of the hypotenuse.

sphere circular solid with all points on its surface the same distance from its centre. The surface area = 4 x pi x radius squared. Volume = ⅔ pi x radius cubed A little-known fact about the sphere is that the area of any zone of its curved surface lying between two parallel planes is exactly equal to the curved surface of the surrounding cylinder between the same two planes.

standard deviation in statistics, a measure of the variability (dispersion or spread) of any set of numerical values about their arithmetic mean. It is specifically defined as the square root of the arithmetic mean of the squared deviations.

tetrahedron solid figure with four triangular faces, i.e. a pyramid on a triangular base. The volume of a tetrahedron = ⅓ (the area of the triangular base x height).

topology branch of geometry which deals with those properties of a figure which remain unchanged even when the figure is continuously transformed. A famous topological problem was to prove that only three colours are needed to produce a map to give adjoining areas different colours.

transcendental number real number that is not a root of a polynomial equation with integer coefficients.

trapezium four-sided quadrilateral with two parallel sides of unequal length. The area of a trapezium = ⅓ the sum of the parallel sides x the perpendicular distance between them. To find the area three measurements have to be taken, i.e. the height between the pair of parallel sides and the length of both of the parallel sides. If a and b are the two sides the formula would be ⅓ (a + b)h.

triangle Three-sided plane figure; scalene triangles have no two sides equal; isosceles triangles have two equal sides and angles, equilateral triangles have three equal sides and angles. The area of a triangle = ⅓ base x height, however it is possible to calculate the area from the length of its sides using an Archimedean formula square root of (s(s – a) (s – b) (s – c)) where s = half the sum of the sides.

trigonometry branch of mathematics which solves problems relating to plane and spherical triangles.

vector physical quantity that has both magnitude and direction, such as velocity or acceleration of an object.

Venn diagrams diagram representing sets and the logical relationships between them. Sets are drawn as circles whose overlap contains elements that are common to both sets and thus represent a third set.

Base units
Quantity	Unit	Symbol	Definition
length	metre	m	1,650,763.73 wavelengths in vacuum of the red-orange light given out by the krypton-86 isotope.
mass	kilogram	kg	Mass of international prototype of the kilogram, at the Bureau International des Poids et Mesures at Sèvres, near Paris.
time	second	s	Duration of 9,192,631,770 periods of the radiation corresponding to the transition between the two hyperfine levels of the ground state of the caesium-133 atom.
electric current	ampere	A	That constant current which, if maintained in two straight parallel conductors of infinite length of negligible circular cross-section, and placed 1 metre apart in a vacuum, would produce between these conductors a force equal to $2 \cdot 10^{-7}$ newtons per metre of length.
thermodynamic temperature	kelvin	K	The fraction $\frac{1}{273.16}$ of the thermodynamic temperature of the triple point of water. The triple point of w-ater is the point where water, ice and water vapour are in equilibrium.
luminous intensity	candela	cd	The luminous intensity, in a given direction, of a source that emits monochromatic radiation of frequency $540 \cdot 10^{12}$ Hz, and has a radiant intensity in that direction of $\frac{1}{683}$ watts per steradian.
amount of substance	mole	mol	Amount of substance of a system that contains as many elementary entities (atoms, molecules, ions, etc.) as there are atoms in 0.012 kilogram of carbon-12.
Supplementary units
plane angle	radian	rad	The plane angle between two radii of a circle that cut off on the circumference an arc equal in length to the radius.
solid angle	steradian	sr	The solid angle that, having its vertex in the centre of a sphere, cuts off an area of the surface of the sphere equal to that of a square having sides of length equal to the radius of the sphere.

Physics: General Information

Avogadro’s law law stating that equal volumes of gases at the same temperature and pressure contain equal numbers of molecules.

Avogadro’s constant the number of atoms or molecules in one mole of a substance.

baryon subatomic particle that has a mass equal to or greater than that of a proton.

Bernoulli’s principle the principle that in a liquid flowing through a pipe the pressure difference that accelerates the flow when the bore changes is equal to the product of half the density times the change of the square of the speed, provided friction is negligible. Named after Daniel Bernoulli, Swiss mathematician and physician 1700–82.

Coriolis effect an effect whereby a mass moving in a rotating system is accelerated perpendicular to its motion and to the axis of rotation, which helps to explain why wind patterns are clockwise in the northern hemisphere and anticlockwise in the southern. Named after French engineer G G Coriolis 1792–1843.

Doppler effect phenomenon observed for sound waves and electromagnetic radiation, characterised by a change in the apparent frequency of a wave as a result of relative motion between the observer and the source.

entropy measure of the unavailability of a system’s thermal energy for conversion into mechanical work, often interpreted as a measure of the degree of disorder or randomness in the system.

fermion any of several subatomic particles with half-integral spin, e.g. nucleons.

Feynman diagram diagram of interactions between subatomic particles. Named after Richard Feynman, US physicist (1918–88).

Foucault’s pendulum pendulum which rotates in relation to the Earth’s surface and thus changes its plane in relation to the position of the Earth’s rotational plane. The pendulum swings in a clockwise plane in the northern hemisphere and anticlockwise in the southern, and on the equator would therefore be stationary. This mathematical effect explains the trajectory of moving objects through the air. Named after Jean Bernard Foucault (1819–68), who set up the first pendulum.

General relativity Einstein’s theory that the effects of acceleration and gravity were equivalent.

Heisenberg uncertainty principle principle that the momentum and position of a particle cannot both be precisely determined at the same time.

Latent heat heat required to convert a solid into a liquid or vapour, or a liquid into vapour, without change of temperature.

Matter: four fundamental forces interactions between matter can be explained by four forces.

1) Gravitational: weakest of the four forces, whereby masses mutually attract. Gravity is the force that holds solar systems and galaxies together.

2) Electromagnetic: force maintaining the magnetic field and the electron-nucleus structure of an atom.

3) Strong: about 100 times stronger than the electromagnetic force, it holds together the protons and neutrons within an atomic nucleus.

4) Weak: force associated with the radioactive beta-decay of some nuclei.

Matter: three fundamental states gas, solid, liquid.

Newton’s three laws of motion 1) A body will remain stationary or travelling at a constant velocity unless it is acted upon by an external force.

2) The resultant force exerted on a body is directly proportional to the acceleration produced by the force and takes place in the direction of the force.

3) To every action there is an equal and opposite reaction.

Pauli exclusion principle the assertion that no two electrons in an atom can occupy the same energy state simultaneously, or in other words, that no two fermions can have the same quantum number. Named after Wolfgang Pauli, Austrian physicist (1900–58).

Physics: definition physics is the study of the basic laws that govern matter.

Quantum theory describes the behaviour of particles within atoms and the absorption and emission of electromagnetic radiation by matter in its various states.

Schrödinger’s cat hypothetical situation whereby a cat is placed inside a box for one hour with a radioactive atom whose probability of decay is 50% per hour. If the atom decays a Geiger counter triggers a mechanism breaking a cyanide capsule and killing the cat. If the atom does not decay the cat remains alive. Quantum theory suggests that until the box is opened at the end of the hour, the cat is neither alive nor dead.

Special relativity states that nothing can exceed the speed of light, which is the same in all inertial time frames, and that all inertial time frames are equally good for carrying out experiments.

Thermodynamics: three laws 1) First law states that the total amount of energy in any closed system always remains the same.

2) Second law states that heat will always flow from a hotter object to a colder one and not the other way round.

3) Third law states that on approaching absolute zero, extracting energy from a system becomes increasingly harder.

Quotations

A young man married is a man that's marr'd.
From lowest place when virtuous things proceed.
I have an answer will serve all men.
Love all, trust a few, do wrong to none.
Oft expectation fails and most oft there where most it promises.
Our remedies oft in ourselves do lie which we ascribe to heaven.
Praising what is lost makes the remembrance dear.
The hind that would be mated by the lion must die for love.
The web of our life is of a mingled yarn.
There's a place and means for every man alive.
'Twere all one that I should love a bright particular star.

Précis of plot

Helen, the daughter of a poor physician, Gerard de Narbonne, falls in love with Bertram, son of her guardian the Countess of Roussillon. Helen uses her magic to cure the King of France and as a reward he brings about the marriage of Helen and Bertram. The marriage is doomed to fail when Bertram takes flight to the Tuscan wars, and it is only consummated when Bertram seduces Helen in the guise of the Florentine maiden Diana.

Age cannot wither her, nor custom stale her infinite variety.

If ever – as that ever may be near – you meet in some fresh cheek the power of fancy, then shall you know the wounds invisible that love's keen arrows make. If it be true that good wine needs no bush 'tis true that a good play needs no epilogue.

If thou remember'st not the slightest folly that ever love did make thee run into, thou hast not loved.

I had rather have a fool to make me merry than experience to make me sad. I must have liberty withal, as large a charter as the wind, to blow on whom I please.

It is a melancholy of mine own, compounded of many simples, extracted from many objects, and indeed the sundry contemplation of my travels, in which my often rumination wraps me in a most humorous sadness.

It is meat and drink to me to see a clown.

It is to be all made of faith and service.

It is to be all made of fantasy, all made of passion.

It is to be all made of sighs and tears.

Men are April when they woo, December when they wed, maids are May when they are maids, but the sky changes when they are wives.

Men have died from time to time and worms have eaten them, but not for love.

Most friendship is feigning, most loving mere folly.

Motley's the only wear.

My lungs began to crow like chanticleer, that fools should be so deep-contemplative, and I did laugh sans intermission an hour by his dial.

'No sir,' quoth he, 'Call me not fool till heaven hath sent me fortune' and then he drew a dial from his poke, and, looking on it with lack-lustre eye, says very wisely 'it is ten o' clock thus we may see,' quoth he, 'how the world wags.'

No sooner met but they looked; no sooner looked but they loved; no sooner loved but they sighed; no sooner sighed but they asked one another the reason, no sooner knew the reason but they sought the remedy.

O, how bitter a thing it is to look into happiness through another man's eyes!

O, how full of briers is this working-day world!

O Sir, we quarrel in print, by the book; as you have books for good manners. I will name you the degrees. The first, the Retort Courteous; the second, the Quip Modest; the third, the Reply Churlish; the fourth, the Reproof Valiant; the fifth, the Countercheck Quarrelsome; the sixth, the Lie with Circumstance; the seventh, the Lie Direct.

that, out of all whooping!

Speak, sad brow and true maid.

Sweep on, you fat and greasy citizens.

Sweet are the uses of adversity, which like the toad, ugly and venomous, wears yet a precious jewel in its head; and this our life exempt from public haunt, finds tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, sermons in stones, and good in everything.

The big round tears coursed one another down his innocent nose in piteous chase.

The fair, the chaste and unexpressive she.

The horn, the horn, the lusty horn is not a thing to laugh to scorn.

Therefore my age is as a lusty winter, frosty, but kindly.

The 'why' is plain as way to parish church.

This is the very false gallop of the verses.

Thou mak'st a testament as worldlings do, giving thy sum of more to that which had too much.

Time travels in divers paces with divers persons.

Truly, I would the gods had made thee poetical.

Truly thou art damned, like an ill-roasted egg all on one side.

Under the greenwood tree, who loves to lie with me, and turn his merry note, unto the sweet bird's throat, Come hither, come hither, come hither. Here shall he see: no enemy, but winter and rough weather.

Very good orators, when they are out, they will spit.

We'll have a swashing and a martial outside, as many other mannish cowards have, that do outface it with their semblances.

Well said: that was laid on with a trowel.

We that are true lovers run into strange capers.

Who doth ambition shun and loves to live i' the sun seeking the food he eats and pleased with what he gets.

Your 'if' is the only peacemaker; much virtue in 'if'.

Précis of plot
The story of the love between a high-born maiden, Rosalind, oppressed by her uncle Duke Frederick, who has usurped his elder brother's dukedom, and Orlando, the third and youngest son of Duke Frederick's enemy Sir Rowland de Bois, himself oppressed by his tyrannical elder brother Oliver. Sub-plots include the romantic liaisons between Touchstone and Audrey, Celia and Oliver, and Silvius and Phoebe.

Setting
The Forest of Arden (possibly Ardenne).

ADRIANA, wife of Antipholus of Ephesus
LUCIANA, her sister
NELL, Adriana's kitchen-maid

Quotations
A wretched soul, bruised with adversity.
The pleasing punishment that women bear.

Précis of plot
The Comedy of Errors is a true farce, in as much as the unlikely situations stretch the imagination of the audience. But the play itself is probably the most classically constructed of any of Shakespeare's works. The action all takes place within a few hours and revolves around the mistaken identity of twin brothers and their bondmen, who also happen to be twins. The audience are further tested intellectually by the long-lost brothers sharing the same names as do their servants.

Setting
Ephesus circa 14th century.

Précis of plot
Cymbeline is a tragicomedy full of intrigues and sub-plots, the most notable concerning the wager between Giacomo and Posthumus regarding the chastity of Posthumus' wife Innogen. The subsequent 'death' and awakening of Innogen are central to the events that happily conclude this fantasy.

Setting
Britain and Rome circa 1st century AD.

Quotations
A beast, that wants discourse of reason, would have mourned longer.
A certain convocation of political worms are e'en at him.
A countenance more in sorrow than in anger.
A king of shreds and patches.
Alas, poor Yorick. I knew him, Horatio – a fellow of infinite jest, of most excellent fancy.
A little more than kin, and less than kind.
A man may fish with the worm that hath eat of a king, and eat of the fish that hath fed of that worm.
A man that fortune's buffets and rewards, hath ta'en with equal thanks.
And then it started like a guilty thing upon a fearful summons.
And these few precepts in thy memory keep.
And to my mind – though I am native here, and to the manner born, it is a custom more honoured in the breach than the observance.
Angels and ministers of grace defend us.
Assume a virtue, if you have it not.
A was a man. Take him for all in all, I shall not look upon his like again.
Ay, springes to catch woodcocks.
Be all my sins remembered.
Beggar that I am, I am even poor in thanks.
Be somewhat scanter of your maiden presence.
Be thou as chaste as ice, as pure as snow, thou shalt not escape calumny. Get thee to a nunnery, go, farewell.
Beware of entrance to a quarrel, but being in, bear't that the opposed may be aware of thee.
Brevity is the soul of wit.
But I am pigeon-liver'd and lack gall to make oppression bitter.
But I have that within which passeth show – these but the trappings and the suits of woe.
But in the gross and scope of my opinion, this bodes some strange eruption to our state.
But, look, the morn, in russet mantle clad, walks o'er the dew of yon high eastern hill.
But soft! methinks I scent the morning air.
But that I am forbid to tell the secrets of my prison-house, I could a tale unfold.
Come, give us a taste of your quality.
Cudgel thy brains no more about it.
Cut off even in the blossoms of my sin.
Do not, as some ungracious pastors do, show me the steep and thorny way to heaven.

Though this be madness, yet there is method in't.

Thrift, thrift, Horatio! the funeral baked meats did coldly furnish forth the marriage tables.
'Tis now the very witching time of night, when churchyards yawn and hell itself

To be, or not to be; that is the question: whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, or to take arms against a sea of troubles, and, by opposing, end them. To die, to sleep – no more, and by a sleep to say we end the heartache and the thousand natural shocks that flesh is heir to – 'tis a consummation devoutly to be wished. To die, to sleep. To sleep, perchance to dream. Ay, there's the rub, for in that sleep of death what dreams may come when we have shuffled off this mortal coil must give us pause.
Unhand me, gentlemen; by heaven, I'll make a ghost of him that lets me.
Very like a whale.
We do it wrong, being so majestical, to offer it the show of violence.
We know what we are, but know not what we may be.
What, frightened with false fire?
What may this mean, that thou, dead corpse, again in complete steel, revisit'st thus the glimpses of the moon, making night hideous.
What's Hecuba to him or he to Hecuba, that he should weep for her?
What should such fellows as I do, crawling between earth and heaven.
When sorrows come, they come not single spies, but in battalions.
Whether in sea or fire, in earth or air, the extravagant and erring spirit hies to his confine.
While memory holds a seat in this distracted globe.
While one with moderate haste might tell a hundred.

Why, let the stricken deer go weep, the hart ungalled play, for some must watch, while some must sleep, so runs the world away.
Why, she would hang on him, as if increase of appetite had grown by what it fed on.

A fellow of no mark nor likelihood.
And such a deal of skimble-skamble stuff.
A plague of all cowards, I say.
A plague of sighing and grief, it blows a man up like a bladder.
Banish plump Jack, and banish all the world.
By heaven, methinks it were an easy leap.
Came there a certain lord, neat and trimly dressed, fresh as a bridegroom, and his chin, new reaped, showed like a stubble-land at harvest-home. He was perfumed like a milliner, and 'twixt his finger and his thumb he held a pouncet-box, which ever

Farewell, the latter spring; farewell, All-hallown summer.
He made me mad, to see him shine so brisk, and smell so sweet, and talk so like a waiting-gentlewoman, of guns and drums, and wounds, God save the mark! and telling me the sovereign'st thing on earth was parmacety for an inward bruise.

If reasons were as plentiful as blackberries.
In those holy fields, over whose acres walk'd those blessed feet; which fourteen hundred years ago were nailed, for our advantage, on the bitter cross.
I saw young Harry, with his beaver on.
It would be argument for a week, laughter for a month, and a good jest forever.
I understand thy kisses, and thou mine.
Let us be Diana's foresters, gentlemen of the shade, minions of the moon.
Look down into the pomegranate, Ralph!
O, the blood more stirs to rouse a lion than to start a hare!
Old father antic, the law.
So shaken as we are, so wan with care.
O, thou hast damnable iteration, and art indeed able to corrupt a saint.
O, monstrous! eleven buckram men grown out of two!
Tell truth and shame the devil.
There lives not three good men unchanged in England, and one of them is fat and grows old.
There's neither honesty, manhood, nor good fellowship in thee.
'Tis my vocation, Hal. 'Tis no sin for a man to labour in his vocation.
Two stars keep not their motion in one sphere
What, in thy quips and thy quiddities.
You rogue, they were bound every man of them, or I am a jew else, an Hebrew jew.

Précis of plot
The main plot tells of the rebellions against King Henry by Worcester, Hotspur and Glyndwr. However, the sub-plots highlighting the characters of the young Prince Hal and the reprobate Sir John Oldcastle (Falstaff) lend the real substance to the play.

Quotations
A foutre for the world and worldlings base! I speak of Africa and golden joys.
A joint of mutton, and any pretty little tiny kickshaws.
A man can die but once.
A rascally yea-forsooth knave.
An habitation giddy and unsure, hath he that buildeth on the vulgar heart.
Away, you scullion, you rampallian, you fustilarian! I'll tickle your catastrophe.
By my troth, captain, these are very bitter words.
Death, as the psalmist saith, is certain to all; all shall die. How a good yoke of bullocks at Stamford fair?
Even such a man, so faint, so spiritless, so dull, so dead in look, so woe-begone, drew Priam's curtain in the dead of night.
For my voice, I have lost it with hallowing and singing of anthems.
He hath eaten me out of house and home.
He was indeed the glass wherein the noble youth did dress themselves.
I am not only witty in myself, but the cause that wit is in other men.
I beseech you now, aggravate your choler.
I can get no remedy against this consumption of the purse. Borrowing only lingers and lingers it out, but the disease is incurable.
If I do, fillip me with a three-man beetle.
Is it not strange that desire should so many years outlive performance.
I know thee not old man, fall to thy prayers.
It was always yet the trick of our English nation, if they have a good thing, to make it too common.
Let the end try the man.

Précis of plot
The plot of the first part of Henry IV is continued, although there are subtle changes made to certain characters and the historical content is not so highlighted. Hal is still plagued with rebellions, albeit from different spheres, but his anxieties over Prince Harry's behaviour are eventually alleviated in a touching scene, and this change of character is shown to the full in Harry's rejection of Sir John after his crowning.

All hell shall stir for this.

Quotations

Could I come near your beauty with my nails, I'd set my ten commandments in your face.

Précis of plot

The original title of this play was The First Part of the Contention of the Two Famous Houses of York and Lancaster, and Shakespeare has stayed true, to a great extent, to this period of history, which includes the Kentish rebellion led by Jack Cade, and ultimately leads to the Wars of the Roses.

Setting

England 1445 to 1455.

A peace above all earthly dignities, a still and quiet conscience.
Cromwell, I charge thee, fling away ambition. By that sin fell the angels.
Had I but serv’d my God with half the zeal I served my King, he would not in mine age have left me naked to mine enemies.
Heaven is above all yet – there sits a judge that no king can corrupt.
He gave his honours to the world again, his blessed part to heaven, and slept in peace.

Love thyself last. Cherish those hearts that hate thee.
He was a scholar, and a ripe and good one.
Men’s evil manners live in brass; their virtues we write in water
So farewell – to the little good you bear me. Farewell, a long farewell, to all my greatness!
So may he rest, his faults lie gently on him.

Quotations

As Caesar loved me, I weep for him.
As proper men as ever trod upon neat's leather have gone upon my handiwork.
Between the acting of a dreadful thing and the first motion, all the interim is like a phantasma, or a hideous dream.
Beware the ides of March.
But for your words, they rob the Hybla bees, and leave them honeyless.
But I am constant as the Northern Star, of whose true fixed and resting quality, there is no fellow in the firmament.
But when I tell him he hates flatterers; he says he does being then most flattered.
But yesterday the word of Caesar might have stood against the world. Now lies he there, and none so poor to do him reverence.
Caesar said to me 'Darest thou, Cassius, now leap in with me into this angry flood, and swim to yonder point?' Upon the word, accoutred as I was I plunged in and bade him follow.
Cowards die many times before their deaths; the valiant never taste of death but once.
Cry 'havoc' and let slip the dogs of war.
Et tu, Brute? – then fall Caesar.
Fierce fiery warriors fight upon the clouds, in ranks and squadrons and right form of war.
For Brutus is an honourable man; so are they all, all honourable men.
For he will never follow anything that other men begin.
For I have neither wit, nor words, nor worth, action nor utterance, nor the power of speech, to stir men's blood.
Friends, Romans, countrymen, lend me your ears.
He reads much, he is a great observer, and he looks quite through the deeds of men.
His life was gentle, and the elements so mixed in him that nature might stand up and say to all the world, 'This was a man'.
How hard it is for women to keep counsel!
How many ages hence, shall this our lofty scene be acted over, in states unborn and accents yet unknown.
I am no orator as Brutus is; but as you know me all, a plain blunt man.
I am not gamesome; I do lack some part of that quick spirit that is in Antony.
If you have tears, prepare to shed them now.
I had rather be a dog and bay the moon than such a Roman.
Let me have men about me who are fat.
Let's carve him as a dish fit for the gods.
Lowliness is young ambition's ladder, whereto the climber upward turns his face; but when he once attains the upmost round, he then unto the ladder turns his back, looks in the clouds, scorning the base degrees by which he did ascend.
Now in the name of all the gods at once, upon what meat doth this our Caesar feed, that he is grown so great?
O judgement, thou art fled to brutish beasts, and men have lost their reasons!
O pardon me, thou bleeding piece of earth, that I am meek and gentle with these butchers!
See what a rent the envious Casca made.
Set honour in one eye and death i'th'other, and I will look on both indifferently.
There is a tide in the affairs of men, which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune.
There was a Brutus once that would have brooked the eternal devil to keep his state in Rome, as easily as a king.
This was the most unkindest cut of all.
This was the noblest Roman of them all.
Well, honour is the subject of my story. I cannot tell what you and other men think of this life; but, for my single self, I had as lief not be, as live to be in awe of such a thing as I myself.
When beggars die, there are no comets seen; the heavens themselves blaze forth the death of princes.
When love begins to sicken and decay, it useth an enforced ceremony.
Why, he that cuts off twenty years of life, cuts off so many years of fearing death.
Why, man, he doth bestride the narrow world like a Colossus.
Yet Brutus says he was ambitious, and Brutus is an honourable man.
Yond Cassius has a lean and hungry look. He thinks too much. Such men are dangerous.

Quotations
And my poor fool is hanged. No, No, no life? Why should a dog, a horse, a rat have life and thou no breath at all?
As flies to wanton boys are we to the gods, they kill us for their sport
A still soliciting eye, and such a tongue.
Blow, winds, and crack your cheeks! rage, blow, you cataracts and hurricanoes, spout.
Drinks the green mantle of the standing pool.
Fie, foe, and fum; I smell the blood of a British man.
Fortune, good night; smile once more; turn thy wheel.
Howl, howl, howl, howl! O, you are men of stones.

I have seen better faces in my time than stands on any shoulder that I see before me at this instant.
I have seen the day, with my good biting falchion.
I'll talk a word with this same learned Theban.
Ingratitude, thou marble-hearted fiend.
I tax you not, you elements, with unkindness.
Mastiff, greyhound, mongrel grim.
My cue is villainous melancholy, with a sigh like Tom o' Bedlam.
O, that way madness lies. Let me shun that.
Out-paramoured the Turk.
Poor naked wretches, whereso'er you are.
Poor Tom's a-cold.
So young and so untender?
Take physic, pomp, expose thyself to feel what wretches feel.
The gods are just, and of our pleasant vices, make instruments to plague us.
The little dogs and all, Tray, Blanch, and sweetheart see, they bark at me.
The prince of darkness is a gentleman.
These late eclipses in the sun and moon portend no good to us.
The wheel has come full circle.
The worst is not so long as we can say 'This is the worst'.
Things that love night, love not such nights as these.
This is the excellent foppery of the world; that when we are sick in fortune – often the surfeits of our own behaviour – we make guilty of our disasters the sun, the moon, and stars, as if we were villains by necessity, fools by heavenly compulsion, knaves, thieves, and treachers by spherical predominance, drunkards, liars, and adulterers by an enforced obedience of planetary influence; and all that we are evil in by a divine thrusting on.
This is the foul fiend Flibbertigibbet; he begins at curfew, and walks 'til the first cock.
Thou whoreson Z, thou unnecessary letter.
'Tis a naughty night to swim in.
Vex not his ghost, O let him pass.
You are not worth the dust which the rude wind blows in your face.

A jewel in a ten-times barred-up chest is a bold spirit in a loyal breast
Can sick men play so nicely with their names?
For God's sake let us sit upon the ground, and tell sad stories of the death of kings:

they have deposed; some poisoned by their wives; some sleeping kill'd; all murder'd.

O call back yesterday, bid time return.
Of comfort no man speak. Let's talk of graves, of worms and epitaphs.
Peace shall go sleep with Turks and infidels.
That which in mean men we entitle patience is pale cold cowardice in noble breasts.
The daintiest last, to make the end most sweet.
Things sweet to taste prove in digestion sour.
This must my comfort be: the sun that warms you here shall shine on me.

And thus I clothe my naked villainy, with odd old ends stol'n forth of holy writ, and seem a saint, when I most play the devil.
But soft, here come my executioners.	Richard Gloucester King Richard Richard Gloucester King Richard King Richard (last words)
High-reaching Buckingham grows circumspect.
Now is the winter of our discontent, made glorious summer by this son of York.
O coward conscience, how dost thou afflict me?
Slave, I have set my life upon a cast, and I will stand the hazard of the die. I think there be six Richmonds in the field. Five have I slain today, instead of him. A horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horse.
So wise so young, they say, do never live long.	Richard Gloucester Tyrrell Richard Gloucester
Their lips were four red roses on a stalk, and in their summer beauty kissed each other.
Was ever woman in this humour wooed?
Was ever woman in this humour won?
Précis of plot
In this play, Shakespeare demonstrates a more complete artistic control of his historical material than in its predecessors, and historical events are freely manipulated in the interests of an overriding design. The play chronicles the period of about twelve years before Richard’s reign, highlighting his bloody progress to the crown and his short two-year reign, culminating in his defeat at Bosworth.
Setting
England 1471 to 1485.

A pair of star-crossed lovers take their life.	Spoken by Chorus Mercutio Capulet Samson Mercutio
A plague o' both your houses.
For you and I are past our dancing days.
I do not bite my thumb at you sir, but I bite my thumb, sir.
Nay, I am the very pink of courtesy.

O happy dagger, this is thy sheath! there rust, and let me die.
One pain is lessened by another's anguish.
O Romeo, Romeo, wherefore art thou Romeo.
O then I see Queen Mab hath been with you.
Parting is such sweet sorrow.
See how she leans her cheek upon her hand. O, that I were a glove upon that hand, that I might touch that cheek.
Thus with a kiss I die.
True, I talk of dreams, which are the children of an idle brain, begot of nothing but vain fantasy.
What's in a name? That which we call a rose by any other word would smell as sweet.
When well-apparelled April on the heel of limping winter treads.
With Rosaline, my ghostly father? No, I have forgot that name and that name's woe.

Précis of plot
The play has three main strands. The first shows how a drunken tinker, Christopher Sly, is made to believe himself a lord for whose entertainment a play is to be presented. The second strand is the central plot of the play performed for Sly, in which the shrewish Katherine is wooed, won, and tamed by the fortune-hunting Petruchio. The third strand involves Lucentio, Gremio, and Hortensio, all of them suitors for the hand of Katherine's sister, Bianca.

Setting

Précis of plot
The central plot of The Tempest is one of witchcraft and connivance. The action takes place on an island after a shipwreck, as Prospero explains to his daughter, Miranda, how they came to the island, some twelve years earlier, and how the shipwreck has brought his enemies, Alonso, King of Naples, and Prospero's own brother, Antonio, face to face with their wrongdoings. The action takes place within a few hours, as in The Comedy of Errors.

Précis of plot
Tamora, Queen of the Goths, seeks revenge on her captor, Titus, for the ritual slaughter of her son, Alarbus; she achieves it when her other sons, Chiron and Demetrius, rape and mutilate Titus' daughter, Lavinia. Later, Titus himself seeks revenge on Tamora and her husband Saturninus, after Tamora's black lover, Aaron, has falsely led him to believe that he can save his sons' lives by allowing his own hand to be chopped off. Though he is driven to madness, Titus, with his brother Marcus and his last surviving son, Lucius, achieves a spectacular sequence of vengeance in which he cuts Tamora's sons' throats, serves their flesh baked in a pie to their mother, kills Lavinia to save her from her shame, and stabs Tamora to death. Then in rapid succession, Saturninus kills Titus and is himself killed by Lucius, who, as the new Emperor, is left with Marcus to bury the dead, to punish Aaron, and to 'heal' Rome.

Précis of plot
The war between Greece and Troy has been provoked by the abduction of the Greek, Helen, by the Trojan hero Paris, son of King Priam. Shakespeare's play opens when the Greek forces, led by Menelaus' brother Agamemnon, have already been besieging Troy for seven years. Shakespeare concentrates on the opposition between the Greek hero Achilles and the Trojan Hector. Shakespeare also shows how the war, caused by one love affair, destroys another. The story of the love between the Trojan, Troilus, and the Grecian, Cressida, encouraged by her uncle Pandarus, and of Cressida's desertion of Troilus for the Greek Diomedes.

Précis of plot

This play is based on Chaucer's Knight's Tale, on which Shakespeare had already drawn for episodes of A Midsummer Night's Dream. It tells of the conflicting claims of love and friendship between Palamon and Arcite, the Two Noble Kinsmen of the title, who, as in The Two Gentlemen of Verona, both fall in love with the same woman, but unlike the earlier play, decide to fight for their love. The play is sometimes not listed as a Shakespearian play, as there is a body of thought that believes it to be, at best, a collaboration with John Fletcher; unlike Henry VIII, their other joint work, it was not listed in the 1623 folio of Shakespeare's works.

Setting

Athens.

NB Shakespeare is generally credited with having penned 37 plays, but it can be argued that this figure could perhaps be just as easily 36, or 38, depending on the treatment given to the final two works, Henry VIII and The Two Noble Kinsmen. These plays are thought to be collaborations between Shakespeare and John Fletcher, although only Henry VIII appears in the First Folio of 1623. Therefore, when one is asked which was the last play Shakespeare wrote, it is true to say that it would be impossible to give an unqualified answer unless the question is very specific. The last play wholly credited to Shakespeare is The Tempest; the last play cited in the First Folio is Henry VIII; and the last play that Shakespeare wrote ignoring these two provisos is The Two Noble Kinsmen.

It should also be noted that as well as doubts as to the degree of Shakespeare's involvement in one or two of the plays, there are also doubts as to their chronological order. There is evidence to suggest, for instance, that Shakespeare's first play was probably not Henry VI Part 1, but, Henry VI Part 2. However, an answer of Henry VI would seem to be the most equitable solution to this one.

There are many films that allude to characters in Shakespeare but do not follow the plot closely enough to be included here. The Orson Welles film Chimes at Midnight is sometimes called Falstaff.

General Information

As You Like It	seven ages of man: 1) infant; 2) schoolboy; 3) lover; 4) soldier; 5) justice; 6) old age; 7) second childhood.
born	23 April 1564 in Stratford-upon-Avon. This may or may not be the actual date, but St George's Day seemed apt.
children	three: Susanna, Judith and Hamnet. Susanna born 1582, and twins Hamnet and Judith born 1585. Hamnet died in 1596, aged 11½. Susanna married Dr John Hall and Judith married Thomas Quiney. Shakespeare's line ended in 1670 with the death of Elizabeth, Susanna's daughter.
christened	26 April 1564 at Holy Trinity Church, Stratford-upon-Avon. chronicler	Francis Meres' Palladis Tamia listed Shakespeare's works up to 1598.
collaborators	John Fletcher and various others.
death	23 April 1616 in Stratford-upon-Avon. Shakespeare therefore, traditionally, died on his birthday, aged 52. There are no names on Shakespeare's gravestone, but these words: Good friend, for Jesus' sake forbear To dig the dust enclosed here. Blest be the man that spares these stones, And curst be he that moves my bones.
dedicatee	Shakespeare's family erected a monument in Holy Trinity church, Stratford, 1623. Henry Wriothesley, the 3rd Earl of Southampton, had the narrative poems Venus and Adonis and The Rape of Lucrece dedicated to him.
Falstaff, Sir John	based on Sir John Oldcastle, the Protestant martyr. Shakespeare was forced to change the name from Oldcastle to Falstaff after complaints from relatives. Henry IV Part 1 is here quoted using the original name. The original names of Sir John's associates Bardolph and Peto have also been listed in Henry IV Part 1 in their original form, i.e. Russell and Harvey.
father	John Shakespeare, a glover, wool dealer, and sometime Mayor; died 1601.

First Folio	John Heminges and Henry Condell produced First Folio 1623.
first play	Henry VI (see notes at end of plays).
great tragedy	the 'four great tragedies' are often listed as Hamlet , King Lear , Macbeth , and Othello .
home	bought 'New Place' Stratford in 1597 Bishopsgate, and also lived with a French Huguenot family called Mountjoy for a short while during 1604, at Cripplegate.
July: takes place in kin	Romeo and Juliet . William was one of eight children of which he was the third child and first son. Only three brothers and a sister survived infancy. William's brother Edmund was also an actor.
last play	The Tempest , Henry VIII , or The Two Noble Kinsmen (see notes at end of plays).
lines: most	Hamlet has the most lines spoken by any one character in a single play but is only third on the overall list if one takes into consideration other plays that a character may appear in. Richard III has more lines taking into account his appearances in Henry VI , but the most lines are spoken by Sir John Falstaff, if one considers that Shakespeare's folio of 1623 had by then changed the name of Sir John Oldcastle in Henry IV Part 1.
longest play	this can be contentious due to disputed passages, but taking the 1623 folio as the basis of the question, then Hamlet is longest followed by Richard III .
married	Anne Hathaway, a farmer's daughter, from Shottery, near Stratford, 28 November 1582. He was 18, she 26 and pregnant. Anne died in 1623.
mother	Mary Arden, from Wilmcote, Warwickshire; died in 1609.
sobriquet	Martin Droeshout's engraving of Shakespeare, first published on the title-page of the First Folio 1623, is one of only two likenesses of Shakespeare; the other is the bust of Shakespeare in his monument, designed by Gheerart Janssen. It is unclear whether these are true likenesses, as it was common practice of many artists to use stencils, and it is thought possible that Droeshout may have used a common stencil of the day, possibly that of Elizabeth I.
sonnets	given the criteria used for deciding the longest play, the shortest play is clearly The Comedy of Errors . the Sweet Swan of Avon, coined by Ben Jonson.
theatres	published in 1609 by Thomas Thorpe, and dedicated to 'Mr W.H.' The sonnets pertain to a young man, a dark lady, and a rival poet. Sonnets 1 to 17 exhort a young man to marry; Sonnets 1 to 126 are all about a young man; Sonnets 127 to 154 are about the dark lady; Sonnet 126 is not in sonnet form, as it has only 12 lines. Globe was built in 1599 on Bankside, south of the Thames. James Burbage founded the Lord Chamberlain's Company within the Globe and his son Richard Burbage was the principal actor. Shakespeare bought an interest in the Globe, and also a half share in the Blackfriars Theatre, in 1608, and from then on Shakespeare produced winter plays at the Blackfriars and summer plays at the Globe. The Lord Chamberlain's Men became the King's Men on James I's accession. Opposition to the King's Men came mainly from Edward Alleyn's 'Admiral's Men'. John Fletcher became chief dramatist of the King's Men after Shakespeare. Will Kempe was the leading comedy actor of the King's Men. Richard Tarleton was the leading comedy actor of the rival Admiral's Men. Forerunners of the Lord Chamberlain's Men were the Queen's Men. The Chamberlain's Men first performed at the 'Theatre', in Shoreditch, and then at the 'Curtain'. The Globe caught fire and was destroyed in 1613 during performance of Henry VIII .

First Lines of Shakespearian Sonnets

No.
1	From fairest creatures we desire increase	25	Let those who are in favour with their stars
2	When forty winters shall besiege thy brow	26	Lord of my love, to whom in vassalage
3	Look in thy glass, and tell the face thou viewest	27	Weary with toil I haste me to my bed
4	Unthrifty loveliness, why dost thou spend	28	How can I then return in happy plight
5	Those hours that with gentle work did frame	29	When, in disgrace with fortune and men's eyes
6	Then let not winter's ragged hand deface	30	When to the sessions of sweet silent thought
7	Lo, in the orient when the gracious light	31	Thy bosom is endeared with all hearts
8	Music to hear, why hear'st thou music sadly?	32	If thou survive my well-contented day
9	Is it for fear to wet a widow's eye	33	Full many a glorious morning have I seen
10	For shame deny that thou bear'st love to any	34	Why didst thou promise such a beauteous day
11	As fast as thou shalt wane, so fast thou grow'st	35	No more be grieved at that which thou hast done
12	When I do count the clock that tells the time	36	Let me confess that we two must be twain
13	O that you were yourself! But, love, you are	37	As a decrepit father takes delight
14	Not from the stars do I my judgement pluck	38	How can my muse want subject to invent
15	When I consider everything that grows	39	O, how thy worth with manners may I sing
16	But wherefore do not you a mightier way	40	Take all my loves, my love, yea, take them all
17	Who will believe my verse in time to come	41	Those pretty wrongs that liberty commits
18	Shall I compare thee to a summer's day?	42	That thou hast her, it is not all my grief
19	Devouring time, blunt thou the lion's paws	43	When most I wink, then do mine eyes best see
20	A woman's face with nature's own hand painted	44	If the dull substance of my flesh were thought
21	So is it not with me as with that muse	45	The other two, slight air and purging fire
22	My glass shall not persuade me I am old	46	Mine eye and heart are at a mortal war
23	As an imperfect actor on the stage	47	Betwixt mine eye and heart a league is took
24	Mine eye hath played the painter, and hath steeled	48	How careful was I when I took my way

49 Against that time – if ever that time come
50 How heavy do I journey on the way
51 Thus can my love excuse the slow offence
52 So am I as the rich whose blessed key
53 What is your substance, whereof are you made 54 O how much more doth beauty beauteous seem 55 Not marble nor the gilded monuments
56 Sweet love, renew thy force. Be it not said 57 Being your slave, what should I do but tend 58 That god forbid, that made me first your slave 59 If there be nothing new, but that which is 60 Like as the waves make towards the pebbled shore
61 Is it thy will thy image should keep open
62 Sin of self-love possesseth all mine eye
63 Against my love shall be as I am now
64 When I have seen by time's fell hand defaced
65 Since brass, nor stone, nor earth, nor boundless sea
66 Tired with all these, for restful death I cry
67 Ah, wherefore with infection should he live
68 Thus is his cheek the map of days outworn
69 Those parts of thee that the world's eye doth view
70 That thou are blamed shall not be thy defect
71 No longer mourn for me when I am dead
72 O, lest the world should task you to recite
73 That time of year thou mayst in me behold
74 But be contented when that fell arrest
75 So are you to my thoughts as food to life
76 Why is my verse so barren of new pride
77 Thy glass will show thee how thy beauties wear
78 So oft have I invoked thee for my muse
79 Whilst I alone did call upon thy aid
80 O, how I faint when I of you do write 81 Or I shall live your epitaph to make
82 I grant thou wert not married to my muse
83 I never saw that you did painting need
84 Who is it that says most which can say more 85 My tongue-tied muse in manners holds her still 86 Was it the proud full sail of his great verse
87 Farewell – thou art too dear for my possessing 88 When thou shalt be disposed to set me light
89 Say that thou didst forsake me for some fault
90 Then hate me when thou wilt, if ever, now
91 Some glory in their birth, some in their skill
92 But do thy worst to steal thyself away
93 So shall I live supposing thou art true
94 They that have power to hurt and will do none
95 How sweet and lovely dost thou make the shame
96 Some say thy fault is youth, some wantonness 97 How like a winter hath my absence been 98 From you have I been absent in the spring
99 The forward violet thus did I chide
100 Where art thou, muse, that thou forget'st so long 101 O truant muse, what shall be thy amends

102 My love is strengthened, though more weak in seeming 103 Alack, what poverty my muse brings forth
104 To me, fair friend, you never can be old
105 Let not my love be called idolatry
106 When in the chronicle of wasted time
107 Not mine own fears nor the prophetic soul
108 What's in the brain that ink may character
109 O never say that I was false of heart
110 Alas, 'tis true, I have gone here and there
111 O, for my sake do you with fortune chide
112 Your love and pity doth th'impression fill 113 Since I left you mine eye is in my mind
114 Or whether doth my mind, being crowned with you
115 Those lines that I before have writ do lie
116 Let me not to the marriage of true minds
117 Accuse me thus: that I have scanted all 118 Like as, to make our appetites more keen 119 What potions have I drunk of siren tears
120 That you were once unkind befriends me now
121 'Tis better to be vile than vile esteemed
122 Thy gift, thy tables, are within my brain
123 No, time, thou shalt not boast that I do change!
124 If my dear love were but the child of state
125 Were't aught to me I bore the canopy
126 O thou my lovely boy, who in thy power
127 In the old age black was not counted fair
128 How oft, when thou, my music, music play'st
129 Th' expense of spirit in a waste of shame
130 My mistress' eyes are nothing like the sun
131 Thou art as tyrannous so as thou art
132 Thine eyes I love, and they, as pitying me
133 Beshrew that heart that makes my heart to groan
134 So, now I have confessed that he is thine 135 Whoever hath her wish, thou hast thy Will 136 If thy soul check thee that I come so near 137 Thou blind fool love, what dost thou to mine eyes
138 When my love swears that she is made of truth
139 O, call not me to justify the wrong
140 Be wise as thou art cruel; do not press
141 In faith, I do not love thee with mine eyes
142 Love is my sin, and thy dear virtue hate
143 Lo, as a care-full housewife runs to catch 144 Two loves I have, of comfort and despair
145 Those lips that love's own hand did make 146 Poor soul, the centre of my sinful earth
147 My love is as a fever, longing still 148 O me, what eyes hath love put in my head
149 Canst thou, O cruel, say I love thee not 150 O, from what power hast thou this powerful might 151 Love is too young to know what conscience is 152 In loving thee thou know'st I am forsworn
153 Cupid laid by his brand and fell asleep
154 The little love-god lying once asleep

1174–1200	Gruffydd III (South)
1194–1240	Llywelyn II (The Great)
1240–1246	David II

Principality of Wales

1246–1282	Llywelyn III (ap Gruffydd)
1282–1283	David III

NB Although Llywelyn ap Gruffydd is invariably quoted as the last native prince of Wales, in fact it is true to say that his brother, David ap Gruffydd, was the last native prince of Wales. This confusion arises simply because England did not recognise anyone except Llywelyn as ruler. The Welsh would recognise David as their last prince, and the English Llywelyn. In 1301 the future Edward II became prince of Wales, and subsequently the eldest son of the reigning monarch has been given this title.

The High Kingship of Ireland

House of Ui Néill

445–452	Niall of the Nine Hostages

Aurelian	270–275
Tacitus	275–276	Turkish capture of Constantinople ultimately ended the Byzantine
Florian	276	Empire.

NB The names used in the above table are the ones familiarly adopted by history. The full names are complex and can be depicted in an imperial style or in Latin. It became increasingly impractical to rule over the whole of the Roman Empire and although the empire was not officially split until AD 395, many joint emperors divided their territories between east and west, with further subdivisions into Gaul, Britain, Illyria etc. To use the Diocletian tetrarchy as an example, Galerius, residing in Sirmium, administered Illyria, Achaea, and the Danubian provinces; Maximian, residing in Milan, administered Italy, Sicily, and Africa; Constantius I, residing in Trier, governed Gaul, Spain, and Britain; and Diocletian, residing in Nicomedia, watched over Thrace, Asia, and Egypt.

AD 69 is often referred to as the year of the four emperors but in AD 238 there were six emperors. Maximinus became the first soldier who had started from the ranks to become Roman emperor, he was replaced by the aged proconsul Gordian, who ruled jointly with his son. Gordian committed suicide on learning of the death of his son in a battle with Capellianus, governor of Numidia. The Roman Senate then proclaimed two elderly senators Balbinus and Pupienus Maximus joint emperors. The imperial guards murdered the Senate's nominees and the grandson of Gordian became emperor as Gordian III, at the age of 13. Valentinian II was proclaimed emperor in Budapest (Aquincum) at the age of 4, and ruled Italy, Africa, Illyricum, through his mother. He was found dead in his palace at Vienna, probably murdered by agents of Arbogast, the usurper in Gaul. In areas likely to confuse, I have added the administrative area in parenthesis. I have omitted usurpers such as Vetranio (abdicated in AD 351) and Procopius (reigned in Constantinople AD 365–6), as this would only confuse matters further.

SOVEREIGNS

General Information on Sovereigns of England and Great Britain

William I	Domesday Book of 1086 contained details of the land settlement of England and its purpose was to maximise the land tax yield. It received its name in the 12th century to signify that, like the day of judgement, there could be no appeal from its verdict. Hereward the Wake ('Watchful One'), a Lincolnshire squire, raided Peterborough Abbey in 1070 as a protest against William's appointment of a Norman abbot. He took refuge on the Isle of Ely and eventually escaped through the Fens. Bishop Odo of Bayeux was William's half-brother and it was he who commissioned the Bayeux Tapestry (embroidery). Of William's four sons, Robert became duke of Normandy and Richard died in infancy. William was Edward the Confessor's cousin by way of his mother Emma, who was the sister of William's grandfather, Count Richard II. Edward the Confessor was Harold II's brother-in-law by way of his marriage to Edith, Harold's sister. William's invasion forces assembled at the mouth of the Dives river in September 1066 but adverse winds prevented a due-north sailing to the Isle of Wight, so he regrouped at St Valéry on Somme and sailed on 27 September to the south coast of England and took Pevensey and Hastings. unchallenged. Harold was victorious against Tostig and Harald Hardraade at Stamford Bridge, near York, on 25 September and met William at the Battle of Hastings on 14 October. William only had about 7,000 troops but his archers won the day and, when Harold was killed, the English gave up.
William II	William was called Rufus because of his ruddy complexion. Malcolm III of Scotland (Malcolm Canmore, aka Great Head) became king of Scotland in 1057 on the death of Macbeth, who had killed Malcolm's father, Duncan, in 1040. He invaded England five times between 1061 and 1093 and was killed at Alnwick in Northumberland. Four of his sons succeeded him – Duncan, Edgar, Alexander and David. Traditionally William was shot by an arrow fired by a Norman knight called Walter Tirel, although many believe that William's younger brother Henry was the instigator.
Henry I	Henry was the only English-born son of William I. His brother Robert was paid a pension of 3,000 marks to resign his claim to the English throne and concentrate his attentions on Normandy, but in 1105–6 Henry was forced to make war against his brother's maladministration. Robert was defeated at Tinchebrai in 1106, and was kept a prisoner for life. In 1120, Henry's only legitimate son, William, was drowned on his way from Normandy to England in what is now known as the White Ship disaster.
Matilda	Matilda was pledged the throne in 1127 but Stephen became king in 1135. Matilda invaded the kingdom in 1139, landed at Arundel and established a stronghold in the West Country with her half-brother Robert of Gloucester. She captured Stephen at Lincoln and pronounced herself 'Lady of the English'. Her forces were defeated September 14 1141 while besieging the royalist-held Wolvesey Castle in what is known as the 'Rout of Winchester'. Robert Earl of Gloucester was taken prisoner and exchanged for King Stephen. Matilda was never crowned.
Stephen Henry II	Stephen usurped the crown by declaring Matilda illegitimate, as her father had remarried. Henry was the first Plantagenet king of England. He systematically destroyed the adulterine (unlicensed) castles which had sprung up during the reign of his predecessor. Henry's conflict with Thomas à Becket was over a written statement made by Henry at Clarendon, near Salisbury, on 30 January 1164 whereby he wanted the benefit of clergy to be lifted and have lay authorities try clerks taking holy orders. The English pope, Adrian IV, gave Henry authority over the whole of Ireland. Incited by Queen Eleanor, Prince John and Richard rebelled against Henry and their cause was espoused by the kings of France and Scotland. William the Lion of Scotland was taken prisoner at Alnwick and forced to sign the Treaty of Falaise, 1174, thereby swearing allegiance to Henry. Henry, the first son of Henry II, died in 1183 and his second son, Geoffrey, was killed in a tournament in Paris in 1185. Henry's mistress, the fair Rosamond, daughter of Walter Clifford, was said to have borne him two sons – William Longsword, earl of Salisbury, and Geoffrey, archbishop of York – but this is unlikely. Henry and his two sons were known as Angevin kings, and although Plantagenet was the other name for this royal House, subsequent members are not Angevin. To confuse matters further, although Richard II was traditionally the last king of the House of Plantagenet, the Yorkist Richard III was the last of the direct line. Henry's second son, Henry (aka FitzHenry), was crowned on 14 June 1170, to rule in association with his father, and was known as Henry III or Henry the Young King; he died of dysentery in 1183.
Richard I	Richard was given the Duchy of Aquitaine aged 11, and was enthroned as duke of Aquitaine at Poitiers in 1172. He departed for the Holy Land to fight the third Crusade in 1190. Richard made a truce for three years with Saladin but was captured on his way home by Duke Leopold in December 1192. He was imprisoned at the duke's castle at Durnstein on the Danube and then handed over to Henry VI of Germany. Richard was released in February 1194 after paying a ransom of nearly 150,000 marks. Richard left Hubert Walter as virtual ruler of England while he was away.
John	John became count of Mortain on Richard's accession in 1189. When Richard recognised his nephew, Arthur, duke of Brittany, as his heir in October 1190, John broke his oath to Richard not to enter England while he was away at the Crusades. Richard finally accepted John as his heir in 1196. John's first marriage to Isabella of Gloucester was dissolved on the grounds of consanguinity, both parties being great-grandchildren of Henry I. John's second marriage, to Isabella of Angoulême, was largely responsible for the loss of many French territories. Pope Innocent III excommunicated John in November 1209 because of his refusal to accept Stephen Langton as archbishop of Canterbury. The Barons' War of 1215–17 ensued after John sealed the Magna Carta of 15 June 1215 but did not abide by it. Magna Carta comprises a preamble and 63 clauses. The most famous clauses are (39), guaranteeing every free man security from illegal interference in his person or property, (40), which guaranteed justice to all, and (12), which stated that the king was not to levy taxes without reference to the 'common council'.
Henry III	Henry was 9 years old when he became king, so William Marshal, First Earl of Pembroke and Striguil, acted as his regent for the first three years, followed by Hubert de Burgh for the next eight years. Henry was forced to agree to the Provisions of Oxford, 1258, which created a council of fifteen barons and formed the first judicial Parliament. The civil war between Henry III and his barons, led by Simon de Montfort, was called the Second Baron's War (1264–7).

Edward I	Edward won great renown as a knight on the eighth, and last, Crusade of 1270 and did not return home for his coronation until 1274. He campaigned against Llewelyn ap Gruffud, of Gwynedd, and finally forced him into submission in 1276; and after his death in 1282 the principality was formally annexed to the English Crown by the Statute of Wales, 1284. In 1289 Edward betrothed his infant son to Margaret, the infant Queen of Scotland (Maid of Norway), in order to unite England and Scotland, but Margaret died the following year. Edward called the 'Model Parliament' of 1295 to allay discontent at home and the following year marched north, stripped John Balliol of his crown and carried the Stone of Scone back to England.
Edward II	He had a setback at Stirling Bridge in 1297, but the following year he trounced William Wallace at Falkirk. In 1301 Edward became the first English Prince of Wales. His favourite was Piers Gaveston, whom he made duke of Cornwall. When Gaveston was executed in 1312, Edward chose Hugh le Despenser and his son as his new favourites, and they aided in the overthrow of Thomas, earl of Lancaster, in 1321. Edward was defeated by Robert the Bruce at Bannockburn, 24 June 1314. Edward's wife, Isabella, despised him and took a lover in Roger de Mortimer. In 1326 she landed on the coast of Suffolk, executed the Despensers and forced Edward to abdicate on 25 January 1327, in favour of his son. He was murdered later that year in Berkeley Castle, Gloucestershire, probably by Isabella and Roger de Mortimer. Edward III was crowned in January 1327, eight months before his father died.
Edward III	In 1328 Edward married Philippa of Hainault and two years later put Mortimer to death and banished his mother to Castle Rising. Charles IV of France died without a son in 1328 and Edward claimed his kingdom by right of his mother, who was Charles's sister. He declared war against Philip VI in 1337, which was in effect the start of the Hundred Years War. Accompanied by his eldest son, Edward the Black Prince, Edward had a great victory at Crécy in 1346 and another at Poitiers in 1356, where it is said the Black Prince gained his spurs. Edward's mistress from 1366 onwards was Alice Perrers, his wife's lady-in-waiting, who let the government slip into the hands of Edward's fourth son, John of Gaunt.
Richard II	The Black Prince died in 1376 and his son by Joan, the Fair Maid of Kent, succeeded Edward III, as Richard II. Although a council of twelve was officially entrusted to govern during Richard's minority, in effect John of Gaunt was the regent. Poll tax of 1380 created national unrest and led to the Peasants' Revolt of 1381, when rebels under Wat Tyler took Rochester Castle in Kent and then marched on London with fellow radicals from Essex. Richard saw the Essex men at Mile End and made extensive promises, and the next day, 14 June, met Wat Tyler's men at Smithfield. Tyler was struck down by the mayor of London, William Walworth, in revenge for the atrocities of the previous day when the archbishop of Canterbury, Simon of Sudbury, was murdered. John of Gaunt died in 1399 and his son succeeded him as duke of Lancaster. Richard went to Ireland in May 1399 and on 4 July Henry, duke of Lancaster, landed back in England. Although Richard hurried back to England, he submitted to his cousin at Flint on 19 August and was put in the Tower. On 29 September 1399 he resigned the Crown in favour of Henry and he seems to have been murdered at Pontefract Castle, Yorkshire, early in 1400.
Henry IV	Henry was the first king of the House of Lancaster. His surname of Bolingbroke came from his birthplace in Lincolnshire.
Henry V	Henry defeated Harry Hotspur at Shrewsbury on 21 July 1403, when Hotspur was slain. Henry had Richard II's body buried in Westminster Abbey. Henry thought he had a good claim to the French crown through his great-grandfather, Edward III. Henry's famous victory at Agincourt was on 25 October 1415. In 1420 Henry became regent of France via the 'Perpetual Peace' of Troyes. Henry persecuted the Lollards, would-be Church reformers who had become the first group of English heretics to represent a political threat.
Henry VI	Henry was less than a year old when he became king of England, and on the death of his maternal grandfather, King Charles VI, he became king of France when just over 1 year of age. He was officially crowned king of England in 1429 and of France in 1431. By 1453 the Hundred Years War was effectively over, with England expelled from all France except Calais. Cade's Rebellion of 1450 was a revolt by Kentish gentry against the high taxes and alleged corruption in Henry's council. On 18 June Cade defeated a royal army at Sevenoaks and then marched on London. He was eventually killed attempting to evade arrest at Heathfield, Sussex.
Edward IV	Richard, duke of York, became protector while Henry VI suffered temporary madness in 1454. Richard had in fact a better title to the crown than Henry, as he was descended from Lionel, duke of Clarence, third son of Edward III. When Henry recovered, Richard refused to hand back the throne. He defeated Henry at St Albans on 22 May 1455, thereby starting the Wars of the Roses. Although in the ascendant, York did not claim the Crown until 1460, when he became Henry's heir, resulting in Edward Prince of Wales being disinherited. Richard was killed at Wakefield soon after but his son claimed the Crown as Edward IV, after his victory at Mortimer's Cross, and the second battle at St Albans. After a series of victories at Towton, Hedgeley Moor and Hexham, Edward married Elizabeth Woodville and the opposition to this family briefly restored Henry VI to the throne in 1470. Undeterred, Edward regrouped and with only 2,000 men, defeated the Lancastrians and killed Warwick at Barnet on 14 April 1471. Edward carried on to Tewkesbury and on 4 May 1471 his decisive victory and the death of Edward, Prince of Wales, effectively ended the Lancastrian resistance. Henry VI was killed soon after in the Tower of London.
Edward V	The 12-year-old King Edward V was escorted from Ludlow by Earl Rivers but Richard, duke of Gloucester, the future Richard III, intercepted him at Northampton, brought him to London on 4 May 1483 and was then made protector. In June, Edward's brother, Richard, duke of York, joined him in the Tower of London and they were never seen again. In 1674 some bones were found and re-interred as theirs in Westminster Abbey.
Richard III	Richard became duke of Gloucester in 1461. On the death of Edward IV on 9 April 1483, Richard became Protector of the Realm for Edward's son and successor, the 12-year-old King Edward V, whom he imprisoned in the Tower of London along with his younger brother Richard on the premise that Edward IV's marriage was invalid and therefore his sons were illegitimate. Richard was proclaimed king in June 1483. It is possible that Richard had a hand in the murder of Henry VI in the Tower of London on the night of 21 May 1471. Richard's chief supporter had been Henry Stafford, 2nd duke of Buckingham, but soon after Richard's coronation he entered into a plot with friends of Henry, earl of Richmond, the future Henry VII. The attempt failed and Buckingham was

Henry VII	executed. Henry landed at Milford Haven on 7 August 1485. Richard met him at Bosworth on 22 August, and there lost his kingdom and his life. He was the last British monarch to die in battle. Henry was the first Tudor monarch of England. His claim to the throne became definite on the deaths of Henry VI's only son, Edward, and Henry VI himself, which made Henry Tudor the last surviving male heir of the House of Lancaster. Henry's victory at Bosworth owed a great deal to his stepfather, Lord Stanley, deserting to him. Henry united the houses of York and Lancaster by way of his marriage to Elizabeth of York. In 1487 Lambert Simnel, the son of a baker, under the influence of a priest named William Symonds, claimed to be Edward Plantagenet, son of George, duke of Clarence. He was crowned in Dublin in 1487, but his followers were defeated at Stoke and Henry gave Simnel a job in his kitchens. In 1491 Perkin Warbeck impersonated Richard, duke of York, one of the princes presumed dead in the Tower. Warbeck invaded south-west England in 1498 but was caught by Henry and eventually hanged.
Henry VIII	The six wives of Henry VIII were: Catherine of Aragon (1485–1536), daughter of Ferdinand II of Spain and Isabella I of Castile. Married 11 June 1509, Chapel of the Observant Friars. Anne Boleyn (1507–36), marchioness of Pembroke, daughter of Thomas Boleyn. Married 25 January 1533. Jane Seymour (1509–37), daughter of Sir John Seymour. Married 30 May 1536, Queen's Closet, York Place, London. Anne of Cleves (1515–57), daughter of John, duke of Cleves. Married 6 January 1540, Greenwich. Catherine Howard (1521–42), daughter of Lord Edmund Howard. Married 28 July 1540, Oatlands. Catherine Parr (1512–48), daughter of Sir Thomas Parr. Married 12 July 1543, Hampton Court. Henry met Francis I in a field near Calais in June 1520, and although the display of friendship was short-lived, the lavish ceremonies became known as the Field of the Cloth of Gold. Henry accused Thomas Wolsey (1475–1530), Lord Chancellor England 1515–29, of high treason for failing to obtain the pope's permission for the king's divorce from Catherine of Aragon. Wolsey died on the journey from York to London and was succeeded by Thomas More (1478–1535), who was executed in 1535 for refusing to swear the oath to the Act of Succession and thereby denying papal supremacy. Thomas Cromwell now became Henry's most trusted aide. After arranging Henry's divorce from Catherine in 1533 he organised the dissolution of the monasteries, 1536–9, but was ultimately executed on a trumped-up charge of treason in 1540.
Edward VI	Edward was 10 years old when he became king and his uncle, Edward Seymour, duke of Somerset, acted as his first Lord Protector, followed by John Dudley, earl of Warwick.
Lady Jane Grey	Jane was married against her will to the son of the Lord Protector, John Dudley, earl of Warwick, who connived to put her on the throne because she was the great-granddaughter of Henry VII, through her mother Lady Frances Brandon, whose own mother was Mary, the younger of King Henry VIII's two sisters. Jane ruled for only nine days and was beheaded with her husband on 12 February 1554 after her father was found to be involved in the Wyatt Rebellion.
Mary I	Mary was known as Bloody Mary because of her policy of burning heretics.
Elizabeth I	After she lost Calais in 1554 she was reported to have said that when she died, Calais would be found writ on her heart. Elizabeth was linked romantically with Robert Dudley, earl of Leicester, and later in life with Robert Devereux, earl of Essex, whom she was forced to execute for treason. Two important conspiracies against Elizabeth were the Ridolfi Plot (1571) and the Babington Plot (1586), which ultimately caused the execution of Mary, Queen of Scots, in 1587. Elizabeth's chief minister for most of her reign was William Cecil, Lord Burghley. Elizabeth had a first-class intelligence network which was the envy of Europe; her minister in charge was Francis Walsingham.
James I	James was also James VI of Scotland (1567–1625), after his mother, Mary, Queen of Scots, was forced to abdicate. James's slogan was 'No Bishop, No King', which was used to reassure the people that Elizabethan Church settlements were to be maintained and that he believed the Anglican Church and the monarchy to be interdependent. The leader of the Gunpowder Plot of 5 November 1605 was Robert Catesby, and his fellow conspirators included Thomas Winter, John Wright and Guido/Guy Fawkes, all staunch Roman Catholics. The plot was against James's stance on religion, and the aim was to blow up him, his family and all the lords present. The plot failed when Francis Tresham, a newly enrolled conspirator, warned his brother-in-law, Lord Monteagle, not to attend parliament that day. James's parliament of April–June 1614 was called the 'Addled' because it was dissolved without passing any bills. Before he became king of England, James was thought to be having a homosexual affair with Esmé Stuart.
Charles I	The 'Main' plot of 1603 was an attempt to put Arabella Stuart on the throne. The 'Five Members' that Charles attempted to arrest on 4 January 1642 were John Pym, John Hampden, Denzil Holles, Arthur Hesilrige and William Strode. Charles's parliaments were: the 'Short', 13 April–5 May 1640, in which he demanded money for the Bishops' War against the Scottish covenanters, and the 'Long', in which Charles impeached Strafford and Laud and which ran from 1640 to 1660 but became the 'Rump' after Pride's purge of about 140 royalist MPs on 6 December 1648. The Bishops' Wars of 1639–40 were provoked by the attempts of Charles to impose Anglicanism on Scotland. The English prayer book was refused and episcopacy was abolished in Scotland. Charles summoned the Short Parliament in order to obtain supplies for the resumption of the war. After the 'Grand Remonstrance', whereby parliament voiced its dissatisfaction with the monarchy, and the incident of the 'Five Members', civil war was imminent and Charles eventually raised his standard at Nottingham on 22 August 1642. After the indecisive battle of Edgehill, 23 October 1642, Charles was forced to retreat at Turnham Green, London, and for the duration of the Civil War based his capital at Oxford. After many more indecisive battles, the formation of the New Model Army in February 1645, commanded by Fairfax and Cromwell, and the royalist defeat at Naseby, June 1645, spelt the end for Charles.
Charles II	James, duke of Monmouth, was the illegitimate son of Charles II and Lucy Walter. The incident of Charles hiding up an oak tree to escape capture occurred during the Battle of Worcester in 1651. General George Monk organised the restoration of the monarchy, and Charles entered London in triumph on his birthday, 29 May 1660, after issuing his Declaration of Breda promising a general amnesty and liberty of conscience. In 1678 anti-Catholic feeling was stoked to fever-point by the trumped-up revelations of Titus Oates about a supposed Popish plot to murder Charles. In 1683 the Rye House Plot was a conspiracy to murder Charles and his brother James, duke of York, as they travelled from Newmarket races to London past Rye House in Hertfordshire. Monmouth, Algernon, Sidney and several prominent Whigs were implicated.
James II	In 1685 the Monmouth Rebellion was crushed and Judge Jeffreys' Bloody Assizes followed. James was forced to abdicate because of his Catholic tendencies and was succeeded by the Protestant William of Orange.

William III	Aided by a small body of French troops, James invaded Ireland and made an abortive attempt to reclaim his throne, but was defeated at the battle of the Boyne, 1690, and returned to St Germain. William landed at Torbay on 5 November 1688, following an invitation from the ‘Immortal Seven’ noblemen to protect the Protestant religion. When James fled to France, William and Mary were declared joint sovereigns. Jacobite resistance was ended by the battles of Killiecrankie, July 1689, and the Boyne, 1690. William died after his horse stumbled at seeing a mole run out from his hill, causing him to fall and break his right collarbone. Complications set in when William caught an infection and he died on 8 March 1702.
Anne	Only one of Anne’s children survived infancy, William, duke of Gloucester, who died in 1700 at the age of 12. Sarah Churchill, later duchess of Marlborough, was the lifelong friend and confidante of Anne, and when corresponding they often used the names Mrs Freeman and Mrs Morley. Sarah Churchill’s cousin, Abigail Masham, née Hill, later became Anne’s favourite.
George I	In 1704 a fund was set up by Anne for the benefit of the poorer clergy and this ‘Queen Anne’s Bounty’ was amalgamated into the Church Commissioners when it was set up in 1948. The Act of Settlement of 1701 ensured the Crown for George. George married his cousin Sophia Dorothea of Zell in 1682, but divorced her in 1694 for adultery with a Swedish nobleman and kept her imprisoned in the castle of Ahlden until her death in 1726. The ‘15’ rebellion (1715) was an attempt by Jacobites to put James Edward Stuart, the Old Pretender (son of James II and Mary of Modena), on the throne.
George II	George’s unpopularity was not helped by the fact that he never learnt to speak fluently in English. George was the last British sovereign to lead an army into battle, in 1743 at Dettingen, which he won. The ‘45’ rebellion (1745) was an attempt to put Charles Edward Stuart, the Young Pretender (son of James Edward Stuart), on the British throne. It was ruthlessly put down by William Augustus, the duke of Cumberland, the second son of George, at Culloden.
George III	George is said to have had a child by Hannah Lightfoot, a Quaker, and it is possible he even married her, although this is extremely doubtful.
George IV	George had long periods of insanity and the Prince of Wales, later George IV, was appointed Regent from 1811 onwards.
William IV	George had a much-publicised affair with an actress, Mrs Robinson, when aged 18; his ceremony of marriage with Mrs Maria Fitzherbert, when aged 23, was deemed unlawful in England.
Victoria	William was called the Sailor King. He lived with an actress, Dorothy Jordan, from 1790 to 1811 and she bore him ten children. Under Salic law, Victoria could not claim her dominion over Hanover, and this title passed to her uncle, Ernest Augustus, duke of Cumberland. She became Empress of India in 1876, although officially this title was conferred on her on 1 January 1877. Victoria published Leaves from the Journal of our Life in the Highlands (1869) and More Leaves (1884).
Edward VII	Victoria was the first monarch to live in Buckingham Palace. Edward’s Christian name was Albert but he used his second name in deference to Queen Victoria.
George V	Edward was cited in a divorce scandal of 1870.
Edward VIII	George instigated the monarch’s Christmas Day broadcasts to the nation in 1932.
George VI	Abdicated to marry a divorcee and became Governor of the Bahamas in WW2. George was a keen tennis player and played in the Wimbledon Championships of 1926. He substituted the title of Head of the Commonwealth for Emperor of India in 1947.
Elizabeth II	George’s Christian name was Albert but he used his fourth name in deference to Queen Victoria. On 13 June 1996, Elizabeth II had ruled longer than Elizabeth I. Elizabeth was in Kenya when she heard she was Queen. The Queen’s actual birthday is 21 April; her official birthday falls on the second Saturday in June.

County Championship officially constituted in 1890, although counties existed prior to that date and claimed a sort of unofficial title. The 1890 championship was contested by eight counties, Gloucestershire, Kent, Lancashire, Middlesex, Nottinghamshire, Surrey, Sussex, and Yorkshire. The title was won in 1890, and the following two seasons, by Surrey. The sponsors since the 2002 season are Liverpool Victoria, branded under their affinity name of Frizzell until 2005 and currently branded as LV. Previous sponsors were Schweppes (1977–83), Britannic Assurance (1984–98), PPP Healthcare (1999–2000) and Cricinfo (2001). The only two counties to join the championship since World War One are Glamorgan (1921) and Durham (1992). The County Championship was split into two divisions each of nine teams from the 2000 season onwards. Teams are awarded 16pts for a win, 8pts for a tie and 3pts for a draw. Bonus pts are awarded thus: Batting - 200-249 runs: 1pt, 250-299 runs: 2 pts, 300-349 runs: 3 pts, 350-399 runs: 4 pts, 400+ runs: 5 pts; Bowling - 3-5 wickets taken: 1 pt, 6-8 wickets taken: 2 pts, 9-10 wickets taken: 3 pts.

NB The European Cup was established in 1955 and was contested by the respective League champions of the member countries of the Union of European Football Associations (UEFA).

In recent seasons, clubs finishing second, third and fourth in the League of those countries with the highest UEFA points coefficients can qualify for the European Champions Cup.

From 1992/3 season the European Cup changed its format to include a qualifying competition, two group stages and a final knockout phase of quarter-finals, semi-finals, played over two legs, and a single-match final. Since 2003/4 there has been a single group stage, with 16 clubs advancing to the knockout phase. The competition since the rule changes is more properly called the UEFA Champions League.

NB This is far from being an exhaustive listing of sporting terminology. Dictionaries of terms are available on many individual sports and so it would be impossible to catalogue all known terms. What I have tried to do is give a good cross-section of technical terms over many sports. I should also point out that some terms will relate to other sports, e.g. billiards-based sports or running ball sports.

Other Sports: World’s Strongest Man

The World’s Strongest Man competition has been covered by BBC Television almost since the beginning and is based on all aspects of strength and not just the lifting of weights, although most of the very best competitors have also been champion weight-lifters. Geoff Capes of Great Britain ushered in a new breed of athlete: not only very large but also very fit and very quick. The competitions have had many great personalities over the years, from the great bullish Kazmaier to the very extrovert Sigmarsson (sadly no longer with us), with his ‘Viking’ chant, and of course the other great Icelander Magnusson. Zydrunas Savickas lays claim to be the strongest man that ever lived.

Other Sports: The Superstars

The World Superstars competition ran for six years on the BBC and made stars of athletes such as Brian Budd, who treated the competition with the same professional approach as his own sport of soccer. Although Brian Hooper won the last of the competitions, the domestic Superstars was won by fine athletes such as Lynn Davies, Andy Ripley, John Conteh, David Hemery, Keith Fielding, and the most famous of all, judo player Brian Jacks, he of the dip-bar records. And who can ever forget the painful demise of Kevin Keegan on a bike. Austin Healey won the 2001 one-off special. The BBC resurrected the British version in 2003, athlete Duaine Ladejo having a comfortable victory. The series was axed again after the next competition in 2005, won by skier Alain Baxter after a close battle with Ladejo. The champions are listed together with their original sport.

bingo calls	The origins of Bingo can be traced back to Italy in the year 1530, when a State-run lottery game Lo Giuoco del Lotto d'Italia was originated. 'Le Lotto' migrated to France in the late 1700s in a form similar to the Bingo we know today, with a playing card, tokens and numbers read aloud. Throughout the 1800s these lottery type of games spread quickly throughout Europe and many offshoots of the game were created. In 1929, a game called 'Beano' was played at a carnival near Atlanta, Georgia. A New York toy salesman named Edwin Lowe observed the game, where players exclaimed 'BEANO!' if they filled a line of numbers on their card. Lowe introduced the game to his friends and one of them mistakenly yelled 'BINGO!' in her excitement . 'Lowe's Bingo' was soon very popular and the name stuck. 1 Kelly's eye, Buttered scone, At the beginning, Little Jimmy, Nelson's column, B1 Baby of bingo 2 One little duck, Baby's done it, Doctor Who, Me and you, Little boy blue 3 Dearie me, I'm free, Debbie McGee, You and me, Goodness me, One little flea, Cup of tea 4 The one next door, On the floor, Knock at the door, B4 Crowd says 'and after' 5 Man alive, Jack's alive, Dead alive 6 Tom Mix, Tom's tricks, Chopsticks 7 Lucky seven, God's in heaven, One little crutch 8 Garden gate, Golden gate, Harry Tate, One fat lady 9 Doctor's orders 10 Downing street (UK prime minister's address), Cock and hen (rhyming), Uncle Ben (rhyming), Tony's Den (or whoever is the PM of the day) 11 Legs eleven, Legs – they're lovely, Kelly's Legs Number eleven 12 One dozen, One and two – a dozen, Monkey's cousin (rhymes with 'a dozen') 13 Unlucky for some, Devil's number, Baker's dozen 14 Valentine's day 15 Rugby team, Young and keen 16 Sweet sixteen, She's lovely, Never been kissed 17 Often been kissed, Old Ireland, Dancing queen, The age to catch 'em 18 Key of the door, Now you can vote, Coming of age 19 Goodbye teens 20 One score, Getting plenty, Blind 20 21 Royal salute, Key of the door 22 Two little ducks (suggesting the necks of two swans), Ducks on a pond, Dinky doo, All the twos digital television: advantages Traditional broadcasting is based on electronic signals that rise and fall to represent the shades of black, white and colour in the TV picture. The continuously varying signal is a direct analogue of the image it represents, just as the variations in the grooves of an LP, picked up by the stylus, are an analogue of the music. Analogue broadcasting is spendthrift in its use of the radio spectrum. There is a limited range of frequencies that can be used for TV transmissions, and each analogue station needs a healthy chunk of that space (approx 8 megahertz). Transmitters using the same frequency must be a long way apart, otherwise they interfere with one another, so transmitters closer than a few hundred kilometres to each other must employ different frequencies. As a result, it takes 44 frequencies in the UHF band to provide the four terrestrial channels. Digital broadcasting alters the rules. Instead of representing the image by a continuously variable signal, digital TV encodes it in the same language used by computers, a long stream of binary digits, or ‘bits’, each of which is either 0 or 1, a pulse or a non-pulse. It takes an enormous number of such bits to encode a TV picture, but it is easier to distinguish a pulse from a non-pulse than it is to discern the varying waveform of an analogue signal. This means that transmitters can be run at a much lower signal strength and still provide a decent picture. This in turn reduces the interference problem for terrestrial broadcasters so that better use can be made of the available frequencies, and picture quality is greatly improved. A full TV picture requires about 216 million bits per second but only the changes from one picture to the next are encoded so as to enable the data to fit into the frequency band

Vehicle Number Plates

A new registration mark system was introduced on 1 September 2001. The new plates will comprise seven characters: the first two letters to denote the registered office; the next two a numeric age identifier; the final three letters a random element to differentiate vehicles. The age identifier will be subject to change every six months. The tables are reproduced below and the example given by the DVLA is as follows: BD51 SMR where BD indicates the vehicle was registered in the Birmingham office and the 51 indicates a registration date between Sept 2001 and Feb 2002. The typeface was also standardised from 1 September 2001 and only regular block capitals are now allowable.

Squirrel Sir Humphrey Gilbert’s ship used during the attack by the Spanish Armada (1588).

Temeraire 98-gun ship launched in 1798; fought at Trafalgar; broken up on the Thames 1838 and immortalised on canvas by Turner.

Tiger the ship used by Harold Wilson and Ian Smith during their UDI discussions (1966).

Tirpitz German battleship sunk by RAF bombers in April 1944.

Trincomalee built 1817, renamed Foudroyant in 1892 and a training ship in Portsmouth Harbour until 1987 when she was towed to Hartlepool for restoration and given back her original name.

Vanguard iron-hulled frigate accidentally rammed and sunk by her sister ship Iron Duke in 1875.

Vanguard Britain’s largest battleship. Decommis-sioned 1960 and ran aground on leaving Portsmouth to be scrapped.

Vasa flagship of Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden. Sank in harbour in 1628; recovered intact from seabed and now on display.

Victoria launched 1859; last wooden battleship built for the Royal Navy. Paid off 1867; name used by British battleship of 1887 which sank off Tripoli in 1893 when flagship of Admiral George Tryon. It was accidentally rammed by Camperdown, flagship of Tryon’s second-in-command, Alfred Markham.

Victory launched at Chatham 1765, Horatio Nelson’s flagship at the battle of Trafalgar (21 Oct. 1805); flagship of C-in-C Portsmouth since 1835. Dry-docked and restored in 1922, the Victory is now on display at Portsmouth.

Warrior first iron-hulled battleship (and last surviving); built at Blackwall on the Thames (1859/60). When commissioned in 1861, it made every other naval vessel obsolete. On display in Portsmouth since 1987.

Wilton first plastic warship, launched in Southampton 18 Jan. 1972.

Famous Ships: Voyages of Exploration

Adventure James Cook’s consort ship to the Resolution during his Antarctic voyage 1772–5; converted from a Whitby collier.

Arktika first ship to reach the North Pole, in 1977.

Beagle Charles Darwin’s ship which surveyed South American islands and in particular Galapagos (1831–6). Darwin was the science officer, the captain was Robert Fitzroy.

Calypso most famous survey ship of Jacques Cousteau.

Challenger Royal Navy survey ship, sailed 79,000 miles from 1872 to 1876, adding greatly to know-ledge of the seas. Most recent RN ship of that name also an oceanographic vessel.

Discovery Captain James Cook sought the Northwest Passage in 1776–9 with the Resolution and the Discovery. He was slain on the beach at Kealakekua, Hawaii, by Polynesian natives (1779).

Discovery Robert Falcon Scott’s ship used in his British National Antarctic Expedition of 1901–4 in which he was accompanied by Ernest Shackleton. Now on display in Dundee.

Endeavour James Cook’s voyage to Australia and New Zealand (1768–71), on which Joseph Banks was chief scientist, was carried out on this converted collier, originally called Earl of Pembroke.

Endurance Ernest Shackleton’s ship on his Antarctic voyage of 1914–16; sank in the Weddell Sea but since raised and on display in Dundee.

Erebus one of the two ill-fated ships (the other was the Terror) used by Sir John Franklin in his search for the Northwest Passage (1845–6).

Fram Norwegian explorer Fridtjof Nansen’s ship used on his Arctic explorations (1893–6). Roald Amundsen sailed in Fram (which meant ‘Forward’) on his successful expedition of 1911–12 to the South Pole.

Gjøa Roald Amundsen’s ship in which he sailed the Northwest Passage (1902–6) and found the magnetic North Pole.

Golden Hind ship on which Francis Drake became first Englishman to circumnavigate the globe (1580); originally called Pelican.

Grenville the schooner that James Cook commanded while surveying the coast of Newfoundland 1763–68.

Kon Tiki Thor Heyerdahl’s single-sailed balsa-wood raft on which he crossed the Pacific (1947).

Matthew John Cabot discovered Newfoundland and Nova Scotia (1497) in this 50-ton ship.

Mazurek carried Krystyna Choynowska-Liskiewicz on the first female solo circumnavigation of the globe in 1978.

Morning Supply ship that accompanied the Discovery in Scott’s Antarctic expedition of 1901–4. Ernest Shackleton was invalided home on this ship.

Nimrod Ernest Shackleton’s ship on the voyage (1907–9) in which he located the magnetic South Pole, and climbed Mt Erebus but only came within 97 miles of the South Pole.

Quest ship on which Ernest Shackleton died during his third Antarctic voyage (Grytviken, South Georgia 1922).

RA II Thor Heyerdahl’s papyrus raft on which he crossed the Atlantic (1970).

Resolute one of Edward Belcher’s ships sent to seek the missing (and already dead) John Franklin in 1852; abandoned in 1854 after being locked in ice off Melville Island; found 1,000 miles away in Davis Strait in 1855, still perfectly seaworthy.

Resolution James Cook’s flagship during his voyage to Antarctica 1772–5. Cook sought the Northwest Passage 1776–9 in this ship.

Roebuck William Dampier’s ship on his voyage to Australia and New Guinea (1699–1700).

Santa Maria Christopher Columbus’s flagship during his expedition to the New World (1492–3), accompanied by the caravels Niña and Pinta.

Spray Joshua Slocum’s boat in which he circumnavigated the Earth, the first man to do so solo (1895–8).

Terra Nova Captain Robert Falcon Scott’s ship used on his ill-fated Antarctic expedition 1910–12.

Terror one of the two ships (the other was Erebus) used by Sir John Franklin in his search for the Northwest Passage (1845–6).

Theodore Roosevelt Robert Peary’s ship used when he became first person to reach the North Pole (6 April 1909). Peary’s former friend, Frederick Cook, was found to have fraudulently reported his own earlier reaching of the Pole.

Tigris Thor Heyerdahl’s third raft.
Trieste bathysphere submarine which holds the record for the deepest descent (10,916 m) on 23 Jan. 1960.
Vega first ship to achieve the Northeast Passage, in 1878–9, under Nils Nordenskjöld.

Victoria first ship to circumnavigate the globe (1519–22). Although Ferdinand Magellan set out with five ships (the flagship Trinidad, San Antonio, Concepción, Santiago and Victoria) four were lost and he himself was killed in the Philippines (1521). The circumnavigation was completed by the Basque seaman Juan Sebastián del Cano.
Viking Norwegian explorer Fridtjof Nansen’s first exploratory ship (1888) in which he first sailed to Greenland.
Windward British Arctic explorer Frederick Jackson’s ship on which Fridtjof Nansen briefly journeyed back to Norway in Aug. 1896.

Ships: General Information

binnacle the casing in which the ship’s compass is kept.
box the compass to name the points of the compass in proper order.
breeches buoy life-saving device run on a rope stretched from a wrecked vessel to a place of safety.
bulwark that part of the sides of a ship which rises above the upper deck.
caïque long, narrow, light rowing skiff used on the Bosphorus.
clipper ship: first Rainbow (1845).
dahabeah/dahabeeyah houseboat used on the Nile (from Arabic: the Golden One).
dhow single-masted ship with a very long yard and a lateen sail, used on the Arabian sea.
diesel-powered ship: first Petit-Pierre. distress signals SOS – Morse (formerly CQD, Come Quickly Danger); Mayday – vocal distress shout.
felucca small vessel used in the Mediterranean, propelled by oars or lateen sails, or both.
flotsam goods lost in shipwreck and found floating.
gondola long, narrow Venetian boat with peaked ends, propelled by one oar.
gunwale upper edge of a ship’s side next to the bulwarks.
hull: plank types clinker-built – built with overlapping planks fastened with clinched nails; carvel-built – having the planks flush at the edges.
hydrofoil invented by Comte de Lambert in 1897 and developed by Enrico Forlanini in 1898.
jetsam goods thrown overboard in order to lighten a ship in distress, and subsequently washed ashore.
junk flat-bottomed vessel with lugsails, used in the Chinese seas.
kayak Inuit and Alaskan canoe, made of sealskins stretched on a light wooden framework.
kitchen or cook-house galley.
knot one nautical mile per hour. The British nautical mile was 6,080 feet but in 1970 the International nautical mile of 1,852 metres was adopted. The measurement was devised by Richard Norwood in 1673.
lighthouses: UK authority Trinity House.

lights starboard – green; port – red; top at night – white.
masts: how many sloop and cutter (1); ketch, brig, brigantine, yawl (2); barque (3 or more); schooner (2 or more).
oldest surviving ships Khufu I and Khufu II, built c. 2600 BC and buried in pits outside the Great Pyramid of Khufu in Egypt. Khufu I, first to be excavated after discovery in 1954, is plank-built and 43 metres long.
P&O: meaning Peninsular and Oriental.
pipe down naval colloquialism derived from the boatswain’s call of this name, meaning ‘Hands turn in’, i.e. ‘Lights out’.
piping the side traditional ceremony of blowing the boatswain’s pipe when royalty arrive or depart from battleship.
plimsoll line maximum loading mark on hull of ship, named after Samuel Plimsoll (1824–98), promoter of the Merchant Shipping Act 1876.
ports: famous Athens – Piraeus; London – Tilbury; Rome – Ostia.
ports: general biggest – New York; busiest – Rotterdam; largest inland – Montreal.
PT Boat: meaning Patrol Torpedo Boat.
Q-ship merchant ship with concealed guns, used to decoy enemy ships into the range of its weapons. Q stood for ‘Query’.
rudder: invented by Chinese, 1st century BC.
sails lateen – triangular.
ships: register of Lloyd’s.
ship: largest oil tanker Jahre Viking at 1,5042 long and weighing over 564,000 tonnes.
steam turbine: inventor Charles Parsons (1897).
V-shaped hull: pioneer Uffa Fox (who instructed HRH Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh, in the finer points of yachting).
Venice: water bus vaporetto.
watches at sea first watch – 8pm to midnight; middle watch – midnight to 4am; morning watch – 4am to 8am; forenoon – 8am to midday; afternoon watch – midday to 4pm; first dog watch – 4pm to 6pm; second dog watch – 6pm to 8pm.
xebec/zebec small three-masted Mediterranean vessel with both square and lateen sails, formerly used by Algerian pirates.
yachts: famous Talitha G – John Paul Getty; Saratoga – Humphrey Bogart; Saxara – Mohamed Al Fayed.

Railways: General Information

accident: first caused by moving train Rt Hon William Huskisson MP was run down by the Rocket at the opening of the Liverpool & Manchester Railway 15 Sept. 1830. He was rushed to Eccles Hospital on the Northumbrian . A runaway wagon caused the death of two boys in a Tyne coalpit in 1650. Unfortunately numerous incidents of this kind took place but were not really the work of trains in the accepted sense of the word.	dining car: first first buffet cars were put into service on the Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore Railroad in 1863.
air-brake: designer George Westinghouse (1846–1914) developed the air-brake from the simple non-automatic system of 1866 into the fully automatic (i.e. the brakes are automatically applied should any break in the train air pipe occur). System still in use in most countries. Most British railways used the vacuum brake, which had nothing to do with Westing-house.	electric railway: first Brighton seafront, built by Magnus Volk (1851–1937), still known as Volk's Electric Railway.
APT BR Advanced Passenger Train ran from London to Glasgow in 3 hrs 52 mins 45 secs at an average speed of 103 mph (12 Dec. 1984). This service was abandoned in 1986 due to numerous problems.	electrification of railways modern standard system of railway electrification at 25 kV 50 Hz was first used in France in 1950 and in England on the Colchester– Clacton–Walton lines in 1959.
British speed records A Eurostar train reached 208mph on a stretch of track between Ashford and Dartford in Kent to create a new UK speed record in July 2003. A Virgin Pendolino tilting train set a record for the non-stop journey between London and Manchester in September 2004. The 184 miles were covered in 1hr 54mins.	fare-paying customers: first to carry Oystermouth Railway built a railway from Swansea to Mumbles and on 25 March 1807 became first to convey fare-paying passengers. This railway closed in 1960.
broad-gauge railway: last train the Cornishman was the last broad-gauge passenger train to run, on 21 May 1892, from Paddington to Penzance.	father of railways George Stephenson.
Chicago rail system nicknamed the ‘El’, which is short for elevated (several other cities, notably New York, also had elevated railways known as ‘Els’).	father of the locomotive Richard Trevithick.
diesel locomotive: first the first diesel locomotive to go into regular service was a Swedish-built metre-gauge Bo Bo type put into operation by Tunisian Railways in 1921.	highest railway station Condor station in Bolivia.
	horse-drawn railways Middleton Railway, Leeds, in 1758 was the first to be built under its own Act of Parliament, although other horse-worked railways had been operating in the Tyne coalfield on private land for many years previously.
	horse-drawn railways: public the Surrey Iron Railway from Wandsworth to Croydon (opened 26 July 1803) was the first horse-drawn railway opened to the public, inasmuch as it accepted consignments. Passengers were not carried (at least not officially!).
	locomotive railway: first Stockton and Darlington, opened in 1825.
	locomotive railway: first passenger line Liverpool to Manchester, opened in 1830.
	London railway: first Spa Road to Deptford, part of London & Greenwich Railway, opened 8 Feb. 1836.
	London Underground: first automatic barrier Stamford Brook. borne in mind that the term ‘Atlantic’ properly describes a 4-4-2

London Underground: first line Metropolitan Line, from Bishop’s Road to Farringdon Street, 10 Jan. 1863.

longest platform in Great Britain Colchester, at 1981 ft longest platform in the world Kharagpur Station, West Bengal at 2,733 ft

Mallard LNER ‘A4’ Class Pacific No. 4468 Mallard reached a speed of just over 126 mph for a few seconds on a brake-test trial run between Grantham and Peterborough (3 July 1938). Mallard can be seen at the National Railway Museum, York.

monorail: first Charles Lartigue’s system was used on a demonstration line in France and then on the Listowel and Ballyunion Railway in Ireland, 1883. It was comprised a single rail raised about 4 ft above the ground on an A-frame with two guiding rails about 1 ft off the ground.

National Railway Museum museum opened in York in 1975 and combining the holdings of the British Transport Commission’s museum at Clapham and the LNER museum at York.

nationalisation railways were nationalised from 1 Jan. 1948 and were divided into five regions: 1) Scottish, 2) North Eastern, 3) London Midland, 4) Eastern, 5) Western and Southern. (The Eastern and North Eastern were amalgamated on 1 Jan. 1967.)

platforms: most UK Waterloo main line.

Puffing Billy world’s first steam locomotive running on smooth rails instead of the previous rack rails. Designed by William Hedley and first put into operation in 1813 from Wylam colliery in Northumberland to the river Tyne. The Wylam Dilly was made at much the same time. Note: Trevithick’s Penydarren engine had smooth iron wheels running on smooth cast-iron tram plates!

railcar: designer William Bridges Adams designed the 6-wheeled steam railcar Fairfield (named from road in Bow where he operated from).

railtrack: longest in straight line Nullarbor Plain, Australia.

railway: first private opened in June 1789 by the Loughborough & Nanpanton Railway Co.

railway king George Hudson.

Railways Act 1921 from 1 Jan. 1923 the amalgamation of the railways meant that four major companies were formed: 1) The Great Western Railway, 2) The London, Midland & Scottish Railway, 3) The London and North Eastern Railway, 4) The Southern Railway.

railways: USA operating co. Amtrak.

Rainhill Trials competition held on 6–14 Oct. 1829 near Liverpool to choose the design of locomotive for Liverpool & Manchester Railway. Robert Stephenson’s Rocker won the £500 prize by beating Timothy Hackworth’s Sans Pareil and John Braithwaite and John Ericsson’s Novelty.

RKB code: meaning the code RKB refers to a single item of rolling stock containing a restaurant seating portion, a buffet counter and a kitchen.

San Francisco rail system BART (Bay Area Rapid Transit).

Schools-Class locomotives introduced by Southern Railway in 1930 and named after famous schools, first being called Eton.

Scottish railway: first Kilmarnock and Troon Railway was the first ‘proper’ railway in Scotland. Opened 6 July 1812.

sleeping cars: European wagons lits.

sleeping car: first the Chambersburg, introduced by the Cumberland Valley Railroad on its Pennsylvanian Harrisburg–Chambers route, was the first example of a sleeping car (1836).

standard gauge first used on Willington Colliery wagonway near Newcastle upon Tyne in 1764 and set at 42 8⁄32 or 1,435 mm, this being an average of the wagon ways in this area. It is thought that the average gauge of between 42 63 and 42 93 was the width of the track required for two horses abreast.

station: largest UK Clapham Junction.

station: most northerly in Great Britain Thurso.

steam locomotive: first Richard Trevithick built the first locomotive and ran it on the Penydarren Railway, near Merthyr Tydfil, on 6 Feb. 1804.

TGV Train à Grande Vitesse (High-Speed Train); began a regular hourly service between Paris and Lyon, the 265-mile journey taking 2 hrs 40 mins.

third-class travel redesignated as second class by British Rail in 1956. (The old second class had largely fallen out of use by the turn of the century.)

timetable: national Bradshaw’s Railway Companion was the first national railway timetable in 1839.

underground: British four British cities with underground railways: London, Glasgow, Liverpool and Newcastle (Metro).

most passengers Moscow.

most stations New York.

names Berlin – U Bahn; Rome – Metropolitana; Stockholm – T-Bana; Paris – Métro.

USSR: terms for first and second class Soft and Hard class.

wheel configurations: nicknames Atlantic (4-4-2): name originally applied to a batch of 4-4-2s built by Baldwin of Philadelphia for the Atlantic Coast Railroad in 1894. In the UK, Atlantics were in use for hauling express passenger trains on the Great Northern, North Eastern, North British and London, Brighton & South Coast Railways. It should be locomotive with a separate tender; thus 4-4-2 tank engines, such as were in widespread use in the UK, are not true Atlantics but are more analogous to a 4-4-0 with an additional axle to support a rear bunker. Mogul (2-6-0): first true Mogul, with a leading two-wheel Bissell truck, was built by Baldwin of Philadelphia for the Louisville & Nashville Railroad in 1860. In the UK in the twentieth century Moguls were in extensive use on all four of the post-1923 mainline railways, and after 1948, in all regions of British Railways. The term Mogul properly applies to a 2-6-0 with outside cylinders, so that the inside-cylindereed 2-6-0s of the Caledonian, and Glasgow and South Western Railways were not true Moguls, being essentially large 0-6-0-s with a leading truck for increased front-end stability. Pacific (4-6-2): name seems to have originated because the engines concerned were obviously bigger than Atlantics. In the UK, Pacifics were in general express service on the LNER from the mid-Twenties, the LMS from 1933 and the Southern Railway from 1941. The Great Western Railway had actually built the first UK Pacific (No. 111 The Great Bear) in 1908 but found it something of a white elephant. It was scrapped in 1924, and various mechanical components were incorporated in a new ‘Castle’ class 4-6-0, No. 111 Viscount Churchill. Baltic (4-6-4): name appears to be of Germanic origin. (To an American, a 4-6-4 is a Hudson.) Only one 4-6-4 tender engine ever ran in the UK. This was Gresley’s experimental high-pressure water-tube boiler 4-cylinder compound No. 10000, built for the LNER in 1929. It was rebuilt as a conventional 3-cylinder simple expansion engine and ran until 1959, latterly as British Railways No. 60700. This engine was not a true Baltic, since the rear carrying axles were disposed as a Cartazzi axle and a separate two-wheel radial truck, making the engine technically a 4-6-2-2. Around 1920, however, there was a vogue, particularly on the London Brighton & South Coast, Lancashire & Yorkshire and Glasgow & South Western Railways, for extremely large 4-6-4 tank engines, which, while not true Baltics (vide supra under Atlantic), were referred to as Baltics consistently enough to legitimise the usage. Prairie (2-6-2): name applied in the American Midwest after first examples were built in 1900 for the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad. Apart from one curious 8-cylinder experimental engine built as a semi-private venture by Cecil Paget at Derby in 1908, the only 2-6-2 tender engines to run in the UK were Gresley’s extremely successful V2-class built from 1936 onwards for the LNER, and his lightweight V4 design of 1941, of which only two examples were built before his death. In the 20th century, several hundred 2-6-2 tank engines were built in the UK, particularly by the Great Western Railway, and, although not true Prairies (being actually Moguls with a rear bunker), they were generally referred to as Prairie tanks. Consolidation (2-8-0): name is that carried by the first example of this type, built in 1865 for the Lehigh & Mahanoy Railroad. The name was not much used to describe British 2-8-0s, but it does seem to have attached itself to the 2-8-0 freight locomotives built at Swindon for the Great Western Railway by G J Churchward and his successors. This may be due to Churchward’s close following of American locomotive practice resulting in an essentially American designation attaching itself to his engines of the 2-8-0 type. Mikado (2-8-2): so named because the first examples were made in the USA for export to Japan. In the UK, the only 2-8-2 tender engines were built by Gresley for the LNER. First, the two heavy freight engines of class P1, built in 1925. These were mechanically a cross between an A1-class Pacific and an O2-class Consolidation. As a small, non-standard class they were both withdrawn in 1945. Second was the magnificent class P2, six examples of which were built 1934–36, for working express passenger trains to Scotland. They were rebuilt as very mediocre Pacifics after Gresley’s death. Decapod: a curiosity – to an American, a Decapod is a 2-10-0. The only two classes of engines of this type to run in the UK were the 251 examples of the standard-class 9F, built by British Railways between 1954 and 1960, and 25 examples bought secondhand from the Ministry of Supply after WW2. These, however, were never referred to as Decapods (except, presumably, by Americans!). The Decapod, however, was a huge 0-10-0 tank engine built by the Great Eastern Railway in 1903 as part of an experiment in the drastic acceleration of suburban trains. It did everything which was expected of it, but was far too heavy for the track and bridges. It was broken up shortly afterwards and a few components incorporated in a 0-8-0 goods engine. NB The following type names are largely in American use only, generally because no locomotives of the type referred to ever ran in the UK. American (4-4-0): applies only to the classic outside-cylindereed, bar-framed three-point suspension locomotive familiar from countless Western films. Ten Wheeler (4-6-0): strictly an American term only. (Casey Jones was driving Illinois Central ten-wheeler No. 382 when he met his death at Vaughan, Mississippi, on 29 April 1900.) Mastodon (4-8-0): there were actually two 4-8-0 tender engines on the narrow-gauge Londonderry & Lough Swilly Railway in Ireland. They were used on the desolate Burtonport extension line in north-west Donegal, where I doubt if anyone ever referred to them as Mastodons. Berkshire (2-8-4): pronounced ‘BurkSHIRE’. Mountain (4-8-4) Santa Fe (2-10-2): introduced by the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad in 1903, for working over the Raton Pass. Texas (2-10-4): called this in the USA but called ‘Selkirk’ in Canada.

world speed record 322mph by a French TGV in 1990.

world’s longest railway: Trans-Siberian running from Moscow (Yaroslavl Station) to Vladivostok (5,801 miles); opened 3 Nov. 1901

NB This last little section on mnemonics is a reminder in itself that a sound general knowledge base can only be achieved if facts are committed to memory. There is no shortcut to success in the quiz world; of course, a keen interest taken in things going on around you is desirable, as is a basic level of intelligence, but given that most people share those basic requirements then the secret of success is the amount of data consumed and the way that data is processed. The rate at which information is consumed varies depending on the level of commitment of the reader, but the way that information is stored can be the vital edge required to recall that seemingly long-forgotten nugget or that either/or situation so often encountered by quiz buffs. Mnemonics are an invaluable aid to quiz players, and should be used in some form or other when memorising lists. It does not matter how silly, rude, outlandish or downright inarticulate the mnemonic is, all that matters is that it works.

British Money

Until 1943 there were white bank notes for values of £10, £20, £50, £100, £500 and £1,000 but these ceased to be legal tender in 1945. The old white £5 note issued between 1945 and 1956 ceased to be legal tender in 1961. The £5 note issued between 1957 and 1963 that coincided with the term of office of Harold MacMillan, and bearing a portrait of Britannia, ceased to be legal tender in 1967. The £5 note issued between 1963 and 1971 was the first of the series to bear a portrait of the Queen. The first note with a portrait of the Queen on the front was a £1 note issued in 1960. The 10 shilling note was replaced by the 50p coin in 1969 and ceased to be legal tender in 1970 (they could however be redeemed if presented at the Head Office of the Bank of England). The £1 note was replaced by a coin in 1983 and ceased to be legal tender in 1988, although the Scottish £1 note is still acceptable in Scotland.

The current notes as at August 2013 portray famous people as follows:

£5	Elizabeth Fry (1780–1845) showing her reading to prisoners in Newgate Prison.
£10	Charles Darwin (1809–82) and the Beagle plus a hummingbird.
£20	Adam Smith (1723–90) with an illustration of 'The division of labour in pin manufacturing'
£50	James Watt and Matthew Boulton with steam engine and Boulton's Soho factory.

Series F notes pending include a depiction of Winston Churchill on £5 in 2016 and Jane Austen on £10 in 2017.

The current Chief Cashier of the Bank of England is Andrew Bailey, who replaced Merlyn Lowther.

The current Governor of the Bank of England is Mark Carney, who replaced Mervyn King.

Previous portraits on notes are as follows:

£5	George Stephenson and before him The Duke of Wellington
£10	Charles Dickens and before him Florence Nightingale
£20	Edward Elgar, before him Michael Faraday and before him William Shakespeare
£50	Sir John Houblon (1632–1712) the first Governor of the Bank of England and before him Sir Christopher Wren

British coins ceased to be legal tender as follows:

Farthing (¼d)	1960
Pre-decimal halfpenny	1969
Half-crown (2s 6d)	1970
Threepenny bit	1971
Sixpence (6d = 2½p)	1980
Decimal halfpenny	1984

Confusion often arises when one considers which was the first decimal coin brought into circulation. In 1968 the shilling and two shilling coins were replaced by a new 5p and 10p coin. This pre-empted decimalisation in 1971 and was an exercise in the public becoming used to the new system. The coins were of the same value as previously and did not alter the public perception in any way. In 1969 the new 50p coin was introduced, replacing the ten-shilling note which of course was a vastly different form, hence it often being considered as the first decimal coin introduced.

In 1971 the ½p, 1p, and 2p coins were introduced and in 1982 the 20p coin followed. In 1983 the £1 coin replaced the £1 note and in 1986 the first £2 coin was minted. Decimal coins minted before 1982 had their value in 'New' pence.
